Mysterious Blast Kills Couple in Automobile

Dynamite Thought Cause of Deaths Of Suitor, Girl; Southeast Rocked

A mysterious explosion in a parked car last night sent a "very jealous" 25-year-old Virginia farmer and his pretty 17-year-old girl friend to instant death in front of her southeast Washington home.

Police identified the couple as James William (Bill) Woodward of Marshall, Va., who managed the farm of Thomas Hughes at Hume, Va., and Mary Fay Combs of 517 10th st. se., who worked with her twin sister Frances in a drug store at 14th and H sts. nw.

Police, who rushed to the scene after the bomb-like blast rocked the neighborhood shortly after 8 p. m., said it appeared to be a case of "murder and suicide."

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett and Chief of Detectives Robert V. Murray said after a preliminary investigation that Woodward and the girl had been going together for several months.

"She had been trying to break it off because of Bill's jealousy and drinking," Major Barrett said he had concluded. Woodward was apparently "very jealous" of her, he added.

Woodward tried vainly Tuesday night to talk with the petite blonde, according to friends, who said she was "very pretty and had olive-green eyes and an attractive figure.

He came to her house again at 6 o'clock last night, after which he spent some time with her brother Edgar and friends in the Combs car outside. After Bill talked with Mary Fay in the house, she consented to go to his car and discuss their situation about 8 o'clock, police determined.

There were two indications that Mary Fay did not plan to date Bill last night. She left her hat and coat in the house before going to his car in the cold night. And at 9:30 p. m., as crowds swarmed about the blast scene, a young blond man came to the Combs house to call for Mary, who had a bowling date with a friend of his.

The youth told reporters he and

Steel Wage Boost Agreement Near, Officials Indicate

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 29 (AP). Sources close to both the CIO United Steelworkers and big United States Steel Corporation indicated tonight only formalities stand in the way of a wage settlement for 155,000 employes of the company.

The optimism came after "Big Steel" made an undisclosed wage offer to Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the steelworkers.

The amount of the offer was not disclosed. However, sources close to both sides place the figure at 16 cents an hour, counting fringe benefits.

Steelworkers now average $1.72 an hour.

Secretary of State Rejects Communists' 'Intimidation'

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson declared emphatically last night that United Nations forces could not be pulled out of Korea in the face of "brazen aggression" by Communist China.

The Secretary recalled in a radio speech that the U. N. had helped the Korean people set up an independent government.

"The United Nations," he said, "cannot be intimidated by this new challenge to its authority into shaking off its responsibilities to the people of Korea."

This was the first intimation from a responsible Administration leader that the United States did not favor abandoning Korea and saving its trained manpower for defense elsewhere.

The Secretary professed his confidence that the U. N. would show no "weakness of spirit or of determination" against the Chinese peril, any more than it did in the "dark days" around the Pusan bridgehead.

But, he added, "this new act of aggression has created a new crisis, a situation of unparalleled danger." He warned that "if the Chinese Communist authorities continue to impose upon their people this warring against the United Nations, they will vastly increase the danger to the whole fabric of world peace." And toward the end of his speech he made this somber statement:

"No one can guarantee that war will not come. The present crisis is extremely serious. Whether reason will prevail is only partly for us to decide. We must hope and strive for the best while we prepare for the worst."

The Secretary's references to the Korean crisis had been hurriedly added yesterday to a speech he had prepared for the National Council of Churches of Christ, meeting in Cleveland.

Primarily the speech tried to mobilize world opinion against the Chinese Communists, and to rouse American public opinion to close ranks in the face of "a grave danger for the peace of the world."

Reports streaming into Washington had indicated that the governments in London, Paris and other allied capitals had not grasped the meaning of Tuesday's Security Council speech by Wu Hsiu-chuan, the Chinese Communist spokesman, although the delegates at the U. N. had seen it clearly.

There were signs, too, in reports from abroad that friendly governments were distrustful of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's role in recent weeks, and were inclined to blame the United States for what had happened.

Accordingly, Acheson reminded foreign governments and peoples that the Chinese Communist aggression affected all U. N. members alike.

"The United States has no special interests or interests different from those of the majority," he said. "From the very beginning of the Korean crisis, the United States has sought solidarity with the majority of members."

The Secretary said that the "harsh significance" of the Chinese Communist intervention, and "its complete disregard of any kind of moral standard," could best be understood against the background of the original U. N. action in Korea.

He recalled that the majority had rallied last summer to put down "a crime committed against the international community," but that the Soviet Union and its satellites had defied the majority by helping the aggressors and trying "to break up, by obstruc-

Senators Seek 2-Month Rent Law Extension

Resolution Passed; Neely to File 5-Month Plan for Washington

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A two-month extension of Federal rent controls was recommended to the Senate yesterday by its Banking and Currency Committee.

The vote was 10 to 2, with one member voting "present."

The plan would carry Federal controls through February.

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) said it would be presented to the Senate today. He said he hoped it will be taken up for action not later than Monday.

Under present law, Federal rent ceilings end December 31 this year except in communities that vote to extend them for another six months.

At the same time, Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) said he will introduce today a bill to extend, probably for 5 months, the separate District rent-control law.

This would carry the District law through June 30.

Neely said he may call the District Committee to act on his bill Friday.

Neely said his plan for at least a five month extension of District rent controls to carry the local law from January 31 through June 30, would be preferable to a bill that would make the expiration date conform with the Banking and Currency Committee bill.

He left the way open, however, for modifying his proposal if he finds a majority of committee members belie in the terminal dates of the two laws should be the same.

Lieut. G. E. Cooper Charged

Probe Ordered of Policeman's Role in District Raid Arrests

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

An investigation was ordered yesterday into the role of a police lieutenant in the arrest of two alleged bookmakers who reportedly refused to pay off $1400 won by a friend of his.

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett said that charges have been made ag. inst Lieut. George E. (Two-Gun) Cooper, assistant chief of the robbery squad. Barrett said he had named Inspector Robert V. Murray, chief of detectives, to investigate the charges.

The accused bookmakers are Louis and Esther Gitelson, 1116 Buchanan st. nw.

They were arrested Tuesday night, on a warrant sworn to by Cooper and his friend, James J. Martin, 2531 14th st. ne., resident superintendent of the Brentwood Village Apartments.

The Gitelsons were arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday on charges of setting up a gaming table, but the case was continued until December 5 because Martin had disappeared less than 24 hours after he swore out the warrant.

Judge Andrew J. Howard, jr., issued an attachment for Martin at the request of Assistant U. S. Attorney Warren Wilson, and the apartment manager was arrested later in the day by U. S. Marshals.

Cooper said he was "not going to say anything about the case."

In his affidavit for a warrant for the arrest of the Gitelsons, Martin said that on November 20 he telephoned $120 worth of bets to Mrs. Gitelson on the first two races at Lincoln Downs, the Rhode Island track.

In his sworn statement, Cooper said that he was present when Martin telephoned the bets. He said that he was present when Martin went to the Gitelsons' home, where Mrs. Gitelson admitted to him that she took bets

Defense Aides Give Armed Services Group Plans for Meeting Crisis

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

China's full-scale entrance into the Korean war will mean a major step-up of American mobilization and complete revamping of Far East war plans, defense officials said yesterday.

More men and money for the armed forces than previously planned is certain, members of the Senate Armed Services Committee declared after closed-door talks with Deputy Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett and other Pentagon chiefs.

"They made no specific recommendations," said Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.), "but the whole tenor of their testimony was that we ought to speed up preparations."

American armed forces are in the process of expanding from just under 1,500,000 men to about 2,200,000. President Truman has said we may go to three million, and a supplemental budget now being readied for Congress was said a week ago to aim close to that total.

The Army, Navy and Air Force, however, individually asked forces aggregating 3,500,000 men, and the new crisis may bring approval for that size force or greater. Similarly, Pentagon chiefs a week ago hoped to keep the 1951 military budget down to about 35 billions. Now it may approach 53 billions originally asked by the professional military men.

Newly-appointed Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg told the Senators, Tydings said, that draft standards will have to be lowered to get the men needed by the armed forces. That means drafting and greater use of 4Fs, he indicated.

Tydings said she had made no recommendation for a change in the draft law, but another member of the committee said it appears certain that either the draft age limit or present exemption of veterans must be lifted to get more military manpower or both.

After hearing Lovett and Lieut. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Army war plans chief, Senators reported that the situation was "very grave." Asked if he gained the impression from the Pentagon chiefs that the Chinese invasion marked the start of World War III, Tydings replied:

"It could be, but I hope not."

Earlier, a Pentagon spokesman cautioned against "over-pessimism" in viewing the news from Korea. He told reporters the situation is "serious but not catastrophic." American forces have been in worse fixes than this, the officer stated, and have "come out of them all right."

There has been no talk at the Pentagon about withdrawing from Korea or even retreating behind the thirty-eighth parallel, the spokesman added. Reporters asked

Austin Charges Wu With Lies In U. N. Speech

Says Chinese Challenge Two-Thirds of World, Calls for Vote Reply

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Chinese Communists are challenging two-thirds of the world, the United States declared today, and the United Nations must show it will not submit to threats or tolerate military actions against the U. N.

Warren R. Austin, top American delegate, said Peiping's representative here had lied and distorted the facts in a defiance that must be answered by speedy action to stop the spread of war in Asia.

Sharply answering the long attack on the United States yesterday by Wu Hsiu-chuan, Peiping's representative, Austin said he denied categorically Wu's charges that the United States and U. N. committed aggression in Korea.

"In the course of his speech," Austin told a grave-faced Council, "General Wu contrived to challenge two-thirds of the world, defy the United Nations, and dismay the friends of China. Glorifying peace, he sounded threat-

Draft Snafu At Holabird Explained

Military snafu, strictly on the local level, yesterday was formally blamed by the Second Army for the in-again, out-again treatment of draftees at Fort Holabird, Md., which processes two-thirds of Maryland's selectees.

The Second Army issued a statement confirming a story in Monday's Washington Post that during the first half of November the Fort Holabird induction station had been rejecting a large percentage of draftees on induction day, three to four weeks after the same station had examined the draftees and okayed them for induction.

The 143 men rejected, according to the Second Army announcement, had failed the Armed Forces mental qualification test at the preinduction examination, but had been given an administrative waiver and accepted for induction by the Fort Holabird induction station officer.

When the same group appeared from the actual induction, however, they were rejected by the induction station on the advice "of higher headquarters." A public relations officer at Second Army headquarters, Fort Meade, Md., identified "higher headquarters" as both the Second Army and the Pentagon.

According to the Second Army, the induction officer approved for induction the mental test failures on the ground that after interviewing them, he felt they had the background which indicated they would be good soldier material. This, the Second Army holds, is too loose an interpretation of the regulations.

Administration Speeds Civil Defense Action

Expected to Request $100 Million Including Funds for Localities

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Congress will shortly be asked to vote both national and District civil defense funds.

A request for legislation to set up the long-stalled National Office of Civil Defense is expected to reach the Capitol in a day or two. At the same time, President Truman is expected to ask funds—something under 100 million dollars it was reported yesterday—to run the office until next June 30.

The money also will provide some matching funds to help cities and States acquire civil defense equipment. A formula for Federal contributions and matching funds is contained in the authorization bill. Much more money will probably be asked in next year's regular budget for fiscal 1952.

The District last summer was given $100,000 of the $290,000 civil defense budget it asked. All the money has been allocated and bids are about to be taken for some $50,000 worth of radio and air-raid warning equipment. But this would provide only one command center and four air-raid warning sirens, just enough to alert the Federal Triangle and adjoining areas from the Capitol to the State Department.

At least 30 more warning sirens are needed and each costs about $3000. In all, the District's request may run to as much as $300,000.

Yanks With Turks And British Fight Hard to Protect Retreating Force

BULLETIN

U. S. TENTH CORPS HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Thursday, Nov. 30 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond said today elements of three Chinese armies—as many as 80,000 men—have "suddenly confronted" United Nations forces in northeast Korea.

By Leif Erickson

SEOUL (Thursday), Nov. 30 (AP).—Resistance stiffened today against Chinese Communist hordes trying to swing in behind the 110,000-man United Nations Army in northwest Korea and trap it.

Reports to the United States Eighth Army today indicated Communist pressure has eased sharply.

Americans, Turks and British, defending an arc at the crushed east flank of the U. N. line, fought hard to protect three United States divisions and one South Korean division retreating southward across the Chongchon River.

The United States Twenty-fourth and Second Divisions, at the west and east ends of the line, were reported across.

Two Others Crossing

Near the center of the line, the United States Twenty-fifth Division reported it was continuing an "orderly withdrawal under pressure." The Republic of Korea (ROK) First Division, on the Twenty-fifth's east flank, also still was making crossings.

Field dispatches near midday said there still were considerable American and South Korean elements on the other side of the river.

The Eighth Army's immediate objective was to hold an arc running from Kunu east to Kaechon and southeast to Sinchang. This would protect completion of the river crossing by the United States Twenty-fifth and the ROK first.

Red pressure was reported against all three points of the arc. It was not clear at Eighth Army headquarters whether Kunu still was in U. N. hands. Kunu, on the south bank of the river, is only 17 miles from Sinanju on the west coast.

The Communists, bringing out tanks in support, poured unchecked down the gaping hole blasted four days ago near Tokchon through three South Korean divisions. But they were meeting increased resistance in an entrapment move to swing west and pin the U. N. forces against the Yellow Sea.

The sudden diminishing of the Communist pressure after steady attacks since Saturday night caused an Eighth Army officer to say "I don't know what it means."

There was immediate speculation (1) the Reds had raced beyond communications or (2) had been ordered to slow their counter-offensive as the result of diplomatic discussions. It also was possible the Reds were slowing up to organize for renewal of their push.

3 Senators Accuse Acheson of Trying To Oust M'Arthur

Three Republican Senators last night accused Secretary of State Acheson of trying to oust Gen. Douglas MacArthur as commander of U. N. forces in Korea.

The charge was made by Wherry of Nebraska, the Senate Republican leader; Bricker of Ohio and McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Wherry said "one thing that has got to stop is this sniping at MacArthur by Acheson and Bevin." (Ernest Bevin, Great Britain's Foreign Minister.)

Bricker said "sniping" at MacArthur by Acheson started right after President Truman ousted Louis Johnson as Secretary of Defense and kept Acheson on.

"There was skulduggery there," Bricker said. "Part of the whole plan was to get rid of MacArthur."

McCarthy declared "Acheson and his group are trying to get MacArthur because he has stood in their way." McCarthy added that the Chinese Communists "who are killing our boys were put on the Manchurian border by the planning of such as Acheson and Jessup."

Congress Gets Urgent Appeal For Food Aid to Yugoslavia

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The President and the State and Defense Departments joined yesterday in urging Congress to grant 38 million dollars of food relief to Yugoslavia, as a move in the interest of European and American military security.

In a message to Congress, Mr. Truman declared that "the continued independence of Yugoslavia is of great importance to the security of the United States and its partners" in Europe, but that the record drought in that Balkan country would "seriously undermine" its capacity to resist Soviet aggression.

By sending food to Yugoslavia, the Chief Executive said, we can help preserve its independence and keep "Soviet power out of one of Europe's most strategic areas." This, he declared, "is clearly in our national interest"

Concurrently, Secretary of Defense Marshall wrote the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is beginning hearings on the proposal, that from a purely military point of view it was important to us that "the largest military force" in Europe outside of Russia should remain "militarily effective and friendly to the Western Powers."

Yugoslavia has about 30 relatively effective army divisions. Unless they receive food this winter, Marshall reported, their morale will be lowered and their ability to conduct training limited.

Gen. Omar H. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, hammered home the point even more specifically in testimony before the Committee. The Yugoslav success in breaking loose from Kremlin control, he said, presents an opportunity on which the United States should capitalize to obtain some of its national objectives.

Bradley's main point was that the one successful rebel from Kremlin control should not be allowed to fail, lest it discourage in the future all chances of other nations breaking away.

Earlier in the day, Assistant Secretary of State George W. Perkins opened the Administration's appeal for enactment of the authorizing legislation. He warned that the hunger and privation resulting from the summer's drought could seriously weaken the Yugoslavs' resistance to continued Russian pressure.

For the most part, the Administration's position met with favorable reception in the Committee. The principal reservation, voiced for the most part by Republican Representatives Vorys (Ohio), Smith (Wis.) and Merrow (N. H.), was on the absence of any specific quid pro quos from Tito in return for the projected aid.

GEICO Aides Benefit

Cost of Living at Record High; Million Workers Get Pay Hike

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The cost of living reached an all-time high during October, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

As a result, nearly a million workers, whose wages are tied to the rise and fall in the BLS index of retail prices, will get an immediate pay increase of two to three cents an hour.

Most of these are employes of the two large automobile makers, the Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. Another 61 automobile suppliers, whose employes are members of the CIO United Auto Workers, will also benefit.

Locally several hundred workers will be affected. Besides Washington employes of the motor companies, about 250 workers for the Goverment Employers Insurance Companies (GEICO) will get a raise as a result of the BLS report.

The GEICO payroll will get a blanket increase. Under previous cost of living increases granted under the program, employes have been getting 8 percent above the base pay. That will now increase to 10 percent. President Leo Goodwin last night called the plan "a good idea," and added that he was "glad we have it."

Several other companies, including the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., have recently granted cost of living bonuses not tied to the BLS report.

The prices of goods and services bought by moderate-income families in large cities went up 0.6 percent between September 15 and October 15, BLS stated.

The Consumers Price Index on October 15 reached 174.8, based on an average for 1935-39 equaling 100. This was 0.2 percent above the previous all-time high in August and September, 1948. It was 2.7 percent higher than just before the Korean fighting started.

Southern Democrats Stymie Alaska Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Two of President Truman's short session "musts," Alaskan statehood and profits taxation, ran into trouble at the Capitol yesterday:

1. A developing filibuser against the Statehood bill staved off a Senate vote for the third straight day on a motion to call up the bill.

2. House Ways and Means Committee Democrats failed to muster a majority for the President's 4 billion dollar excess profits tax formula and appeared willing to settle for a milder "stop gap" profits tax.

Southern Democrats Act

Southern Democrats, predominately opposing the Statehood bill, got behind a move to displace the Alaskan measure with the 60-day extension of Federal rent controls bfil reported yesterday. Senate Banking Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) said he will move to call up the rent control extension in the Senate on Monday.

House Ways and Means Committee Democrats held a huddle last night in the office of Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) after a series of votes on the key profits tax formula left the committee, in the words of one member, "right back where we started."

Ways and Means

Democrats were more optimistic following their conference. One of them predicted flatly: "We are going to get a bill."

The Administration's proposal to exempt only 75 percent of base period (1946-49) average earnings from 75 percent excess profits tax appeared permanently out the window, however.

Sentiment instead appeared to be leaning toward exempting 100 percent of average base period earnings, and imposing an 85 percent tax on the balance earned over that.

The Administration's own excess profits tax formula was first tentatively defeated Tuesday by a 12 to 12 tie.

With some Democrats going along with Republicans, the committee tentatively voted yesterday to exempt 100 percent of base period earnings, but couldn't agree on the profits tax rate to impose on the balance.

Committee Snarled

The committee got snarled in a series of substitute proposals and in the end voted to reconsider the whole matter.

The only points finally approved were special relief provisions for railroads and airlines as well as utilities. Railroads and airlines would be allowed a credit equal to 5 percent return on invested and borrowed capital and retained earnings, before imposition of the profits levy. On Tuesday the committee voted utilities a 6 percent credit.

The Senate meanwhile quit overnight without voting on a motion to call up the Alaskan statehood bill after hearing one advocate and one opponent of the legislation.

Senator John E. McClellan (D., Ark.) took the Southern line of attack. He argued that Alaska is only sparsely populated and not yet sufficiently developed to undertake the "responsibilities" of statehood.

Like Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.), who led off for the Dixie belt Tuesday, McClellan contended statehood would "contribute nothing" to the Nation's strength, and the present tense moment in world affairs is no time to be debating the issue.

He called on Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) to withdraw his motion to bring the bill to a vote.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.), however, urged the Senate to quickly approve Lucas' motion to demonstrate to the world that "we believe in the democratic process."

Strategic Locations

Anderson argued that the strategic location of both Alaska and Hawaii as Pacific outposts makes them more important than ever to our security.

He said statehood would contribute to the needed development and growth of Alaska, bringing new industries and population to the new state. He denied charges of some Republican Senators that Alaska would send radical-type Senators to Congress, saying the Territory now reflects normal election trends in this country.

"We are trying to say around the world that we believe in democratic processes," said Anderson, "and yet we can't even get a vote on this motion."

Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), one of the few Southern Senators who suports statehood, later briefly told the Senate he "fully approved" of what Anderson had said.

Another Southerner, however, Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) told reporters he would make a sure enough filibuster speech next week if the Senate calls up the bill for action.

Most Southerners privately oppose the two statehood bills because they think four additional Senate votes from the two new States would water down their present anti-civil rights minority.

Copper for Civilian Articles Ordered Cut by 15 Percent

By the United Press

The Government yesterday ordered 15 to 20 percent cuts in civilian use of copper during the first three months of next year so the scarce metal will be available for defense production.

This will take about 65,000 tons of copper from production of automobiles, radio and television sets and other civilian goods and put it into war materials.

It was the second drastic cutback of a major raw material. A 35 percent cut in civilian use of aluminum will go into effect January 1. Sharp reduction in nonmilitary use of nickel is next on the list.

The National Production Authority, which controls basic war production items, ordered civilian use of copper in January and February cut 15 percent below the average used during the first half of 1950. In March it will go to 20 percent.

NPA said manufacturers may continue their October-November average during the rest of this year.

NPA Administrator William H. Harrison said that despite everything that can be done, there is "little likelihood" that scarce copper supplies can be increased "appreciably" in the months ahead.

Big 3 Will Discuss Peace Step in Paris

LONDON, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—The United States, Britain and France will discuss in Paris next week the advisability of negotiating with Russia to head off the threat that World War III may explode in Korea, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin announced today.

In making his announcement at the beginning of a tense two-day foreign policy debate, Bevin plainly voiced suspicion that Russia and Communist China are linked in a war plot on a world-wde scale.

May Be Set Wednesday

French sources said the Paris meeting probably would begin about next Wednesday and that the three countries would be represented by Ambassadors or diplomats of equivalent rank.

(The State Department announced in Washington that United States Ambassador to France David K. Bruce and United States Minister Charles E. Bohlen will represent this country at Big Three talks in Paris next week.

(The announced purpose of the talks is to draft a United States-British-French reply to Russia's request for a Big Four Foreign Ministers' meeting on German disarmament. But it is possible that the discussion might be broadened to include the Korean crisis.)

Bevin disclosed that ever since the recent Russian proposal for a four-power conference on the future of Germany, the American, British and French governments have been in "continuous consultation."

Not On Germany Alone

He made it plain, however, that any such conference would not be held on Germany alone—that it must embrace all outstanding problems.

All three Allied governments had made it known that they would not agree to the conference Russia had suggested, to consider "unification" of Germanq on a Russian-set program.

The future of Germany, Bevin said, is very important, but would be "only a part of what would have to be discussed at any useful four-power meeting."

As Bevin spoke, Europe suffered its biggest attack of war jitters since 1939. Europeans of every walk of life, from statesmen to the humblest workers. Fear that World War III may be near—that Russia may strike at western Europe, virtually defenseless, while the Chinese Communists strike in Asia.

Stock markets here and elsewhere plummeted on the basis of the news from Korea and the general fear of war. The price of war-essential rubber skyrocketed in Singapore and London for the biggest day's price advance in history. Gold and silver bullion prices rose on the market in Bombay, India. European newspapers blasted Gen. Douglas MacArthur, accusing him of exceeding his authority and fearing that he might be starting a global war.

Bevin, however, defended MacArthur. He spoke after a one-hour and 45 minute emergency Cabinet meeting. He disclosed that he had been in communication with the State Department in Washington for 24 hours on the Korea situation and said that Britain agrees with American policy.

U. N. Troops Retreat Under Red Pressure

Numbers Will Win Present Korea Battle, Reporter Says, and Chinese Reds Have Them

By Tom Lambert

KUNU, Korea, Nov. 29 (AP).—The battle in northeast Korea is going to the side with the most men—and the Chinese Communists have them.

The Chinese Communists are surging down the center of North Korea heedless of losses—and their losses have been heavy indeed.

They strike against the Allied line in waves. They threaten not only the Chongchen River line but the entire United Nations position north of Pyongyang, the former North Korean capital.

Under the great weight of Chinese numbers, United States forces still are withdrawing along the river. It appears that soon the bridgehead west of the river will be abandoned.

Long lines of United States trucks and other vehicles crunch down the river's icy edges. They churn across the fast-flowing river out of the bridgehead from which the Allies launched their offensive last week.

Kunu, a town east of the river and 46 air miles north of Pyongyang, now is the northern extremity of the front in northeast Korea.

The front line which runs roughly 30 miles from the mouth of the Chongchon to Kunu is gravely menaced.

Late this afternoon the Chinese began attacking a South Korean unit east of this battered town. That probably is the prelude to a heavier assault tonight.

Only one United States unit stands northeast of Kunu. It may be flanked if the Chinese attack succeeds against the South Koreans to the east.

The situation here today is what the communiques might call "extremely fluid." But commanders on the front would call the situation "crucial."

Nearly all United States units except those on the extreme left, or western, end of the front have been hard hit, but the retreat is orderly.

Many South Korean units crumpled. The men are in retreat south and west, individually and in little knots.

The Turks fighting about 5 miles south of Kunu have been hit but their losses have not been extensive. They face a serious flank threat, however.

So do the British in the Sunchon area, 18 miles south of Kunu. The Chinese are driving down toward the British from around Tokchon, 30 miles northeast of Sunchon.

There also were disconcerting reports that thousands of Chinese Red cavalrymen were several miles northeast of Kunu.

Retreating British Think Of Dunkerque

WITH TWENTY - SEVENTH BRITISH COMMONWEALTH BRIGADE, Korea, Nov. 29—(U.P.). The northwest front is the saddest sight tonight since Dunkerque, the 1940 evacuation of the Allied armies from the Nazi-wracked continent of Europe.

Trucks crammed with supplies that it had taken weeks to bring forward tonight were headed south as fast as they could be driven.

Every unit not essential to the rear guard action now unquestionably is being ordered out of the combat area.

The road south is a confused, constant stream of vehicles with blazing headlights. The bumper-to-bumper traffic stretches for miles.

The areas that this morning held the rear supplies tonight are the front lines.

Roads supposedly behind the lines are criss-crossed with fire from fast-moving Chinese columns.

As we drove along this afternoon in an attempt to link up with American units which had been defending the bridgehead over the Chongchon River, we found the roads crowded with refugees streaming south afoot and in oxcarts.

Now and then they stared apprehensively at the United States fighter-bombers which swooped overhead in an effort to check the Chinese onslaught.

Beside the road, gasoline and supply dumps were burning.

In the hills to the right, men of the British Middlesex Regiment advanced with Bren guns and bayonets at the ready to knock out a Communist road block that had severed one of the main military supply routes.

Brigadier B. A. Coad ordered the Middlesex men back to a new defensive position tonight. They had taken 30 Chinese prisoners and killed many more who opened fire on them from the guerilla-infested hills which tower over nearly every main road.

Yesterday they marched more than 18 miles to escape encirclement north of Anju at the mouth of the Chongchon River.

Every American vehicle was needed to bring back the wounded. None could be spared to carry the British.

The atmosphere at brigade headquarters is, for those who remember, reminiscent of other days when our backs were against the wall.

Pilot's Rocket Strikes Bank, Earthslide Buries Enemy Unit

U. S. FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 29 (AP).—Allied planes killed several hundred attacking Chinese ground troops in northwest Korea today.

One small group was knocked out by a landslide started by an explosing rocket.

Capt. Richard C. Penrose of Orland, Calif., in a flight of F-51s, sighted the enemy groups crouching beside an embankment northeast of Huichon.

"When I hit them with a rocket the hill came tumbling down on them," said Penrose.

The Air Force, held down during the morning by bad weather, flew 107 close support missions, most of them concentrated in the area where the American Eighth Army is in retreat.

Pilots reported a heavy toll of Communist troops in the Kunu-Pakchon area, and also south of Tokchon.

Four F-80 jets strafed mounted Red cavalry south of Tokchon. Pilots reported 25 dead horses and 75 dead horsemen.

Four F-51 Mustangs fire-bombed a Communist observation post near Pakchon and reported leaving 150 enemy dead. Four other Mustang pilots said they killed 50 Red infantrymen between Pakchon and Chongju.

Near Kunu a lone B-26 spread fragmentation bombs among an estimated three regiments of Reds. This type of bomb is particularly effective against troops.

In one of the biggest single strikes of the day, 12 Mustangs raided a Communist stronghold in the area of Kanggye in far North Korea with napalm fire bombs, rockets and machinegun fire. They reported excellent results.

Czech Catholic Charges Pope Heads Spy Setup

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—A Catholic clergyman charged today that Pope Pius XII was the leader of a network of spies and director of "subversive activity," against the governments of eastern Europe.

Jan Opasek, 37, abbot of the Benedictine monastery in Brevnov and last of nine Catholic priests to testify in a treason and espionage trial in Pankrac prison here, said that the Pope "personally directs the activities of the Vatican state secretariat which is the headquarters of espionage and subversive activity against the People's Democracies."

Opasek said the Pope "spends more time on politics than on religion."

Legion Auxiliary Hits Move to Sell Russian Gifts

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 29 (U.P.). The American Legion Auxiliary charged today that Russian-made Christmas gift merchandise is being peddled to Americans through the mails and asked Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson to ban the advertising circulars.

Secretaries and presidents of the auxiliary from 48 States adopted a resolution condemning the practice at a national conference.

Mrs. Rae Ashton, Bernal, Utah, the auxiliary's national Americanism chairman, said letters are being circulated which offer "genuine Soviet and Czechoslovakian pure linens, with or without napkins, at almost half their value."

Mrs. Ashton said the envelopes bore the return address "Soviet Russia Today, 144 East 32d st., New York, N. Y." She said they were signed by "Donald Schoolman," as "business manager of Soviet Russia Today."

[NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—A spokesman for the publication, Soviet Russia Today, described as "utterly fantastic" an American Legion Auxiliary demand for a ban on circulars mailed by the magazine to advertise Soviet-made gifts.

[Donald Schoolman, business manager of the publication, said that "American concerns are currently buying manganese, a critical item from the USSR, yet we don't hear any cry raised that this should be banned because it is Communist manganese."]

Peru Blocks Off Colombia Embassy To Corner Haya

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—The Colombian Embassy was virtually isolated today as Peru awaited Colombia's reply to its formal demand for the surrender of opposition leader Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, a refugee in the Colombian Embassy for the past 23 months.

Roadblocks prevented approach within a block of the building. Heavily armed police surrounded the building. Police prowl cars and motorcycles stood by.

Peruvian police were taking no chances on a repetition of the flight from the Cuban Embassy several months ago of two high-ranking leaders of the outlawed Peruvian People's Party, which Haya heads. The two escaped refugees turned up in Havana

In a formal note, Foreign Minister Manuel C. Gallagher told Colombian Charge d'Affaires Aurelio Caicedo Ayerbe that the "improper asylum" given Haya must now come to an end, in compliance with a ruling by the World Court a week ago.

British Bacon Bonus

LONDON, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Food Minister Maurice Webb told Commons today that a Christmas bonus of two ounces of bacon would be added to the normal three-ounce ration for the week beginning December 17.

British Mock Air Fight Gives Hongkong Jitters

HONGKONG, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Four squadrons of British navy and Royal Air Force planes staged a make-believe air battle over Hongkong early today, increasing war jitters of the population.

Persons fearing World War III had begun besieged newspaper offices with telephone calls. One caller thought he had seen paratroopers dropping. Actually it was a weather balloon.

Europe Defense Held Too Weak to Stop Reds

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 29 (AP).—Soviet armies stationed in East Germany are in a position to grip Europe by the throat.

Allied intelligence officers say there are six such armies, made up of 33 divisons—10 of them heavily armored.

They consider that, if the Kremlin sends these armies on the march in support of China, continental Western Europe is finished.

Atlantic Past military men, aiming at 1953, say a minimum of 35 fully equipped divisions is needed to establish a defense along the Rhine River.

Their view is that the nine divisions on hand in West Germany would be chewed to ribbons in a sudden attack, trying to screen the flight of 45,000 American women and children dependents and a like number of British civilians living west of the Rhine.

Intelligence officers estimate the six Soviet armies are backed by 1500 Soviet ground support aircraft, of which more than half are jets.

The Soviet armies' manpower is estimated at 320,000. This is only about 100,000 more men than are in the Western defense forces, but a much higher proportion of the Westerners are service troops.

The Soviets have just re-equipped their armies with new weapons, including Joseph Stalin LI tanks, according to intelligence sources. They also have just finished lengthening and building new airfields in East Germany.

The question is whether events in Korea and the United Nations will induce them to move.

No one here knows the answer to that question.

Practically all of West Europe's available forces on combat status are stationed in West Germany.

These include two American, two British, three French and one Belgian division, plus one brigade of Norwegians and one brigade of Danes.

Against the estimated 1500 Soviet planes would be 180 American jets, plus a handful of RAF planes stationed in Germany. Britain could throw in reserve fighters, but it is doubtful if there would be enough to gain even local command of the air.

Russians Are Reported Boosting Austria Force

VIENNA, Nov. 29 (AP).—An increase in Russian troop strength in Austria, possibly connected with normal Soviet maneuvers, was reported tonight by Austrian government sources.

The sources said Russian strength has jumped in the last few weeks from 44,000 to 50,000 men, but they added: "There is no apparent cause for worry."

American intelligence quarters refused to discuss the reports.

Most Russian soldiers in Austria are concentrated in troop areas surrounding the four-power city of Vienna, where the Western allies have a total of about 6000 men and their families.

76 Army Officers Held As Thai Plot Suspects

BANGKOK, Thailand, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Seventy-six army officers suspected of plotting to overthrow the government of Premier Pibul Songgram have been arrested and are being held in various military establishments around Bangkok, it was reported today.

Informed sources said yesterday that police averted a weekend plot to assassinate the Premier and take over the government, but denied that army officers were involved.

Forest Heights Marine Gets Arm Wound

Marine Corpl. Arthur E. Marshall, 21, was wounded on November 19 in the Korean fighting, according to a Defense Department telegram received by his parents yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Marshall, 115 Ralph st., Forest Heights, Md., who received the notice, had learned in a letter from one of their son's buddies that he suffered a bullet wound in the left arm.

Corporal Marshall arrived in Korea September 1 with the Seventh Regiment, First Division, his parents said. He was assigned to a flame-thrower group and saw action as an acting sergeant, his parents said.

Born in DuBois, Pa., he came to Washington with his family about 10 years ago. He attended Anacostia High School, enlisted in 1947 and served aboard the aircraft carrier Leyte. From Camp LeJeune, N. C., he went to the West Coast for three weeks of intensive training, then was shipping to Korea.

According to his father, Marshall fought in four major engagements including that at Seoul. His father works for the Naval Research Laboratory.

Fraternity House Burns at DePauw

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Nov. 29 (AP).—Lambda Chi Alpha's 48 members and pledges were homeless today as their fraternity house stood in smouldering ruins. Other DePauw University fraternities and dormitories took them in last night after fire drove them into the cold.

The fire started slowly in wiring in the walls. This gave members time to save most of their possessions and house furnishings. The building was built in 1927 and was redecorated last fall at a cost of $20,000.

Capt. McDermott Gets Virginia Defense Post

Former Virginia State Police Capt. Edward J. McDermott yesterday was named deputy coordinator of police for the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council.

McDermott

McDermott, now a Fairfax County deputy sheriff, was appointed at a meeting of police chiefs from Alexandria, Fairfax County and Falls Church, three of the four communities embraced by the regional council. Arlington Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard was unable to attend.

The appointment was suggested by Maj. Edgar Sims, chief of the Alexandria force, and was indorsed by Maj. Carl McIntosh of Fairfax and Capt. Elliott Howe of Falls Church.

As coordinator of police, McDermott will serve as liaison agent between the four police departments and Retired Army Gen. Jacob L. Devers, director of the regional council. He also will supervise dissemination of public information about the four departments in their relationship to civilian defense.

McDermott, an Alexandria native, retired from the State police force last September 1 after 25 years of service. He was appointed a deputy sheriff in Fairfax November 1.

A former chief of the Alexandria Fire Department, he joined the State police force in 1925. In 1938, he was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant in recognition of his part in solving the Stafford County slaying of Elmer John Davidson, a Washington attorney.

According to tentative plans, McDermott will make his civilian defense headquarters at the Fairfax County police substation at Groveton.

Navy Officer Pleads Guilty

BOSTON, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—A Navy lieutenant pleaded guilty today to selling promotions and "soft duty" to enlisted men.

Lieut. William G. Bigony, 31, Holbrook, Mass., who worked up through enlisted ranks during 13 years of duty, entered a blanket plea of guilty at the outset of his general courtmartial.

His voice trembling with emotion, Bogony pleaded for clemency. He blamed his wife's illness, the housing shortage and overwork for his trouble.

The officer faces a possible maximum sentence of 18 years imprisonment on six counts of bribery and dismissal from the service on the lesser counts of conduct unbecoming an officer and violation of Navy regulations.

Truman Board

11 Appointed To Supervise Point Four

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday set up a board of experts to supervise developments under the Point Four program to "strengthen the free world against the dangers" of communism.

Mr. Truman named 11 persons to serve with Chairman Nelson D. Rockefeller on the new advisory board on international development.

"The encouragement of economic and social progress in the underdeveloped areas is one of the most important problems facing the free world," Mr. Truman's statement said. "This is particularly true in those countries of Asia where the Communist menace is so great."

Those named to the board were:

Robert P. Daniel, president of Virginia State College; Harvey S. Firestone, jr., chairman of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany.

John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College.

Margaret A. Hickey, educator, lawyer and business woman of University City, Mo.

Lewis G. Hines, special representative of the American Federation of Labor.

Thomas Parran, former Surgeon General and now dean of the Graduate School of Public Health, University of Pittsburgh.

Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer.

Jacob F. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

John L. Savage, chief designing engineer of Grand Coulee and Hoover Dams and consulting engineer of power and irrigation projects in Europe and Asia.

Charles L. Wheeler, Redwood City, Calif., shipping and lumber executive.

Mr. Truman issued his statement and announced the appointments when the new board called on him at the White House.

"Since the launching of the Point Four program, the outbreak of overt aggression in Korea has compelled all free nations to speed up every effort to strengthen the free world against the dangers which confront it," the President said.

He added that there is a relationship between strengthening the under-developed areas of Asia and elsewhere and the strengthening of free peoples everywhere.

He said two thirds of the world's peoples suffer from hunger, disease, ignorance and poverty.

"These people have already determined that there shall be change, come what may," Mr. Truman said. "The real question now is what direction that change shall take—whether it will blindly sweep aside many of the values that free peoples have learned to cherish, or whether it will contribute toward a more peaceful, prosperous world."

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 29 (NYHT).—The average American is the world's richest man, with an annual income of $1453. The average Russian is about a fifth as well off, with $308 a year. The average Chinese is almost the world's poorest, with $27.

This was revealed today when the United Nations statistical office whisked the curtain from its long-restricted estimates of the nations' incomes.

With many cautions about their varying reliability, the figures on the world's rich and poor had been compiled for use of various U. N. organs in such projects as figuring out annual dues payments. They were finally released "for purposes of economic analysis."

Out of a total income of some $515,000,000,000 for 70 countries representing 90 percent of the world's people and 95 percent of the world's income, the United States national income topped the field, with 216,831,000,000. The Soviet Union was runner up at $59,500,000,000. On a per-capita basis, the average Russian ranked twenty-third.

One third the world's people—in the 12 poorest countries—have less than $50 a year, and less than one tenth of the world's total income, according to the study, which was based on 1949 data.

One-half the world's people—in the poorest 25 countries—average less than $100 a piece, or a total of less than one-tenth the world's total income.

On the basis of total income, the 10 richest nations were the United States, $216,831,000,000; Soviet Union, $59,500,000,000; United Kingdom, $38,922,000,000; France, $19,857,000,000; India, $19,572,000,000; West Germany, $15,300,000,000; China, $12,384,000,000; Canada, $11,797,000,000, Italy, $10,800,000,000; Japan, $8,260,000,000.

Scrap Rubber Tires on Way to Red China

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

UNFIT FOR USE—More than 1000 bales of auto and truck tires, consigned to Taku Bar and Tientsin, in Communist China, await slashing under a Commerce Department order designed to prevent their being reused on Red vehicles. Customs officials in San Francisco say the tires, even before being slashed, are completely unfit for use by the Reds

O'Conor Eyes Goods for Reds

By The Associated Press

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), called yesterday for a full investigation of Government trade policies, following "shocking" facts he said were uncovered about shipments to Communist China.

He introduced a resolution proposing a continuing study of export control legislation. Particular attention would be focused on how to prevent shipments of strategic materials to Communist-dominated areas.

O'Conor is acting chairman of the Senate Commerce Subcommittee which developed information about shipments of oil, copper, steel and other war-useful goods to China.

He said the subcommittee, for lack of help, has been unable to follow up a great number of leads.

In a statement proposing that the Commerce Committee undertake a full study, O'Conor summed up evidence of large shipments of strategic materials to Red China, some of them since the start of the Korean war last June 25.

He said he was sure Senators would "be surprised to learn how lenient a view has been taken by the responsible Federal agencies with regard to permitting these materials to get into Communist hands, possibly to be used to spread death and destruction among our own and U. N. forces in Korea."

O'Conor said progress has been made toward preventing further shipments to China from this country, and also from occupied Japan. But he said it is essential "to have other nations allied with us throughout the world take appropriate measures to prevent transshipments and leakage of supplies."

Publisher Charges U. S. Rebuffed USSR Overtures

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—The United States has failed to use the "normal procedures of diplomacy" to find areas of agreement with Russia and may now be "prisoners of our own propaganda" newspaper publisher John S. Knight said today.

Knight said that a 1949 offer to open peace discussions by Stalin was "curtly dismissed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson as 'Russian propaganda'."

"Russian demands on the United Nations are countered by American threats; vituperation is met with acrimony," Knight said in an address before the Chicago better Business Bureau.

Nehru Seeks Pact On Nepal's Future

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru urgently sought an agreement with Nepal today on the future of that buffer state between India and Tibet.

It was announced officially that Nehru and Vice Premier Vallabhbhai Patel opened negotiations today with Gen. Kaiser Shumsher Rana, Nepalese Defense Minister, and Bijava Shumsher Rana, director general of the External Affairs Ministry.

Sources said that the negotiations were being conducted on an urgent basis because of new reports that the boy Lama of Tibet was about to flee his capital of Lhasa to escape the invading Chinese Communists.

A dispatch to the newspaper Statesman said a 100-mule pack train bearing gold, silver, jewels and other treasure of the 16-year-old Lama had arrived at Phari Dzong, 70 miles northeast of the Indian frontier city of Kalimpong, and that the boy ruler was considering whether the time had come for him to flee his capital.

It was understood that Nehru was pressing for parliamentary and other reforms in Nepal instead of the present dictatorship. The Nepalese envoys are willing to agree to reforms, but not to commit themselves to a timetable, it was said.

Life Quotes Greek Queen on Farouk Episode; Egypt Recalls Envoy, Diplomatic Rift Hinted

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 29 (AP).—Life magazine article quoting statements by Queen Frederika of Greece about a "high Egyptian personality" (King Farouk) created diplomatic tension today. Egypt recalled her Ambassador to Greece in protest.

The Wafdist newspaper Al Misri speculated that diplomatic relations might be severed. Egypt's acting Foreign Minister, Ibrahim Farag, said the quarrel has "not yet reached this stage." Farag planned to consult with the recalled Ambassador, Adly Andrawus, Thursday.

Georges Triantafyllidis, Greek Ambassador to Egypt, declared through his press attache last week that the statements attributed to the Queen "are absolutely imaginary," but this did not satisfy Egypt.

The contents of the article are not available here. Life magazine was banned from Egypt by the Council of Ministers last May 10.

The May 10 ban developed after Life printed a story about Farouk titled, "The Problem King of Egypt." Last week the magazine published an interview by William Atwood with Queen Frederika, 33-year-old German-born wife of Kink Paul I, titled, "The Queen Who Made Good." A paragraph read:

"Her charms are not, however, confined to her personality. When he was 88, the late Liberal Premier, Themistocles Sophoulis, referred to her privately as 'Quite a dish.' A Texas Congressman left the palace burbling that his State could sure use a Queen like Frederika and she eventually caught the eye of Egypt's King Farouk.

"One day in 1941 she was sitting in a small Cairo drawing room talking to Queen Farida, whom she had known for some years, when Farouk walked in. 'He didn't know who I was,' Frederika recalled to me, 'but he took one look, ordered his wife out of the room and switched off the light.

"I was quite terrified. If I had slapped his face I knew it might cause all sorts of international complications. So I just stood up and said: "That very big man outside in the naval uniform is my husband and I love him very much." Farouk simply laughed, turned on the light and walked out."

Life's managing editor, Edward K. Thompson, commented in New York: "While William Atwood is a free-lance writer in the magazine field, Life has complete confidence in his integrity as a reporter."

Witness Says Ilse Kicked Out 13 Teeth

AUGSBURG, Germany, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—A former inmate of the Nazi Buchenwald concentration camp looked Ilse Koch in the eye today and asked the court's permission to kick out 13 of her teeth.

Ludwig Tobias, a 52-year-old salesman, remembered the 13 teeth he lost at Buchenwald and appeared voluntarily to tell the German court how Ilse had kicked them out with the heel of her riding boot.

Frau Koch, known as the "Beast of Buchenwald," is on trial for atrocities allegedly committed against Germans while living at Buchenwald as the wife of the camp superintendent.

Tobias said that, while he was a prisoner at Buchenwald, he took a piece of bread from the ledge of a fence at the Koch house and took a bite of it.

"Frau Koch appeared, screaming for a guard, who knocked me down," Tobias said. "Then she struck me across the face with a riding whip, then kicked my teeth out. Later I was sent to the whipping block for 25 lashes."

Frau Koch stood and shouted in answer that Tobias' statement was "all lies."

Earlier, she sat motionless as accusers showed her tattooed skin allegedly taken from murdered Buchenwald prisoners. During Frau Koch's earlier trial by an allied court it was charged that she had lampshades made from tattooed human skin.

Six pieces of human skin were handed to the chief judge today.

Reasons For Retreat

As the military debacle in Korea becomes a little clearer, a few conjectures are now possible as to causes:

1. One of the worst things that can happen to a field commander is to mount a strong offensive at the precise moment that the enemy is mounting a stronger offensive. Lines are thrown off balance and any advantage of concentration is thus lost.

2. As a corollary, a field commander invites chaos when he weakens one flank of his forces in order to attack through the other flank at the same time that the enemy does exactly the same thing. This brings a sort of S-maneuver, with a complete reversal of positions—a reversal which in turn endangers communication lines and invites entrapment.

3. Finally, these conditions are compounded when enemy capabilities have been miscalculated. It is a well-known military failing to overestimate enemy capabilities in defense and underestimate them when you plan an attack. Intentions are at best hard to determine, but the assessment of enemy potentialities is a fundamental function of good military intelligence.

All three misfortunes seem to have happened in Korea. However, although there can be no glossing over the gravity of the situation, it is not yet hopeless. Military men here are reasonably confident that the line can be stabilized in the narrow part of the Korean peninsula between Pyongyang and Wonsan provided that the Chinese do not concentrate great masses of additional troops in Korea. Counting all U. N. forces available, there are something more than 200,000 combat troops which can be brought to bear against what now appears to be approximately the same number of Chinese. These probably would be ineffective, of course, if the Chinese were to commit their available forces in Manchuria for an all-out drive, causing consideration of withdrawal from Korea altogether.

A Plea To Congress

For a full decade, the Americans who live in the District of Columbia have petitioned Congress, in the patient, orderly, democratic manner prescribed by the Constitution, to grant them the elementary human right of self-government. A careful study of the home rule problem was made in the Seventy-ninth Congress. A carefully drawn bill embodying the fruits of that study was introduced in the Eightieth Congress but died there without ever being brought to a vote. A similar measure was introduced in the Eighty-first Congress and passed by the Senate; but the House of Representatives has never had a chance to vote upon it. With all the earnestness at our command, we urge the leadership and the members of the House to seize this chance and to decide the issue now, before the Eighty-first Congress passes into history.

Let us restate very briefly the arguments for home rule. They are grounded at once in considerations of expediency and in considerations of principle. First, the management of District affairs by the Congress of the United States is wasteful and inefficient. It is as imprudent and inappropriate for the Congress to function as a municipal council for this community as it would be for it to attempt to frame local legislation for Baltimore, Md., or Seattle, Wash. Its members, no matter how conscientious, cannot be genuinely responsive to the wishes and needs of this community because they are not responsible to the community. They can devote time to the problems of their wards in Washington only as they take time from the problems of their constituents at home. Congress was created to serve as a legislature for the Nation; the basic idea of a Federal Union is violated by its management of purely local affairs. From the point of view of the members of Congress, the management of the District of Columbia is an embarrassment which ordinary common sense should impel them to shed.

Second, so long as the people of the District of Columbia are tied to the apron strings of Congress, they will not—indeed, they cannot—deal adequately with their own problems. Apathy and neglect are the inevitable offspring of irresponsibility. The normal corrective to maladministration—repudiation at the polls—is not available to Washingtonians. As a result, the deficiencies in the city's school system, in its police protection, in its recreation facilities, in its housing go uncorrected. Dependency is as corrupting to a community as to an individual. It is a lamentable truth that the people of Washington now lack even the spirit to rise in rebellion against a colonial status which ought to seem intolerable to all Americans.

Third, the denial of self-government to the District does injury to the good name of the United States and to the whole structure of American society. The men who planned a model Capital City on the banks of the Potomac had no thought that it would be an enclave ruled like Berlin by the representatives of remote occupying States. They took for granted that a republican form of government would be guaranteed here as elsewhere within the Federal Union. The country as a whole, no less than the District of Columbia itself, must suffer corruption from a continued disregard of its own basic values. The one argument in favor of home rule that should, in the minds of Americans, override all others is that continued denial of the right of government by the consent of the governed is deeply and debasingly un-American.

The opportunity to liberate the District of Columbia is readily at hand. The home rule bill can be brought to the floor of the House by a discharge petition which already has nearly the requisite number of signatures—if only a handful of representatives will sign it at once. It can be brought to the floor if the District Committee which has kept it pigeonholed for so long will only submit it to a democratic test. To let this legislation lapse now would be a tragic waste. It would also be, we think, an act of despotic arrogance. We ask only that the people of Washington be given the fundamental rights of American citizenship.

Forgotten Strike

More than three months have passed since the Government seized the Nation's railroads following the strike of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Although negotiations have continued, little has happened in the interim to give much promise of an early settlement. In fact, two new groups, the firemen and the enginemen, have complicated the picture with additional demands for wage increases.

Government control, to be sure, has been only nominal, and has been exercised through railroad presidents commissioned as Army colonels. Union members and other railway employes have stayed on the job as usual. Nevertheless, the diversion of Army supervisory personnel to the six operating districts and two subdistricts is both an expense and a distraction which can ill be borne in the international crisis.

The real trouble is that under Government seizure there is no compulsion on either side to negotiate—and that is the great fallacy of looking to Government intervention as the solution for disputes. The Government needs more precise power than it relied on in this case to take over industries of national importance in times of emergency, but only as protection to the general welfare. Government dictation of working conditions would be ultimately as unpalatable to unions as to management.

In this instance the strike occurred when the unions turned down recommendations of a special emergency board appointed by the President under the Railway Labor Act after the railroad companies had accepted them. In a sense this was arbitration without compulsion. Possibly, in view of the new demands, what the unions are waiting for is a general railroad settlement. Any new offers from management are their own affair, but the Government cannot afford to be party to any hijacking operation that disregards the recommendations of the emergency board. Perhaps a statement to this effect would introduce more reality into the negotiations. If facesaving is what is needed, the aggravated war situation offers an opportunity. The longer the dispute drags on, the more impetus it gives to the demand for some scheme of enforced governmental settlement in which the unions could hardly expect to win more than they already have been offered.

Shield Of Asia

The motivation and policy of Communist China are now laid bare for the first time in the extraordinary statement to the U. N. Security Council by Wu Hsiu-chuan. Mr. Wu was presenting a case of American "aggression" in Formosa. But he did not stick to it. This was merely a peg upon which to hang a comprehensive indictment of American "imperialism" in Far Eastern Asia—in the Philippines, in Indo-China, in Formosa, in China, in Korea, and in Japan. The allegation, however, centered on the aid that has been given to Chiang Kai-shek, the intervention after civil war broke out, the sustenance of Chiang in the "American colony" of "China's" Formosa, the extracurricular actions and utterances of General MacArthur—all aimed at showing that "American imperialism has taken the place of Japanese imperialism." We are the villain of the piece—the only villain. Mr. Wu's manner of delivery was as harsh and as intransigent as his anti-American protest. When he said, "The Chinese people will never forget their blood debt against the American imperialists," he made it sound as if he were hurling a declaration of war at Washington.

It is now clear beyond any possibility of a doubt that, whatever China's present military dispositions in Korea may be, her intervention there has no limited objective. To be sure, Mr. Wu spoke of the threat to China's security arising out of armed conflict in a neighboring country. What he chose to call "the United States armed aggression against Korea"

> . . . cannot be regarded as a matter which concerns the Korean people alone. No, decidedly not. Members of the Security Council; the United States aggression against Korea gravely endangers the security of the People's Republic of China. The Korean People's Democratic Republic is a country bound by close ties of friendship to the People's Republic of China. Only a river separates the two countries geographically. The Chinese people cannot afford to stand idly by in the face of this serious situation brought about by the United States Government's aggression against Korea and the dangerous tendency toward the extension of war.

However, China's intervention in Korea is evidently part of a grand design which is semicontinental, if not continental, in scope. It is the initial move in a policy aimed at preventing any Western aid to Far Eastern Asian governments which are now under fire from within. Nor will this be merely a negative policy. Bluntly Mr. Wu made it plain that the Chinese will actively support the rebels along that vast arc of territory against constituted authority.

Thus the Chinese Communists have thrown down the gage to the Western world. They intend to become the shield of Asia in precisely the same way that under the Monroe Doctrine we became the shield of the Americas. Mr. Wu's deposition was actually the tocsin of an anti-imperialist crusade in Asia. If there were overtones of imperialism in this anti-imperialism, it was rationalized in a sort of Sinofied Vishinsky Doctrine—that is to say, aggression is not aggression when it is waged against Western "imperialists" and their "puppets."

This parallel with Soviet policy will, of course, be stressed, but, truth to tell, there is little Communist ideology in the Peking declaration, and the references to the Soviet Union are sparse. Where they occur they show that the Communist regime regards Moscow as its firm ally and only friend. History was stretched to wafer thinness, indeed, to demonstrate it, as in the sentence that the power of Japanese imperialism in China was smashed "mainly because of the efforts and sacrifices of the Chinese people and of the Soviet Union"! Yet the xenophobia is authentically Chinese. It has the familiar ring of the anti-colonial and anti-foreign chants of the Asia of the last generation. Chiang Kai-shek himself spoke or wrote this kind of thing in the heyday of his revolutionary activity. The difference is that the Communist Chinese are confident of their power to be the nemesis of the Western World in Asia.

There was only a slight attempt at diplomacy in Mr. Wu's tirade. Consistently he referred to "American aggression" in Korea. If he thought that by this tactic he could divide the United States from its fellow-members of the United Nations, he was profoundly mistaken. Before the speech the United Nations had been wavering over the problem of Chinese involvement in Korea. But the speech brought the free nation members together. But—on what? None can see a chink in the document which would provide any such hope as we lingeringly expressed yesterday for a general settlement with China. Too much bad blood, evidently, has been spilled already. The tone of the blast is hard as iron, almost savage, and instinct with hate for the white man. This means that all hope of a place for Communist China in the United Nations has gone aglimmering. This China has no place among peace-loving nations. Nor, for that matter, has Russia. If the Chinese fail to obey the United Nations and withdraw from Korea, then the free world must concert action for the preservation of Western civilization. The Chinese document should come as a clarion call to unity of the Western world to save itself—not to salvage the remains of Western imperialism and influence on the mainland of Asia; and this involves some basic recxamination of strategy and policy—and at the very roots. If Mr. Wu, with his classic and historical statement, will not provoke unity, nothing will.

Dangerous Censorship

President Truman has instructed the Budget Bureau to see that Government agencies withhold statistical information that might be useful to enemy agencies. Of course a certain amount of censorship is essential to safeguard information about the details of the rearmament program. But a sharp distinction should be made between censorship of this kind and censorship of statistical data of a comprehensive nature relating to industrial and agricultural production, employment prices, etc. If statistical reports of the latter description regularly issued by Government agencies, were to be withheld from the public, intelligent criticism of the Government's economic programs and policies would be prevented and business forecasting—an invaluable aid to industries that have to anticipate the needs of the future—would become a lost art.

Enemy spies can undoubtedly learn much more about the operations of industries turning out defense goods by observation on the spot than they can from a study of official statistics gathered from many sources. Even admitting that the Government's numerous indices and statistical compilations may be of some slight use to agents of foreign powers, nonpublication of such data would do infinitely more harm than good. For the American people cannot be depended on to support wholeheartedly defense policies that require personal sacrifices unless they know why sacrifices are necessary. Nor can American industrialists be expected to make a maximum contribution to production if denied access to information that assists them to make decisions about the conduct of their business.

Using The A-Bomb

It seems to me that the Gallup poll published November 27 on what the people think about the efficacy of the atom bomb has been grossly misinterpreted in the accompanying remarks and in the headline given to the article.

The poll shows clearly that of the people who had any opinion to express, three out of every four thought that the atom bomb would help the United States greatly to win a war. At least one out of every four of these people who had an opinion to express, thought that the atom bomb would enable us to win very easily. Less than one out of four thought that the bomb would make no great difference.

It would appear that the facts are being twisted and obscured by those forces that cling tenaciously to the traditional and conventional methods of fighting wars. This, I think, is revealed by interjection into the article of the air-power versus sea-power quarrel.

The Best Propaganda

Mr. Frederick C. McKee states in his letter of November 19 that "up to now we have been losing the war of words." He asks for "the best brains, backed by sufficient money" for propaganda; for "a new Government department," which among other things, should supervise . . . publications, films, radio, etc., transmitted abroad by our Government.

I submit that this approach to the problem is wrong. Propaganda is a weapon in the use of which the dictatorships will always have the advantage of the democracies, unless it is conceived as something other than a war of words. We cannot compete with the big lies of the dictators.

Democracy is not superior by words but by its spirit and its deeds. Words are important only if they are the body of deeds originating in the democratic spirit. Such words were Woodrow Wilson's Fourteen Points.

America has never needed propaganda. It has been known as the land of the free. The foreigner approaching New York Harbor looked forward to the Statue of Liberty. Today, he worries about Ellis Island. This is only one instance of the damage we inflict ourselves on our reputation abroad.

The Crusade for Freedom should begin at home, and our message abroad should contain a positive and fair plan for enduring peace, to which this time we will stick.

Pakhtunistan

In your issue of November 22 is a letter from Sayad Amir Shah who presents as reality what is no more than his own imaginings. He says: "The Pakistan government has again claimed the free Pakhtun territory between Afghanistan and Pakistan and its people as subjects of Pakistan."

Pakistan does not claim and has never claimed any territory or people who have not been an integral part of Pakistan since the day it was established. Mr. Amir Shah contradicts himself. In one breath he says that Pakhtunistan is an independent territory with a legislature and government of its own and in the next says that Pakistan has imprisoned Pakhtun leaders. How can a government imprison the leaders of another country?

Actually, Pakhtunistan has no existence except in the imagination of Afghanistan government circles and a handful of their hirelings abroad. The idea has no support whatever among the Pathan inhabitants of Pakistan. They look upon themselves as a part of Pakistan as much as any other of the Pakistani brethren.

To maintain peace in the area the British used to keep a considerable force there before August, 1947. The whole of that force was withdrawn on the ground that its maintenance might have been necessary for an alien government but was not necessary for the government of Pakistan which was the people's own government. That departure from established practice has been fully vindicated by tribal devotion to Pakistan and complete tranquillity since.

"Absurd Law"

Reference is made to your editorial of November 18 entitled "Absurd Law." Does the writer know that 97 percent of all the people reaching the age of 65 are not entirely self-supporting, that at 65 and beyond most persons require more medical and hospital care and at the same time are refused group health insurance and their former policies are cancelled?

Funeral expenses are not too far away. Would the writer of your article advocate burial by charity or just a last trip to a fertilizer plant?

Editor's Note: Our correspondent has missed the point of the editorial, which was that tax exemptions, making no discrimination between the rich and the poor, are an equitable form of tax relief. Many dependent aged people have no taxable income and the limited relief provided for those who do pay taxes by special exemption privileges is negligible. The Washington Post is fully aware that the great majority of people over 65 years of age are not entirely self-supporting, and has always indorsed proposals for liberalizing the Federal old-age insurance system and reducing the number of the aged dependent on public or private charity.

British Medicine

With reference to readers' letters of November 21 and 25 on British socialized medicine, I lived in Great Britain before and during the birth of this most unwelcome child. I would emphatically maintain that the quality of medical and dental attention has in no wise deteriorated, in spite of the fact that doctors and dentists are grossly overworked, and are not being given a square deal by the government, which keeps them waiting an endless time for the most unsatisfactory payments. Too much time is wasted on form-filling.

This health scheme now includes those persons who were previously outside any national health insurance, those who are actually the ones who needed it most. Firstly, the children who are now treated free of charge, and then the wife and mother of the family who so often neglected medical attention for herself because the finances would not stretch that far.

What was unexpected was the abuse made of these services by the unscrupulous and the hypochondriacs who are able to enjoy the more expensive ailments.

The patients benefit from any new and costly drugs and medicine which, on account of the cost, were previously denied them. They also receive hospital and surgical treatment.

Whether socialized medicine is a good or a bad thing is difficult to determine at this short stage. Any new project requires a few years and much capital before it can be pronounced a success. The thing to be feared is bungling at the top, as well as the human factor that people do not appreciate getting something for nothing, even if they are paying for it in a roundabout way.

There is, however, a very serious shortage of doctors, whose ranks are not likely to become swollen with present government tactics. The medical profession is not one you can just draft people into. Therefore it should be hands off this profession.

No Acheson Resignation

I am puzzled by your treatment of Mr. Acheson. You have praised him many times for his conduct of his office. Yet lately you appear to be edging up alongside those who want to see him lay down its direction.

So far as I understand your position, you seem to feel that, despite his exceptional qualifications, his usefulness for public office has been badly impaired by the abuse to which he has been subjected. I had myself rather regarded this abuse as the measure of his integrity and steadfastness in a position that requires the highest of both.

You have repeatedly and honorably attacked McCarthyism. Yet you appear now to be urging the Secretary of State to an action that is precisely what McCarthyism was designed to achieve. It is rumored that Mr. Acheson would like to resign. If so, he is certainly entitled to, for he has served his country well under circumstances of the greatest difficulty. But if he leaves the Cabinet, I hope it will not be by way of yielding to the outcry of those who have used him as a symbol to discredit the Administration. I am particularly unhappy to find The Washington Post dawdling on the edge of this unsavory company for reasons which appear obscure and, if I can fathom them at all, holly inadequate. The Administration has its genuinely vulnerable points, but I have never thought of Mr. Acheson as being one of them.

You say, in a recent comment on this subject, that the fierce and hostile spotlight that plays upon Mr. Acheson will be turned upon his successor? And whom do you have in mind so well qualified for the job? I possess no inside information on these matters, but it is my impression that Mr. Acheson is head and shoulders above any Secretary of State we have had for decades. His famous statement on Alger Hiss, which I recall you viewed with disapproval, I thought to be one of the finest and most courageous utterances of a public man in our time and one of the very few statements of public officials to show any relation to a practicing Christianity.

If you have some cogent reasons for wanting Mr. Acheson replaced, I hope you will make a clear statement of them, so that your readers can form their own estimate of their value. It does not seem consistent with The Post's forthright and informed position on most public questions that you should engage in an attempt to ease him out of office by oblique means.

Could it be that you are privately not quite convinced that the elections were the sweeping Republican victory that most of your journalistic colleagues announced them to be, so that you require some signal act of contrition by the Administration, such as the departure of the Secretary of State, to resolve your doubts? If so, stop nudging and let the event take care of itself. It will have more evidential value if you refrain from shaking the tree and let the fruit fall when it is ripe.

Explaining The 'Why's'

By Malvina Lindsay

Job in Rearmament

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Anyone who has had any connection with rail travel during the recent snowstorm saw the American people running true to form. They took inconvenience, discomfort, delay, danger with poise—provided someone told them what it was all about. But the theme song echoed in train and railway stations was that of Sherwood Anderson's famous short story, I Want to Know Why.

Among many who arrived in the station here cold, hungry, late for travel connections, ran a general plaint—train crews wouldn't tell them anything, often were curt when questioned. Probably the harassed train crews didn't know the answers. Probably gatemen, information men, railway officials at this and other stations didn't know either. But they missed a big chance at good public relations by not telling frankly and patiently just what they did know, or in making courteous confession of ignorance.

My travel was only on the edge of the storm. But I frequently felt a glow of pride in my fellow Americans at the way they hurled questions at train commissars whenever anything seemingly out of the usual happened. They acted as if it were their inalienable right to ask anybody anything—and to get an answer. Questions flew up and down the cars, the same ones, endlessly repeated. Why had we stopped? Would we be late? How late? How heavy was the snow? Would it keep on?

HOW TYPICAL was all this, I thought, of American curiosity and self-assurance! And how far those qualities had taken Americans! Yes it was something to live in a country where people when they wanted to know the why about anything—even why a train was switching—felt free to shout the question.

And this was a lesson for not only railway employes but for Government officials and statesmen. Americans had to have things diagrammed. And right now, on the heels of election demagoguery and the "new war" in Korea, a lot of explaining about the country's affairs needed to be done.

Riding through the flat level stretch from Cincinnati to St. Louis, looking out at the widely scattered, self-sufficient farmhouses and recurrent towns and villages, I had the usual "This is it!" feeling. This was the place where people always felt remote from foreign danger and complacent about it. Yet—wasn't I perhaps thinking in a stereotyped pattern?

Later, after conversations on the train and off it, I had the feeling that the rural and small town Midwest was in a strange contradiction of feeling. It was complacent about Soviet bombs, but jittery about Soviet ideology. It feared the Communist under the bed more than the one in a plane.

People in little towns in Missouri admitted St. Louis and Kansas City might be in danger zones, but they were among the "safe." The same feeling persisted in rural Indiana and Illinois, train passengers reported. Apparently no one among the self-appointed safe ever questioned his luck in being among those who would pick up the pieces after an atomic war.

FEW PEOPLE in these places, as in other parts of the country, seem to have much conception of the Korean war in relation to this country's part in the world picture.

But the Communist under the bed, in the lodge, the Sunday school class or the canasta club, is something else. Speak of that and complacency vanishes. Several times I heard that "all our organizations" were honeycombed with Communist spies, that in fact, "they" were operating everywhere.

Strange how ideas can seem so much more frightening than bullets or bombs! Strange how we seem to have more faith in our B-36s and in Oak Ridge than we do in our free institutions and our own minds!

The biggest information job facing national leaders and all others who comprehend the world situation is to help the ordinary American see the Korean conflict and the rearmament program in their bigger aspects of time and place. And the many people jittery over spies in their midst need a more positive approach to dealing with communism than merely to clean all nonconformists out of the clubs and run all foreigners out of town.

People generally, excepting those wanting their prejudices vindicated, are eager for truthful straight-from-the-shoulder explanations about what the country faces. But whether they are eager or not, the explanation has to be gotten to them. They are not the type to "do and die" without reasoning why, as their behavior on stalled trains reveals.

"Letter To The Chinese"

My hearty thanks for your editorial of November 24, "Letter to the Chinese." In its soft tone it simply and clearly explains America's pacific intentions toward China.

It is, of course, not necessary to tell the delegates from Mao Tze-tung to the United Nations what United States intentions are. Yet, to have all this published in a popular paper makes a lot of difference. It puts the facts in the open for everyone to see.

If the unleashing of Chinese armies was done to protect Chinese territory from United States aggression, this "Letter to the Chinese" and similar statements will enlighten public opinion and, we hope, cause it to influence this issue in favor of a speedy end to the tragic war.

MacArthur Story

By Marquis Childs

Drama Versus Realism

SHORTLY after VJ-Day one of America's most distinguished historians was sent to every theater of the war on a survey trip. His assignment from Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson was to line up the great body of raw material that would eventually be used in writing the history of the conflict.

Childs

He talked with the commanders of the European armies and then in Tokyo he sat down with Gen. Douglas MacArthur. In the course of their conversation the historian expressed particular interest in one of the battles of MacArthur's Philippine campaign.

"I had the impression, general," he said, "that your left flank at that point was exceedingly weak. That, in fact, it may have been dangerously weak."

MacArthur's response was immediate. He congratulated the historian on his perceptivity. He explained with all the drama of his dramatic personality the hazards of the undertaking and how they had been overcome.

A day or two later the inquiring historian put the same question to Gen. Walter Kreuger, who had been MacArthur's chief of staff in the Philippines. Kreuger replied that, far from being weak, the forces disposed on the left flank had been at least ample and probably excessive. The perplexed historian argued that surely this could not be true. He was convinced only when Kreuger called for the tables of organization which showed that Kreuger was correct.

WHAT the wise historian recognized in this incident was General MacArthur's irresistible urge for the dramatic. He had readily convinced himself that the drama of this particular battle was of an even more heroic order than it actually was.

MacArthur is said to be the only commander of World War II who has declined to make the documents of his theater available for the over-all history officially in preparation. Instead he has his own force of historians at work in Tokyo and their version of such disputed incidents as the bombing of a Japanese fleet in the Battle of the Bismarck Sea will be as MacArthur first recorded it even though every other account may differ.

MacArthur's recent dramatic flight in his unarmed transport plane deep into Communist Chinese territory had its counterpart in the fall of 1943. As Allied paratroopers landed on New Guinea, MacArthur personally led them over the objective. A photograph showed him observing the action from the waist gunner's window of a Flying Fortress. Returning to headquarters, he said: "I didn't want my paratroopers to enter their first combat, fraught with such hazards, without such comfort as my presence might bring them."

THERE is also in the record of World War II what may be an unhappy parallel for MacArthur's proclamation last week that he would end this war in Korea in time to bring the boys home for Christmas.

(Editor's note: Such a proclamation has since been denied by MacArthur.)

It will be a parallel, that is if Communists resistance continues, as it is now doing, to check the United Nations advance.

Early in February of 1945, MacArthur announced the fall of Manila. Correspondents who were with him then recall that preparations were ordered for a triumphal entry into the city with the general riding in an ordinary jeep at the head of the procession.

But Manila had not in fact fallen. For days and then weeks the battle for the city dragged out. The American Long Toms—155 millimeter rifles—roared on, shelling the Japs inside the city and on its outskirts.

Not until three weeks later were the Jap forces quelled and the city taken. Much of Manila was by that time a smoking ruin. The loss of life among the civilian population had been heavy. Any idea of a triumphal entry was quickly abandoned.

It is the drama of his personality that is undoubtedly one reason why General MacArthur inspires such fervid hero-worship. Such hero-worshipers as Senator William F. Knowland almost literally sit at his feet and believe he can do no wrong.

There are many hero-worshipers, too, on his own staff. Those who believe they understand and appreciate MacArthur's true greatness as a military man feel that often his hero-worshipers do him a disservice. They tend to magnify the drama rather than supplying the kind of realism that might be a wholesome corrective.

The MacArthur story is in every respect an extraordinary one. So strong are the feelings of the participants and so fierce are the political currents that it may never be put in true perspective even when all the documents are available. But no one, no matter how strong his feelings pro or con, can deny its fascination.

sion pulled back across the Chongchon in the Kunu sector and reported reduced Chinese pressure.

The division sent one regiment five miles southeast to aid the hard-fighting Turkish brigade near Kaechon. The regiment was heavily hammered in a battle with Chinese in more than division strength. Two American battalions were reported overrun.

Turks Escape From Trap

The Turks had cut their way out of a trap to the north near Wawon, bayonetting 200 Chinese. Today the brigade's main force was reported pulling back south from Kaechon.

Units of the British Commonwealth 27th Brigade were in blocking positions southeast of Kunu and at Samso, eight miles to the south.

Chinese pouring through the Tokchon gap were trying to roll in a deep flanking drive south of Kaeson down the road from Pukchang toward Sunchon. The U. N. supply base of Sunchon is within 30 miles of Pyongyang.

U. S. First Cavalry division elements were hit before midnight last night near Kujon, 16 miles east of Sunchon. Under Chinese pressure, the Americans fell back four miles and then stood at new blocking positions near Sinchang.

The Chinese made a penetration into American forces at Kujong but counterattacks restored the position. A first Cavalry regimental commander said there was "considerable pressure" against his forward position but "the situation is well in hand."

Most of two reassembled regiments of the Sixth ROK division, scattered at Tokchon, have reformed and were fighting alongside First Cavalry elements 15 miles east of Sunchon.

Last available reports on the shattered ROK second corps, which collapsed at Tokchon, said scattered elements remained under heavy attack. The South Koreans attempted to reorganize supply lines only to have them cut in several places.

The United States Fifth Air Force, going all-out in efforts to check the Communist drive, reported its fighter-bombers inflicted heavy Red casualties in low-level flights over the battle zones.

Twelve fighters went out on a special mission to Kanggye, believed to be the central Communist headquarters for all North Korea. They reported results of the strike were "excellent."

Kanggye is 100 air miles northeast of Kunu and on the same rail and highway line.

Chinese forces fighting southward near Sinchang were only 12 miles due east of the key U. N. supply base of Sunchon. They were only 30 miles east of the lifeline rail and supply arteries leading up from Pyongyang to Sinanju.

At Sinchang the Reds had penetrated more than 25 miles below their breakthrough at Tokchon.

Allied troops in the center and along the Chongchon fought in near zero weather against wave on wave of Chinese, who came on heedless of heavy losses.

The front-line situation was mindful of the bitter holding battles the allies fought against outnumbering North Korean forces in the early days of the war in South Korea. Field commanders considered the situation crucial.

The Red counter-offensive had rolled the United States Eighth Army's right flank back about 20 miles since it began before dawn last Sunday.

It was apparent the Reds were trying to sweep around the Allies' right end, cut across their rear and sew them in a pocket with their backs to the west coast of Korea.

Acheson Rejects 'Intimidation'

tive acts, the work of the United Nations."

Still, he said, the U. N. effort had almost succeeded when the Chinese Communists committed "this second shocking act of aggression . . . even more immoral than the first."

The Chinese Communists could have had "no possible shred of doubt" about U. N. intentions in Korea, the Secretary declared, for they had had repeated assurances that the U. N. had no designs upon them.

"The peaceful nations of the world made it unmistakeably clear," he went on, "that if the Chinese Communist intervention had a limited motivation, if it sprang from an uncertainty regarding the intentions of the U. N. forces, the matter could be settled without enlarging the conflict.

"But, at the very moment when representatives of these Chinese Communist authorities appeared at the headquarters of the U. N., claiming a right to speak before this world organization, the cloak of pretense has been thrown off."

Little Word for China Reds

Acheson had comparatively little to say by way of appeal or warning to the Chinese Communists. He did say that the Peiping authorities now stood "before the bar of the judgment of mankind." He did ask them to show whether they represented their own interests or would let themselves be the dupes of others."

"If they defy the United Nations and mock the Charter," he declared, "then no lies, no bluster and no veto will conceal from the people of the world the evil of their actions."

But the Secretary reserved his most scathing remarks for what he called "the international Communist movement," the nearest he came to branding Russia as the real aggressor in Korea.

"The increasing boldness of the international Communist movement, and its willingness to use overt aggression, and to accept the deliberate risk of war," he declared, "make it increasingly urgent for all American citizens to face squarely the danger that confronts us, and to give vigorous and united support to the measures we must take to meet this danger.

Fundamental Design Clear

"Those who control the Soviet Union and the international Communist movement have made clear their fundamental design. It is to hold and solidify their power over the people and territories within their reach, however ruthless the means required . . .

"The hostility of Soviet intentions, taken alone, would not produce so grave a threat. But the combination of these intentions and Soviet military power creates very grave danger to the survival of free nations and free institutions, a danger which must not be underestimated.

"All governments which are now free, and all responsible citizens of free societies must face, with a sense of urgency, the capabilities for conquest and destruction in the hands of the rulers of the Soviet Union."

The problem was how to maintain freedom; the method, he said, was "to join with our Allies in building the strength of the free world—as a bulwark against Soviet aggression." It was clear that the Chinese intervention had not led Acheson to abandon his policy of building up what he has often called "situations of strength."

He still maintained his belief that in time, if confronted by "a strong and confident free world," the Soviet rulers "may be obliged to abandon their expansionist aims."

The Secretary then outlined six main elements of what he called "the strategy of freedom" which the non-Soviet world must follow. The six essentials in brief, were these:

1. To develop an international order for preserving peace and freedom, under the United Nations;

2. To develop regional groupings, such as the North Atlantic community and the organization of American states;

3. To build up military strength at home and among the allied nations, and to do it rapidly, "because the period of greatest danger is directly before us;"

4. To promote economic cooperation, including technical assistance;

5. To be ready at all times "to negotiate just settlements of international disputes and to find just accommodations of conflicting interests;" and

6. To give "a firm adherence in all our actions at home and abroad, to the moral values which give meaning to our lives."

National, Not Party Policy

These six elements "constitute a national policy, not a party policy," the Secretary said.

"They have emerged from a long process of discussion and consideration as the practical requirements of a policy adequate to the problems which confront us. They are rooted in our traditions. They find general support in both parties.

"It is right and proper that there should be differences of opinion among us about the execution of this policy, and about questions of emphasis, priorities, application and administration. No one has a monopoly of wisdom, and the vigor and vitality of a democratic society derives from free discussion and debate, and the consent which flows from unerstanding.

"However vigorous our debates may be, it should be clear to all that our country is united in its determination to hew to the strategy of freedom which is our national policy. The Nation's peril is our challenge. The united will of our people must be our answer."

Mobilization Stepup Ahead

Tydings whether we might be pushed out or have to withdraw from the peninsula.

No one can answer that at the moment, was his reply. The Maryland Senator said the Pentagon officials told them the Chinese losses to date have been "terrific," while U. N. casualties have been proportionately small. Chinese morale, however, was reported high.

New Plans Seen

Tydings declared that the Chinese attack calls for "completely new planning" as to Korea. When the present United Nations action was taken last summer "it was assumed that it would be confined to Korea and pacification of that country." With that assumption no longer existing, we must prepare new war plans, he stated.

The Marylander also said that most of our military and political leaders agree that "in the long run the situation in western Europe—notwithstanding the grave situation in Korea—is the major concern of the U. N. and the democratic free world."

Asked if this "added up to a withdrawal from Korea," Tydings said no one could say now what we would have to do but made it plain he was not suggesting this.

Use of Chiang Troops

Tydings also was asked if there is consideration of use of atomic or conventional bombs against Chinese troop concentrations or supply bases, as well as employment of Chinese Nationalist troops in the fight. He replied that all phases of warfare undoubtedly are being discussed.

The fact of the matter seems to be such decisions as these cannot be reached until the actual military situation on the ground becomes clearer. If the bulk of the Allied troops extricates itself from the present threatened trap and can establish a solid defense line before which the Chinese stop, American and U. N. planners might agree on one course. On the other hand if the Reds keep coming and we are unable to hold another line might be favored. The military situation still is "fluid," he said.

25 Advertisers Spend 2½ Billion In 14-Year Period

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—During the 14 years 1936-49, the Nation's 25 leading advertisers spent $2,596,343,904 for national advertising in six major media, according to Printers' Ink.

Proctor & Gamble was the largest single advertiser, spending 270 million dollars. Then came General Motors Corp., 249 million dollars; Lever Brothers, 165 million dollars; General Foods, 163 million dollars, and Colgate-Palmolive-Peet, 133 million dollars.

The survey, made for the advertising publication by research consultant Barbour Walker Lyndon, covered advertising in magazines, newspapers, radio, farm papers, newspaper supplements and television.

The 25 advertisers spent more than 300 million dollars last year, or 190 million dollars more than they spent in 1936.

Austin Charges Wu With Lies

ening. Invited here to give information and shed light, he gave only distortions, slanders, half-truths, and outright lies, some big, some small.

Warned to "Give Heed"

"General Wu went very far yesterday to show that his hand is against all men's. Let him give heed lest he go home from this place with all men's hands against him."

Austin said once more that the United States and U. N. are not threatening China. He then called on the Council to vote speedily—perhaps Thursday—on a six-power resolution that calls on Peiping to pull its soldiers out of Korea quickly and assures Peiping that China's legitimate interests will be protected.

"Compliance with its terms could avert the threat of war which now hangs over Asia," Austin added. "I therefore urge the Council to proceed on that pending resolution. We can best reply to General Wu's statement that his regime will not tolerate the action of the United Nations (in Korea) by showing that regime that the United Nations will not tolerate military action against the United Nations."

Some delegates were discussing a timetable calling for a vote on the resolution Thursday. The Soviet Union is expected to veto the proposal.

With that veto, the Western delegates would appeal to the General Assembly Friday. They hoped for quick debate in the Assembly and perhaps a decision for collective action by the weekend.

Malik Opens Attack

After Austin spoke, Jacob A. Malik launched into a Russian attack of more than an hour on the United States role in the Far East. He said Turkish and Philippine forces fighting in the U. N. army in Korea are vassals of the United States.

Malik contended General MacArthur had committed atrocities "going way beyond Lodice," a reference to the Czechoslovak town wiped out by the Nazis in retaliation for Czech resistance.

Malik said Austin had shed "crocodile tears" about sons dying in Korea.

"It is time to raise the question of what they are fighting for and who sent them to destruction and death," Malik said. Malik then answered himself: "The United States imperialists."

At the beginning of today's session, Wu refused to go to the Council table on invitation of President Ales Bebler, Yugoslavia. Wu sent word he wanted assurances the Council would discuss only Formosa and not Korea. He was reminded he had sat at the time yesterday when the Council was discussing both. He stepped up to his place after Col. Ben C. Limb, Foreign Minister of the U. N.-backed republic of Korea, attacked the Chinese Communists.

Limb said Chinese Communists had attacked in Korea with weapons of every description, "chiefly from the arsenals of the international Communist heartland."

"I charge the Chinese Communist regime with criminal, willful, wanton, unprovoked aggression upon the republic of Korea," Limb said. "I charge it with endangering the peace of the world.

Withdrawal Demanded

"I charge it with inviting the cataclysmic disaster to all manind by its insane, immoral and monstrous conduct. I demand that the Chinese Communist regime withdraw its troops from Korea forthwith.

"I demand that it release the military and civilian prisoners of war."

At Mali's request, the Security Council secretary read a message from Pa Hen En, Foreign Minister of the Communist North Korean government, charging many atrocities to United States and South Korean forces.

T. F. Tsiang, Nationalist China, replying to Wu's charges of yesterday, said everyone knows there are no American military forces or bases on the island of Formosa. He asserted it is fantastic for the Chinese Communists to say Korea is used by United States for aggression.

Wu spoke only briefly today, to say Tsiang had no right to represent China. He voiced doubt that Tsiang is himself a Chinese. This brought a ripple of laughter to the crowded chamber, but Tsiang paid no attention.

Malik said Austin in his speech yesterday raised almost a thousand and one questions.

"Wouldn't it be better for Austin to answer one question—when will United States imperialists put an end to their heinous war in Korea?" Malik asked. "An answer to that fundamental question must be demanded of the United States by the Security Council."

He called on the Council to order the withdrawal of United States and foreign troops from Korea and said he would submit a resolution on that Thursday.

After Malik spoke, the Council adjourned until Thursday at 10:45 a. m. It will listen to English and French translations of Malik's speech before it goes ahead with business. An afternoon session also is expected Thursday.

OF BOOKS AND BRENTANO'S

Too many Americans do not know how to use the English language. For example, lawyers have complained that new graduate lawyers, applying for jobs, neither read nor write efficiently. At one law school, tests to verify this were given to incoming students, and failed by half the class! The test consisted of astonishingly simple sentences with glaring errors in spelling and grammar. The results bear out what educators have been telling us for years: many Americans neither read nor write adequately. Washington, of course, has one of the higher literacy rates in the country, but even here, the fault is apparent. Fortunately, a quartet of new books on the subject, already on the shelves at Brentano's, offer concise, practical and entertaining guidance both to professionals and mere letter-writers like ourselves . . . THE ART OF READABLE WRITING ($3.00) is, to quote a review " . . . a readable, exciting, horse-sense text about writing English." It's not a conventional text, with all the dreary connotations of such, but an intriguing new slant on this sadly neglected subject . . . Robert Penn Warren, author of ALL THE KINGS MEN and numerous volumes of poetry and fiction, has collaborated with Yale Professor Cleanth Brooks on FUNDAMENTALS OF GOOD WRITING ($4.75). Their convincing theory is that to write well, one must think straight. Their book is a lucid, helpful handbook on how to write cleanly, with emphasis on "how it is not done" as well as "how it is" . . . What are your chances of breaking into the writing business and staying solvent while you're at it? WRITING TO SELL ($2.75) gives you a practical answer to that and all other questions you'll be asking if you're going to write for a living . . . A MANUAL OF STYLE ($4.00) is the eleventh revised editon of a fine standard working text for writers, printers, admen and editors.

Congress Urged to Provide Free Insurance of Troops

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Two veterans' organizations yesterday urged Congress to provide free $10,000 insurance policies to all members of the armed forces.

Robert E. Dove, insurance officer of the Disabled American Veterans, told a House Veterans subcommittee such a plan would save much of the manpower required to administer present insurance programs.

Rufus H. Wilson, assistant service director of AMVETS, called attention to the situation in Korea where, he said, many servicemen died without insurance protection because, for one reason or another, they had neglected to apply for it in time.

Both Dove and Wilson supported a system under which veterans unable to purchase commercial insurance because of service-connected disability, would be offered Government insurance under a mutual plan.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Porter Hardy, jr. (D., Va.) is considering seven bills modifying present insurance plans or establishing new ones. Six of the bills were introduced by Veterans Committee Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.) and one by Hardy.

Two of the measures are designed to modify administration of existing insurance legislation. Three would provide compulsory group insurance for all service people with mutual insurance for disabled veterans. Two more would provide free insurance for all men and women in the services and mutual insurance for veterans.

In a printed statement to the subcommittee, Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren said all of the bills presented improvements over existing law. However, he expressed preference for a plan which would require premiums from service people and objected to any post-service program which would "keep the Federal Government in a mutual insurance business." He sugested a plan whereby a gratuitous indemnity would be paid for service-connected death or disability with premiums required for other coverage. He indorsed the idea of mutual insurance only for those veterans whose service-connected disabilities made them uninsurable commercially.

Guy Birdsall, assistant administrator of the Veterans Administration for legislation, presented the subcommittee with a digest of the seven measures but ventured no opinion on their merits. He said the VA so far had met the increased load of insurance

Earl Browder Pleads Poverty, Released on Promise to Appear

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Earl L. Browder, who once led the Communist Party in the United States, yesterday pleaded poverty in District Court and was released on his promise that he will reappear for arraignment Friday.

The 59-year-old Browder will then plead innocent, he said, to charges of contempt of Congress in refusing to answer 18 questions of a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee investigating communism in the Government.

He walked into the United States Marshal's office at District Court yesterday afternoon and said he wished to surrender to the contempt indictment.

He was quickly whisked to the court of Judge Edward A. Tamm while spectators stared.

There, a deputy marshal said that Browder had surrendered to the court. Browder, in need of a shave but neatly dressed in a black suit, came forward.

Browder spoke calmly. He said that he had heard a warrant was issued for his arrest. He said that he wished to "answer to the indictment," as he was coming to Washington for some "interviews."

Judge Tamm asked whether Browder could make bond.

"I have no resources for such things," Browder replied.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz said that the bond should be $1500, and that he opposed release on personal recognizance.

"I have no resources or financial organization," said Browder. "I will appear when due."

When the judge hesitated, Browder said:

"I am known as a person who has always kept my engagements."

Judge Tamm said that under the circumstances, release on personal bond was proper. Browder must post bond Friday, or go to jail, the judge indicated.

In an interview later, Browder said that he will not accept a lawyer, but will defend himself.

"I'm not going to assume obligations. If some volunteer steps forward, I will accept bond. But if I ask, I am assuming an obligation," he said.

America's Road to Victory

...Let's Increase Production

This is the time to speak out—now—at the beginning.

Our industrial program for re-armament is getting off on the wrong foot.

The talking and writing about it emphasize the wrong things.

Its headline words are "cuts" and "controls."

Those words make bad propaganda for the cold war.

"Cuts" and "controls" are no words to challenge the imagination and energy of our own people. They won't impress the masters of the Kremlin. And they can only make it appear to the rest of the world that America thinks it can defend the free way of life by abandoning it.

America stands as the world's champion against aggression because America has become the most powerful free nation in the world.

How did we get that way?

Not by putting ceilings on wages; not by rationing or clamping iron-clad government controls all over business and industry.

To be sure, some temporary controls are necessary to channel very scarce materials speedily to use for defense. So, too, are special taxes and credit restrictions needed to combat inflation. But they will be fatal if they blind us to this fact:

We became the strongest nation in the world by out-producing every other nation.

PRODUCTION—THE FINAL ANSWER

Next year our government is planning at least a $40 billion military program. Instead of planning only on controls to divert $40 billion of production from the making of civilian goods to the making of military supplies, we should be figuring out also ways to push up total production.

Of course, our industrial plant is running at close to "capacity" now. And our labor force has reached almost full employment. There isn't much slack to be taken up.

Can even the United States add a $40 billion miracle of production on top of what it is already doing?

Our answer is "Yes"—and within two years. It can be done by adding about $6 billion each year to our program of capital investment which now runs about $22 billion a year.

Part of this added production will come from expanding our industries. The steel companies, for example, already have plans to increase their capacity almost ten per cent in the next two years.

But by far the largest part of that $40 billion of added production must come from higher productivity—raising industry's efficiency.

To meet our goals we need to raise our productivity five per cent a year.

Can it be done?

RAISE INDUSTRY'S PRODUCTIVITY

McGraw-Hill's studies of industry's equipment show that there are countless opportunities for improving efficiency. Our manufacturing industries alone need at least $35 billion of new equipment to raise their facilities to first class technical standards.

Here are some of the broad possibilities reported by the trained editors of McGraw-Hill's business magazines:

In many manufacturing plants as much as 40 per cent of workers' time goes into moving materials and parts—shifting things about within the plant between processes and to and from shipping platforms.

FACTORY estimates that improved materials handling equipment and methods might well cut handling costs twenty-five per cent and save annually over 650,000 man-years of unnecessary labor.

Modern machine tools designed since World War II, are 40 per cent more productive, on the average, than is old equipment. But AMERICAN MACHINIST surveys show that 95 per cent of industry's machine tools are of designs at least ten years old. Replacing them could raise productivity of the metalworking industries at least ten per cent—enough to absorb a major share of the metalworking industries' part of the defense program as now planned.

In coal mining, latest equipment and methods can raise productivity sharply. The editors of COAL AGE estimate that production of bituminous coal could be raised from seven tons per man-shift to ten within three to five years.

Many new textile production techniques are 50 per cent to 75 per cent more efficient than those in use now. If plants could be fully modernized, and full use made of latest management methods, TEXTILE WORLD estimates that output-per-manhour would rise 20 per cent. A FOOD INDUSTRIES study indicates that modern equipment plus the best management techniques could raise productivity in food processing at least 20 per cent.

These are just some of the opportunities that industry can seize and by which the nation can profit.

A NATION-WIDE EFFORT

Of course, industry itself can't do the whole job. Labor, government and all the rest of us must cooperate.

Government's part is to see that its emergency controls are so applied that they will increase productivity and thus make possible an early lifting of such controls.

Labor's part is to help in the development of labor-saving methods and machinery and to welcome their adoption as the only sure way of continuing to advance the American standard of living while maintaining the American free way of life.

For all of us the job is to work constantly for an expanding, ever-stronger America with constantly growing productivity; not a pinched and shackled America cooped up under wage and price ceilings and tied to a ration card.

CHALLENGE TO INDUSTRY

Here is a sharp challenge to industry to study the best work-methods that are being reported—to use every minute and every dollar it can to replace obsolete equipment.

Here is a sharp challenge to government to do everything within its power to make its control policies and its fiscal policies strengthen the incentives to industrial modernization—to demand sacrifice for a purpose and not for effect.

The job to which such opportunities point will take time—though nothing holds back adoption of some of the simpler improvements in work-methods reported in business magazines all the time.

But increasing production is our one best hope that we may be spared the full array of price, wage and production controls now and be freed eventually from all controls.

General Omar Bradley has said that the protection of our national independence calls for "long-range commitments that we are willing to carry out."

A long-range commitment to fight this battle for peace with America's most powerful weapon—industrial productivity—is the surest guarantee of victory for the free world.

Let's make that commitment—now—at the beginning.

New Council Is Hailed by Protestants

By Thomas Schlesinger
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29.—In a solemn but exultant ceremony, 31 million members of 150,000 Protestant churches were bound into one cooperative agency here today.

Less than an hour after its birth, the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA was called upon to speak out on the world situation for its membership of two American denominations—25 major Protestant and four Eastern Orthodox.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, of the New York area of the Methodist Church, in a surprise move, interrupted the scheduled constitutional program to call for the drafting of a policy statement on the international crisis for the use of President Truman and his advisers and the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

Current developments in Korea lent a sobering atmosphere to the ceremony otherwise filled with pageantry, colors and symbols of the growth toward Christian cooperation.

Bishop John S. Stamm, of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, further underlined the gravity of the moment in the convention's prayer for Divine guidance.

"Meeting in this hour of great crisis for the United States and the United Nations," Bishop Stamm asked the 4000 present to bow their heads in silent prayer for "those in the great struggle."

In delegates' conversation, formation of the council took second place to Korea and the cancellation of a personal appearance of Secretary of State Dean Acheson here for a major speech tonight. The convention heard the talk via phone from Washington.

More than 500 clergy and laymen—many dressed in ecclesiastical vestments of many colors—marched in the opening procession this morning. Their entrance followed a fanfare sounded by four trumpeters.

Cleveland's Municipal Auditorium was turned into a massive church for the occasion with a 14-foot golden cross standing behind the altar in the center of the stage. A background of United Nations flags drifted out on either side of the altar. Above the stage spelled out in silver letters was the council's motto, "This Nation Under God," taken from Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

"Faith of Our Fathers"

A rober cross-bearer led the way, followed by blue-and-white robed singing youngsters, two altar boys carrying the American and Christian Flags, and a women's choir in maroon robes.

The choirs, singing "Faith of Our Fathers," formed in front of the stage, as seminary students entered carrying a Bible and followed by Representatives of the 29 communions.

Two Washington pastors were among those signing the constituting charter. They were the Rev. Edward H. Pruden, minister of the First Baptist Church, and president of the American Baptist Convention, and the Rev. W. H. Jernagin, minister of Mount Carmel Baptist Church, who signed for the National Baptist Convention of America.

The Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherill, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, is expected to be named president of the new organization on Friday morning. Mrs. Douglas Horton, the former Mildred McAffee, president of Wellesley College, and the Waves, is in line for the vice presidency.

Gen. Huebner, Ex-Private, Retiring Friday

LIEUT. GEN. C. R. HUEBNER
. . . To be honored Friday

Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, one-time private who rose to command the American Ground Forces in Europe in World War II, will be honored in a ceremony Friday as he retires after almost 41 years in the service.

General Huebner, now 62, entered the Army at 21 as a private—a fact he never forgot. Acknowledged a strict disciplinarian, he nevertheless was recognized as a friend of the GI.

"If you get out of line he'll give you hell, but if you do a good job he'll give you a pat on the back," Huebner's men have said.

Units of the Third Infantry Regiment will participate in a farewell ceremony at Fort Myer Friday at 10 a. m. Then the General and Mrs. Huebner will enter their car and the parade and an Army career will be over.

The Huebners live at the Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw., with their daughter, Mary Juliette. The General's plans are to "vacation at home."

Through two world wars Huebner held such posts as commander of the Infantry Replacement Center at Camp Croft, S. C., and the First Infantry in North Africa. He led that division through the Sicilian invasion, the Normandy landing at Omaha Beach, the battles of St. Lo and Mortain and the reduction of the Falaise pocket.

He led the First through many battles in Europe and in January, 1945, became commander of the Fifth Corps., which took the Roer dams, advanced across the Rhine and broke out of the Remagen bridgehead.

In August, 1946, he became chief of staff in the European Theater and a year later was named commanding general of the United States Army in Europe.

When Gen. Lucius D. Clay retired, General Huebner became acting commander in chief of the European Command for several months. Last August he returned here for assignment to the office of the Chief of Staff.

Lloyd's Wild Fun Is a Bit Fitful

By Richard L. Coe

HAROLD LLOYD returns at Keith's in "Mad Wednesday," a Preston Sturges comedy with some wildly hilarious moments. The fun, however, is fitful, and while I wouldn't want to keep you from it, a degree of patience is in order.

The virtues include a rollicking football sequence from "The Freshman," a Lloyd hit of 1923, a tall building sequence which Lloyd fans will recognize as typical, and a wonderful character named Wormy, delightfully played by Jimmy Conlin.

Conlin is that fellow you've seen around for years who looks like a George Price drawing—no chin, wispy hair, wan expression. This Wormy he plays is a bookie's tout, a puzzled wise guy always ready with the wrong answer. It's a delightful character and a nifty Lloyd foil.

The picture was made three years ago as "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock," written and directed by the original-thinking, erratic Sturges. The first moments give you Harold as an unexpected college football hero who makes all the wrong moves but scores the winning touchdown. An old grad joyfully offers him a job after he gets out of college. It places him in an advertising firm as an accountant and the calendar changes from Harding to Truman before Harold knows what's what.

By now, Old Grad Raymond Walburn feels Harold has retrogressed and fires him, which leaves Our Boy with a couple of thousand in savings, an engagement ring and useless middle age. The ring he gives, without hope of its having any meaning, to the youngest of a long line of sisters with whom he's been in love; the money he pushes on the tout, whose eyes pop when a long shot crashes through to give Harold ownership of a circus. He tries to interest Wall Street bankers in the circus by intimidating them with a docile lion.

This, as you see, lays the ground for specific moments of gags and whimsy. The slapstick comes off neatly, but the whmisy is labored; one is all too conscious of the pitfalls middle age can meet in a rushing world. Sturges' point is all too true; it's the sort of commentary that demands full and careful treatment for which there's little time in a film primarily slapstick.

However, the comic highlights are more numerous than one usually finds and, what's more, also funnier. You'll especially enjoy Harold as he gets his first drink from Edgar Kenedy, a man who knows an opportunity when he has one; you'll relish a midly audacious spate of dialogue between Harold and the youngest Miss Otis, and you'll find the Middle Aged Master at his best sharing the Wall Street stratosphere with a coy lion.

All told, you'll get some good laughs out of "Mad Wednesday," but you mustn't expect a breathless sensation.

"MAD WEDNESDAY." RKO-Radio release. Written and directed by Preston Sturges. Sequences from Lloyd's comedy "The Freshman," produced in 1923. At Keith's.

THE HERPICIDE MYSTERY has been cleared up by roughly 48 readers, and to you all I can't be grateful enough since so many of you have made the point that the hair restorer "must have been before your time." . . . The Herpicide people would be tickled to know how well so many people have remembered what was, I assume, an immensely circulated ad: "Going, Going, Gone—Too late for Herpicide." . . . What Variety's Abel was getting at is now clear to your "too-youthful" correspondent, who, having just had a birhtday, needed badly to be told he was "too young." . . . 'Swonderful!

BILL LUNDIGAN paid his, his wife's and his mother-in-law's way into the Capitol, where an alert usher recognized the current picture's leading man . . . Bill was looking forward to a relaxing week in Washington, but it turned out that Somebody had forgotten to tell him he's due in California tomorrow to rehearse next Monday night's Lux Radio Theater . . . He's more mature than you'd expect from Technicolor dimples you've been seeing on the screen, and a youth organization meeting in Cincinnati recently found him talking to thousands of young people whose knowledge and vocative spirit impressed him mightily . . . He told them he's got a different part to play in his upcoming "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," what sounds like a musical but which is, he says, a stirring story of faith . . . Bill's memories of Washington are mainly of a leave town where he used to come while he was a Quantico corporal, a rank he held through Okinawa.

SECOND IN the film series by the Northern Virginia Mental Hygiene Society will be given tonight at 8:30 in the Kate Barrett School, Buckingham . . . "Overdependency" will be the subject, with Dr. Thomas A. Harris leading the subsequent discussion on "How to Achieve a Healthy Personality for Our Children."

JUDY HOLLIDAY and "Born Yesterday" will be staying for a third week at the Gayety, a tiding of good news which faithful ad readers must already know . . . Judy's performance, as we've noted, is a modern classic.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND" tickets are now on sale at Arena Stage so you'll be able to make the Kiddies' Christmas theatergoing a matter you can plan ahead on . . . Night starting times will be 8 o'clock instead of the theater's customary 8:30, which means that not only will you for once have no sitter problems, you'll also get the kids to bet at a reasonable hour . . . The Carroll classic will follow Shaw's "Pygmalion" and open its two-week run December 18.

IVA KITCHELL, that bright satirist of the dance world, has moved her recital to Cafritz Auditorium for next Wednesday night, December 6 . . . This seems to be the artist's first Washington performance, but her comedy reputation is a national phenomenon . . . The Institute of Contemporary Arts is sponsoring her comedy and you can buy your seats at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st.

CHEETA, that standby comic of all the Tarzan pictures, will be making personal appearances at six Sidney Lust Maryland theaters during the next week . . . The chimp arrives Friday night at the Cheverly, with Viers Mill the next day and Marlboro on Sunday . . . The Milo, Bethesda and Hyattsville are on next week's schedule . . . Cheeta's owner and trainer, Pinky Jackson, will be along for the ride.

CIRCLED BY A STAMPEDE: Stewart Granger, Deborah Kerr and Richard Carlson in one of the screen year's most exciting moments, a wild animal stampede in the heart of Africa. The picture is "King Solomon's Mines," an eye-filling adventure filmed in Africa in Technicolor on a location jaunt that makes the H. Rider Haggard story the year's top adventure film. It opens today at the Palace

Riley Is Named For Iowa Post Switzer Holds

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday nominated William F. Riley to be United States district judge for southern Iowa and Alfred E. Modarelli to be a district judge for New Jersey.

Riley would succeed Charles A. Dewey, retired. Modarelli would fill a new position.

Leonard R. Carpenter was nominated to be United States Marshal for Nevada, replacing Edward M. Ranson, resigned.

Riley was recommended by Senator Gillette (D., Iowa), who 18 months ago suggested President Truman give the judgeship to either Riley or Ed Halbach of Clinton, Iowa. Instead, Mr. Truman nominated Carroll O. Switzer of Des Moines, unsuccessful Democratic nominee for Governor of Iowa in 1948.

The Senate adjourned in 1949 without acting on the Switzer nomination. Mr. Truman sent it to the Senate again last January and it was overwhelmingly rejected last August. Switzer has been serving on the bench without pay since the Senate rejected him.

There were reports last week that Switzer probably would resign and would be nominated for some other Federal position. These reports circulated after Gillette was visited by Jake More of Harlan, Iowa Democratic chairman.

Gillette expressed pleasure on hearing of the President's nomination of Riley. He said he is confident Riley will be confirmed by the Senate.

"He will make a superb district judge. His high character, legal attainments, and long experience are a guarantee of this type of service," Gillette said in a statement.

Latimer Resigns From GOP Body in Prince Georges

Thomas E. Latimer, Republican county commissioner-elect in Prince Georges County, yesterday said he had resigned from the party's State Central Committee "in the interest of party harmony."

Latimer said it was felt by some party members that holding membership on the county's governing board and the policy-making committee of the party vested too much power in one man.

He insisted that the resignation was not the result of any breach among party leaders.

Latimer, a surveyor who lives in Glenn Dale, is one of the two successful GOP candidates who had previously held an elected county office. He served three terms as county surveyor.

He is conceded by many observers to be the choice for fulltime chairman of the commissioners after they assume office on December 5. He led the field of candidates for the state central committee and county commissioners in the Republican primary and again in the general election of county commissioners.

Four other members of the state central committee also were elected to office. Chairman John R. Fletcher was elected state senator, W. Everett Marton, county commissioner and Carlton G. Beall, sheriff. None have indicated they will resign from their party posts.

Meanwhile, Fletcher announced that Adrian P. Fisher, Oxon Hill attorney, will be named county attorney by the new commissioners next Tuesday.

Fisher is attorney to the Board of Education, a post he has held for several years.

Bill Ordered For Constitution Convention in Md.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29 (AP).—A seven-member committee of the legislative council was directed today to draft a bill for the setting up of a constitutional convention.

The calling of a convention to rewrite Maryland's much-amended, 83-year-old constitution was approved by an overwhelming margin at a referendum November 7.

However, the 1951 General Assembly will have the final say as to whether a constitutional convention will be called.

Chavez Trial Set Dec. 13

Dennis Chavez, jr., 38, son of United States Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.), will face trial in Arlington County Court on December 13 on a charge of driving while drunk.

When Chavez appeared in court yesterday to face charges of being drunk in public and of reckless driving, he was served with a warrant charging drunken driving and the hearing was continued.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul G. Varoutsos said he will drop the two initial charges and try Chavez only on the drunken driving count when the latter appears in court again. Chavez was freed in $250 bond.

The charges arose out of an accident the night of November 22 after Chavez's car rammed into the rear of another vehicle on Lee blvd. at N. Columbus st., Arlington.

At that time, police also arrested his mother, Mrs. Imelda Chavez, on a charge of being drunk in public. She later forfeited $8.75 in collateral on the charge.

After yesterday's hearing, Varoutsos said he had been told Mrs. Chavez does not drink and that arresting officers may have been misled at the accident by her Latin American accent and by her distraught condition.

Unoccupied House Burned Near Seneca, Md.

The unoccupied two-story six-room frame house of Charles Barton, sr., on Berryville rd. near Seneca, Md., was destroyed by fire yesterday morning.

Members of the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove and Rockville Volunteer Fire Departments fought the blaze, apparently caused by a faulty electric wire, for more than two hours. Only two pieces of furniture were saved, although a tool shed in rear of the house was damaged only slightly. Barton was undergoing treatment at a nearby hospital at the time, firemen reported.

Probe Voted On Literature In Elections

An investigation into use of "scurrilous and defamatory" campaign literature in recent senatorial elections of Maryland and three other States was voted yesterday by the Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections.

Subcommittee Chairman Guy M. Gillette said the forthcoming national inquiry would also cover excessive expenditures in senatorial campaigns. He said the aim of the subcommittee is to develop corrective legislation dealing with both campaign literature and expenditures.

The decision to make the investigation was made by the three-man group in a closed morning meeting. No attempt to set aside any elections is in mind, Gillette said.

The Maryland complaint was directed mainly at a composite photograph showing Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) with Communist leader Earl Browder. Gillette called it "very deceptive and very unjust."

But he emphasized that whatever the probe proves about the campaign picture and other protested materials, it will not alter the election result.

Meanwhile, the House Campaign Investigating Committee disclosed that it has received complaints of irregularities in congressional elections in New York, Ohio and Indiana.

Cohen's Benefactor Resigns From Bank

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29 (AP).—The bank president, Mickey Cohen said, loaned him $35,000 without note or interest is now a former bank president.

The Hollywood State Bank yesterday announced the resignation of Harold W. Brown as president "to avoid embarrassment to the bank."

Cohen told the Senate Crime Investigating Committee he borrowed the money from Brown two years ago and has repaid little, if any, of it.

Wade E. Bennett, executive vice president of the bank, who was named to succeed Brown, stated that Brown's resignation was voluntary and "none of the loans referred to by Cohen were made by the bank, nor with the bank's funds." Bennett stressed that the loan was arranged as a personal matter between Cohen and Brown.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) committee chairman, asked the gambler how he negotiated a loan from a bank president without interest, note or collateral.

"I guess he just liked me," replied Cohen.

"Mr. Cohen," the Senator answered, "you must be a man of considerable charm to borrow under such enviable conditions."

Miss Tolson Shows Keen Musicianship

By Paul Hume

Three works new to National Symphony programs appeared on last night's concert. Margaret Tolson was soloist, with Howard Mitchell conducting.

Reznicek's overture, Donna Diana, is a favorite curtain raiser. It is dazzling, tuneful and brief. It was played appropriately.

Second novelty of the evening was the tender beauty of Brigg Fair, by Frederick Delius. This evocative mood picture was played with a delicacy of tone that suited its rare sound. It benefited from the best playing of the entire program.

The third unfamiliar score was the G Major concerto of Ravel—"the one for two hands" is its usual description, to distinguish it from the better known work for the left hand alone.

Margaret Tolson has long been acclaimed in Washington as a fine pianist. With her particular affinity for modern French and American music, she wisely chose the Ravel for her debut with the orchestra.

She handled it with alterating crispness and sustained line that met the composer's directions. In the French tradition, she allowed the orchestra its spotlight in the fascinating tricks with which Ravel peppered it. Yet the piano was always in evidence, properly blended into the whole scene.

The surety that marked Miss Tolson's playing bore credit to her keen musicianship.

Miss Tolson heads the piano department at the Madeira School. In honor of her appearance, all home work was suspended for the evening. Miss Tolson's playing would have been worth coming to hear, even had the students been forced to spend the intermission cramming.

Debussy's expansive seascape, La Mer, closed the concert. It is one of the great tests of any orchestra. The National Symphony met it brilliantly.

Mitchell paced it precisely throughout. At one or two crucial junction points, a break seemed drawn out, but the mood of the piece never flagged. The tone of the players grew in luster as they played. Had they shown the same hushed quality in the first measures that they displayed later, it would have met the composer's dynamic markings more closely.

Nellis Appointed Aide To Kefauver Committee

Joseph L. Nellis, Washington attorney, has been named an assistant counsel of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, it was announced yesterday.

Nellis

The 34-year-old lawyer, a native of Chicago and graduate of Northwestern University's law school, was a captain in the Judge Advocate General's Office during the war. Earlier he was an attorney in the Office of Price Administration, dealing with black market activities.

Since the war Nellis has been a member of the firm of Dunning, Nellis & Lundin. He is taking a leave of absence from the firm through February and already is at work with the Senate committee on an undisclosed assignment.

Nellis lives with his wife and two children at 6620 Winnett rd., Chevy Chase, Md.

Bethesdan Freed Of Charge of Manslaughter

FREDERICK, Md., Nov. 29 (Special).—John Samuel Calhoun of 6806 Exfair rd., Bethesda, was acquitted of manslaughter in connection with the death of his father-in-law, Edward Rauchenstein, 85, also of Bethesda, at a hearing before Magistrate M. E. Burman at Sykesville yesterday. The defendant was convicted of reckless driving and fined $5 and costs.

Charges were placed against Calhoun following an accident on Route 26 near Winfield several weeks ago in which Mr. Rauchenstein was killed and Mrs. Calhoun and their daughter, Helen, a student at Hood College, were injured.

The Calhoun car collided with an auto driven by Maurice Hugo Muller of Route 6, Westminster.

Morse Urges U. S. to Set World Example by Ending Race Bias

"Our generation can set a great example for the rest of the world by bringing to an end discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed," Senator Wayne Morse R., Oreg.) last night told several hundred persons gathered in the Interior Department Auditorium.

The meeting opened a two-day community conference on intercultural education in Greater Washington.

The conference, sponsored by a group of civic leaders and school officials, was called to promote a program to teach school children tolerance and belief in equality.

Outlining conference objectives, Dr. Richard B. Kennan, secretary of the National Educational Association's commission for the defense of democracy through education, declared that it is not the purpose of the conference to attack Washington's segregated school system.

"It is an effort, he said, "to bring about an intellectual, peaceful and educational solution to one of our most pressing problems."

Senator Morse told the conference it should aim at teaching "democratic values so that they will be put into practice and not shelved as empty abstraction."

"The solution of the problems of intercultural education will determine in the last analysis whether we have peace or war," he said.

Lester Granger, executive director of the National Urban League, described the conference as "only a start" toward intercultural understanding in the Washington community "still steeped in ignorance, bigotry and fear" where matters of race relations are concerned.

"I don't think the Washington community is looking at or to intercultural education," Granger declared. "If the proposition were put before the people today they would vote it down.

"We are striving, blundering, groping, stumbling toward democracy but we do not have it in the National Capital and it is natural because Washington is a reflection of the whole nation," Granger said.

"We need more intercultural, international, inter-people understanding. Part of the distrust of us elsewhere in the world results from a lamentable inability to get along together in this country."

The conference today will turn its attention toward what schools, teachers and the community can do to promote intercultural education. Sessions are scheduled at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Participants include Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District schools; Edgar M. Douglass, assistant superintendent of Montgomery County schools; Dr. William Jansen, superintendent of New York City schools, and Dr. Ward I. Miller, superintendent of schools in Wilmington, Del.

Second Man Booked in Murder

Police booked a second man on a murder charge yesterday in the delicatessen slaying Monday night of Henry Pendleton, 19, of 1459 Florida ave. nw., and both suspects were held by a coroner's jury for action of the grand jury.

Charged in the fatal shooting at 2219 14th st. nw. are Vernell Simon, 32, of 1526 Columbia st. nw., who surrendered to police Tuesday, and David James Patrick, 37, of 2217 14th st. nw., arrested after police questioned Simon.

Detective Sergt. Bernard Crooke, of the Homicide Squad, testified yesterday that Patrick and Pendleton had had an argument. He said Patrick owned the death weapon and loaded it in the presence of Simon before they entered the store, where Pendleton worked.

After they entered the delicatessen, Pendleton blocked their exit and acted as if he were "reaching for a weapon," Crooke said he learned. Simon then shot Pendleton twice, killing him instantly, Crooke testified.

Probe Ordered Of Policeman

for her husband and that she relayed them to a backer.

Cooper said in his affidavit that Louis Gitelson admitted Martin had made bets of $858 with him the previous week. Gitelson said he turned them in to another man, Cooper said in his affidavit.

The Gitelsons were arrested at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday by Vice Squad Detective Sergt. Nunzio Bonaccorsy, Capt. Roy Blick, head of the Vice Squad, and Capt. Edgar Scott, assistant chief of detectives. Police said the Gitelsons had no prior record.

Action in Abeyance

Barrett said he did not contemplate any disciplinary action against Cooper until the police investigation was completed and the Gitelsons stood trial.

Barrett would not say who charged Cooper with threatening to expose the Gitelsons.

"I understand something like that happened and Inspector Murray is investigating," he said. "We got the information somehow, but just how, I don't know."

Wilson conferred with Cooper, Scott and Bonaccorsy after the gambling case was postponed. He said he had been informed that Martin's selections at Lincoln Downs had won, paying $1400.

Payoff Denial Cited

This the Gitelsons refused to pay, Wilson said police had told him, on the grounds that the bet was made after post time. Wilson said Cooper had told him he looked at his watch when Martin telephoned the bets, and saw the time as 12:20 p. m. Post time was scheduled for 12:30, but the horses went off early, at 12:23 p. m., Wilson said he had been told.

Scott said his presence at the arrest of the Gitelsons was "just routine." He would not discuss the case with reporters.

Blick said the case had not come to trial "and what else we have done or will do I can't disclose."

Wire-Tap Figure

Neely Says Police Should Oust Shimon

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) yesterday told reporters he felt that Metropolitan Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, should be removed from the force for his admitted wiretapping activities.

Shimon said he had no comment on Neely's statement.

Neely said the question of the next move in the Senate District wiretapping probe may be taken up at a meeting in the Capitol Friday. He said holding of the meeting will depend on whether a quorum is available.

Chairman Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) of the special wire-tap inquiry committee was reported yesterday in Honolulu en route to Washington from a trip to the Far East. His office said they did not know when he would return to the Capital.

Neely and Senators Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.) are the three members of the 5-member group now in Washington.

Some Criminal Case Procedures Changed

Prosecution procedures for three types of criminal cases are now being changed in an effort to ease the work of the District grand jury, it was learned yesterday.

They include some cases involving illegal sale of whisky, grand larceny and assault with a dangerous weapon.

The new procedures were begun November 1 following a conference between District Court Judge Edward A. Tamm, presiding judge of the criminal division, and United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

Two Different Charges

Up to that time a person arrested for illegal sale of whisky was charged both under the District Code (violation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act) and under the Federal Code (violation of the Internal Revenue Act). This meant he was arraigned both before the United States Commissioner on the Federal charge and before a Municipal Court judge on the District charge. The Federal violation was then presented to the grand jury.

Under the new system, the Federal charge may be dropped against him if the amount of whisky involved is small (two or three gallons), there are no aggravated circumstances in the case and revenue agents are agreeable, Judge Tamm said yesterday.

All of the information can be sent directly to Municipal Court, where the defendant faces a penalty of a year in jail or a $1000 fine for the local violation. Judge Tamm and Fay said they feel this sentence is severe enough in many cases.

Jury Heard All Cases

Up to November 1, the grand jury heard all grand larcency cases referred to it in detail, although in many of them the value of the stolen goods barely exceeded $50 — the dividing line between grand and petty larency. Many of these less serious cases were referred to Municipal Court for further action.

The same was true of assault-with-a-dangerous-weapon cases, many of which were of a minor nature and did not result in hospitalization of the complainant.

Under the new system, the United States Attorney presenting a case to the grand jury can recommend in minor grand larcency and assault-with-deadly-weapon cases that the grand jury refer them directly to Municipal Court without hearing the lengthy testimony of witnesses, Judge Tamm said.

He pointed out that the grand jury, sitting five days a week, returns an average of 50 indictments, ignores five or six cases and refers 10 or 12 to Municipal Court each week.

The new system will not only ease the jury's work, but will also save the time of witnesses and policemen, he pointed out.

American U. Group Plays Mozart Work

By Paul Hume

Eight months before he died, Mozart wrote one of the most unusual and beautiful pieces ever to come from his hand.

This masterpiece in miniature opened Tuesday night's concert by the American University Chamber Music Society. It is an adagio and rondo for glass harmonica, oboe, flute, viola, and cello.

The glass harmonica was invented by Benjamin Franklin in 1763. Early in 1791, the last year of his life, Mozart heard this instrument played by Marianne Kirchgassner, a blind virtuoso. He was so struck with the purity of the fragile tone that he set down this pair of pieces in a single day, May 23, of that year.

It is the first of the last 10 compositions of Mozart's life. The glass harmonica is now obsolete. For a time it won great popularity, especially in Germany. Mozart was followed by Beethoven in writing for the unique coloristic possibilities of the instrument.

Its contemporary substitute is the celesta. Tuesday night Emerson Meyers played the keyboard instrument, joined by Wallace Mann, flute, Vernon Kirkpatrick, oboe, George Wargo and John Martin on the strings. The music is of a heavenly sound and was played with the utmost sensitiveness.

Mann, outstanding flutist of the National Symphony, was the evening's major soloist, playing three of Mozart's four flute quartets. These were written for a wealthy Dutchman, but not out of Mozart's usual store of genius. The A Major is a witty satire, but not the finest music. The D Major, however is a masterwork in every way.

Mann's playing is rich in tone, and possesses a flexible assurance in whatever he plays. The evening closed, as happily as it opened, with G Minor Piano Quartet, with Meyers moving from celesta to piano, where he was equally effective. The rich evening alone justifies such a series as American University is presenting.

'Gentle Rain' of Poets Not for Planes, Tests Show

The poetically-described "gentle rain from heaven" is scarcely that to a fighter plane traveling 400 miles an hour, recent tests have shown.

It's rough enough to scour off the painted pin-up girls which adorn the fuselage of many a fighter plane.

On one test plane, flown through rain for 20 hours at 400 miles an hour, the rain wore away most of the pure aluminum which coats the plane's edges.

In the same test flight, it took the rain only a minute and a half, at the 400-mile speed, to cut through top layers of plastic covering the tip of the plane's tail.

That was important, engineers said, because the radar antennae of fighter planes are made of the same plastic material and are just as exposed in flight. They cannot be made of metal because metal blocks the radar signal.

"Rain blasting," as the problem is called, has led to extensive Air Force research on how to improve the durability of the plastic and on ways to find a suitable protective coating.

One possibility, still subject to further tests, is to "raincoat" the plastic with a thin coating of neoprene, a synthetic rubber made by the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Co.

Esso

ESSO STANDARD OIL COMPANY

COPR. 1950, ESSO INC.

Don't let this happen to you!

Stalling that occurs on cool, humid days (30° to 55° temperatures, humidity above 65%) is generally caused by carburetor "icing." Evaporation of the highly volatile gasolines required for modern cars has a refrigerating effect which freezes moisture out of the air, accumulating icy frost in the carburetor. New Winter-Grade Anti-Stalling Esso Extra Gasoline helps eliminate this cause of stalling, which is experienced with most cars on the road today. It will not, of course, prevent stalling caused by faulty carburetor adjustment or electrical failure.

Home Owners Outnumber Renters Now

By S. Oliver Goodman

More Americans now own their homes than rent.

H. A. Bubb

This was emphasized last night by Henry A. Bubb, president of the U. S. Savings & Loan League which is holding its fifty-eighth annual convention here.

Bubb disclosed there are now more than 22 million home owning families in America, nearly twice as many as in 1940. "Thanks to this growth," he said, "there is now for the first time a clear majority of homeowners over tenants."

"Neither communism or socialism," he asserted, "can ever win in a nation of homeowners." He saw in this "a most effective and potent force for basic political conservation."

Home owners, he added, "are sick of inflation, of public housing, of the Brannan Plan, of the waste of their taxes for a score of socialistic panaceas . . . "

Earlier yesterday, Miles L. Colean told a panel discussion of the league that much of the increase in real estate prices during the past year is due to the Federal Government's easy-credit policy.

Strict mortgage controls invoked last month, Colean added, would not have been necessary except for "over-stimulation" of the home credit market by Federal agencies earlier this year.

Nearly 2500 representatives of savings and loan organizations are in Washington for the convention which will continue through Friday at the Statler. The league's members, it was said, finance about one-third of the nation's home purchases.

HIKES DIVIDEND: Directors of State Loan & Finance Corp., Washington, declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share on the Class A and B common stocks, an increase of 5 cents over what was paid in the previous two quarters. This brings the total dividends for 1950 to $1.20 a share, against $1 paid last year. Also declared were the regular quarterly dividends of 37½ cents on both classes of preferred stock. All dividends are payable December 15 to stock of record December 1, according to Treasurer David A. Penney.

This compared with $4,201,879 or $2.49 a share in the previous 12 months. Sales aggregated $200,875,295, a gain of 14.7 percent. City Stores' subsidiaries include Franklin Simon & Co., which has a large branch store in Washington.

TREND ASSAILED: The Social Security law was assailed last night by Leonard J. Calhoun as a socialistic trend. Calhoun, chief of the Social Security technical staff of the House Ways and Means Committee in 1945 and 1946, now a practicing attorney, said in part: "Unless the growth of this philosophy is checked, we may well have to rewrite the old adage to read: The power to tax and spend in the name of social security has destroyed our free enterprise system." Calhoun addressed a joint meeting of the D. C. Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the D. C. Control of the Controllers Institute of America at the Mayflower.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP).—Cotton futures experienced another nervous trading session today, reflecting the growing confusion over the next turn in the Korean situation. Apart from early steadiness imparted by mill buying and short covering the trend was lower.

The current flurries of liquidation and hedging depressed old crop trading months as much as $4.40 a bale at one time, with all rallies short lived. Final prices were $3.80 a bale lower to 15 cents higher.

Marty Marion Named Player-Manager of Cards

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

FOR ANNAPOLIS graduating classes, this is getting serious. Unless Navy comes up with an upset victory over Army at Philadelphia Saturday, the class of '51 can moan, like their two predecessors, that they've never seen the Middies win an Army-Navy game.

For six straight years now, Navy has been without a victory against the team it has an aching urge to beat. The closest the Middies have come in that span was in 1948 when they achieved a 21-21 tie with an Army eleven that was supposed to whack the whey out of them.

POVICH

It is the memory of that 1948 affair, and the battle of two years before when a supposedly-push-over Navy team was within 4 yards of the winning touchdown at the game's end, that buoys Navy hopes. This week on the campus at Annapolis there are no signs of defeatism.

There is singing and cheering, and the bands are serenading the Midshipmen corps as it marches to classes, and "Beat Army!" is the theme of the week. At meal formation the other night, they were presented with a scroll bearing the 3000 signatures of the men on the Carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt beneath the message "We Must, We Can, We Will Win."

ALL OF WHICH is admirable, but the football game must be played and in the cold, realistic view of the professional betting brokers, Navy's chances of winning are practically nil. At least that is what they mean to say when they offer you Navy and 20 points against Army's unbeaten horde.

Navy Coach Eddie Erdelatz, who was an assistant to Tom Hamilton that day in 1946 when Navy's pregame chances were rated no better, doesn't put in with the belief that the result is a foregone conclusion in Army's favor. "If my boys can respond to the occasion like Hamilton's did four years ago, we could walk off winners," said Erdelatz yesterday.

He isn't oblivious, though, to the enormity of the job that faces the Middies—stopping an Army team that has averaged 33 points all season. Against only one team, Penn, did Army yield more than one touchdown. Only once, in the Columbia game, did Navy's opposition fail to score more than a single touchdown.

Asked what he considered Army's biggest threat, Erdelatz made an all-embracing observation. "Team speed and depth," he said. "That ought to take in everything."

TWICE THIS YEAR, Army and Navy have met common foes—Penn and Columbia. The figures are all heavily in favor of the Cadets who knocked over, by a 28-13 score, a Penn team that licked Navy, 30-7, the week before. In midseason, Army defeated Columbia, 34-0, a team that held Navy to a 29-7 score.

Army lost its Arnold Galiffa who quarterbacked the Cadets to their most thumping victory of the series over Navy last year, 38-0, but no weakness has been noted at the position that now is manned by Bobby Blaik, son of the West Point coach. In fact, young Blaik is esteemed as an even better play-caller than Galiffa, has completed 42 of his 89 passes and had only four intercepted. He has averaged one touchdown pass per game.

For Navy it is no comfort either to note that the top ballcarrier of the Cadets is Al Pollard, a mere sophomore, whom the Middies must encounter for two more seasons. After a token sort of apprenticeship in which Pollard, like most sophomores, was kept out of the starting lineup, he moved solidly in Army's first-string backfield at fullback and has averaged 8½ yards at a clip every time he has carried the ball.

NAVY'S DESPERATE position was apparently recognized by Erdelatz this week when all of a sudden he installed some single-wing formations along with his T. He may be sacrificing some deception the better to streamline Bob Zastrow's passing game. In virtually every contest, the lightness of Navy's running backs, has forced Zastrow to go into the air.

Navy's best hope is that Zastrow will have a hot day. A notoriously hot-and-cold performer, he has had some dismal afternoons, and some beauts, too. Erdelatz was saying yesterday that his team has come a long way since the 27-0 defeat at Tulane nearly a month ago, "and I can't conceive that Army will be any tougher than those big, fast Tulane men."

Navy's running game, incidentally, has perked up considerably since a wave of injuries that hit Erdelatz's backfield caused him to switch Dave Bannerman from the defense to the offense unit. Playing in only two games at fullback, Bannerman has gained more yardage than any other Navy back this year. The injury to Fred Franco that brought Bannerman into the ballcarring picture, may have been Navy's blessing.

Louis Can't Floor Brion But Beats Him Easily

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Mighty Joe Louis, though not the Brown Bomber of old, proved to himself and to a television crowd of about one million persons tonight that he's not washed up yet as he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Argentina's Cesar Brion.

It took the former champion 10 full rounds to do the job and, while he moved with plenty of abandon and some speed, it was obvious the old killing punch wasn't there.

Brion, a 23-year-old, 196-pounder whose strategy obviously was to work on the body of the 216-pound Louis, was tagged frequently all the way through the fight. Once early in the battle he was staggered by a left to the head, but he rocked away and managed to stay with the bigger bomber.

Bell Saves Brion In 10th

In the tenth, Louis unlimbered his power for the first time, probably because he figured he could certainly finish the round and the fight no matter how tired he became. That two handed assault was nearly too much for Brion but the clock ran out on Bomber Joe's attack.

Brion began to reel with nearly a minute left in the fight. But he moved into a clinch and when Referee Frank Gilmer stepped in to break up the tempo, the South American was in better shape.

But the relief lasted only long enough for Louis to come to close quarters and then he nearly put over the finisher in the final 15 seconds as he worked over Brion's slender body and his head steadily with both lefts and rights.

Louis looked good all the way, better at least than he appeared two months ago when the present heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles, gave him a clean cut licking.

He's Not Same Old Joe

But he still wasn't the Jolting Joe who swept the heavyweight ranks of all contenders during a 12-year reign which ended first when he retired undefeated.

Brion never quit despite his 20-pound handicap and his apparent inability to hurt Louis with his punches with either hand. Louis was tagged solidly enough several times, but he was never staggered and his dead pan expression never changed.

Joe Steffy Relates

Trent Killed Warning Pals

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 29 (AP). Second Lieut. John Trent, captain of the 1949 Army football team, was killed on a Korean hill as he crawled from foxhole to foxhole to make sure his weary men were awake.

The details of Trent's death November 15 were revealed today in a letter from Trent's football and infantry buddy — Second Lieut. Joe Steffy—to Steffy's wife at Newburg, N. Y. The letter was forwarded to Trent's parents here. They received notification of his death last week.

Steffy, All-America guard at West Point, wrote that he "cried like a baby" when he learned of Trent's death the next morning when the fight with a horde of screaming Reds was over.

"I feel sick all over," Steffy wrote. "He and I had been together since we left and now I just don't know what to do."

Steffy said the whole hill exploded with Communists as Trent half-crawled, half-slid around warning his men to stay awake, despite the fact they hadn't slept for three days.

Southwest Puts 4 On U. P. All-America

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (U.P.).—Four players from the Southwest, three from the Midwest, two from the Far West and one each from the East and South were chosen today as the finest college football players in the land—the 1950 United Press All-America football team.

It marked the first time in years that either the Midwest or East hasn't dominated the mythical all-star team which was chosen by ballots from 352 sports writers and football broadcasters from all sections of the country.

Oklahoma contributed its great tackle, Jim Weatherall, and its explosive back, Leon Heath; Texas guard Lewis (Bud) McFadin and S.M.U. its giant-killer offensive star, Kyle (The Killer) Rote.

From the Midwest came center Jerry Groom and back Bobby Williams of once mighty Notre Dame and Vic Janowicz of Ohio State. Guard Les Richter and end Bill McColl represented the Far West, with end Dan Foldberg of Army and tackle Bob Gain of Kentucky selected from the East and South, respectively.

The majority of the players play on both defensive and offensive platoons and those who specialize in one branch or the other do so at a coach's direction and not because they lack ability.

Dan Foldberg of Army, generally acclaimed as one of the greatest ends college football ever has produced, led the lineman in balloting, scoring a total of 2510 points.

Janowicz, however, was the outstanding player on a point system, scoring 3041 out of a possible 3872 points.

Except for the fourth spot in the backfield, which Williams won to become the only repeater from the United Press 1949 all-America team, no contest for an all-star berth was close.

Three young men who starred in Washington area scholastic football circles a few years ago and then went elsewhere to play college ball, received honorable mention.

They are: Glenn Smith, end at Clemson and a former McKinley Tech High star; Gerry Audette, guard at Columbia, and onetime ace at Bullis Prep in Silver Spring, Md., and Fullback Bob Spears of Yale, who played at Tech High and Staunton, Va., Military Academy. Audette had 63 votes and Spears and Smith six each.

Bowl-Bound Texas, Aggies Clash Today

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 29 (AP).—You might call it the Nation's earliest bowl game—this Texas-Texas A. and M. clash coming up for the fifty-seventh time tomorrow.

Both teams are in bowls. Texas champion of the Southwest Conference, meets Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas January 1. Texas A. and M. plays Georgia in the Presidential Cup Game at the University of Maryland near Washington December 9.

But the boys won't be thinking about bowl games tomorrow when they start Southwest. Any year, this is THE game in this region whether it's for first or last.

Texas has tradition with it, also the incentives to being able to finish the Southwest Conference campaign with an unbeaten record for the first time and to give to its coach, Blair Cherry, a great going-away present.

Cherry, the graying, dapper mentor of the Longhorns, steps down when the season has run its course and the Cotton Bowl game is played. He retires to private business.

Cherry won't even be present tomorrow when his team plays A. and M. He became ill today and was taken to a hospital suffering from stomach ulcers. Cherry had missed practice Monday and Tuesday because of a sore throat contracted on a trip to Knoxville where he scouted the Tennessee-Kentucky game Saturday.

No Aggie team ever has beaten a team coached by Cherry. In fact, A. and M. hasn't won over Texas since 1939 although there was one tie—in 1948.

A. and M. has nothing to lose and the world to gain. It never has, under Coach Harry Stitler, licked Texas. But the Aggies generally are accorded their best chance in 10 years to turn the trick. In fact, the odds-makers are granting Texas only seven points.

There will be 65,498 fans in the stands at Memorial Stadium, on whose turf no Texas team ever has lost to A. and M.

Rep. Teague Gives Aggies Added Incentive

Representative Olin Teague (D., Texas) yesterday sent 68 telegrams to 57 players and 11 coaches on the Texas A. & M. football team. It read:

"It is of paramount importance that you beat the Texas U. team Thursday. If you succeed, we in the Nation's Capital offer to annex the United States of America to the State of Texas or at least present you with the keys to the White House and Capitol Building. The Nation waits with great interest to see you in the Presidential Cup game on December 9 at Byrd Stadium. We know you won't lose.

(Signed) OLIN TEAGUE."

Teague is a graduate of Texas A. & M.

Shortstop, Only 32, Is Youngest Major Pilot

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29 (AP).—Shortstop Marty Marion was named player-manager of the St. Louis Cardinals today. He immediately predicted the club would cause trouble for the other National League teams in 1951.

Marion's appointment was announced at an afternoon press conference today by Owner Fred Saigh, who said he settled on Marty at 9 a. m. this morning.

The long, lanky shortstop has signed a contract for one year, Saigh said. Financial terms were not disclosed.

Twenty-five men had been interviewed for the job left open by the resignation of Eddie Dyer, who threw in the sponge in October after a dismal season.

The Redbirds wound up the year in fifth place. It was the first time they had finished out of the first divisioon since 1938.

Reports earlier today said the field of potential candidates had been narrowed to Marion and Johnny Keane, manager of Rochester in the International League the past two seasons.

He'll Be 33 Saturday

Marion, who will be 33 years old in two days, will be the youngest manager in the major leagues. He has been with the Cardinal organization 15 years, 11 of them with the St. Louis club.

For the past several seasons the man known as "Mr. Shortstop" has been bothered with back and knee troubles.

Asked today if he will continue to play, he said:

"I don't think I'm through as a player, but I'll play from the bench if necessary. A winter's rest might make the difference.

Marion has had no managerial experience.

Saigh described him as a smart, aggressive player.

"After all these weeks of waiting, we've chosen Marty Marion," Saigh said. "We've had him in mind all along. . . . I think he will do as good a job as any man in baseball.

"The new Cardinals will be a contending club. It will be a new era for the Cardinals in 1951."

Said Marion:

"It's quite a thrill and an honor to be manager of the Cardinals—I think the greatest in baseball. I'm going to do my best to win the pennant. That's what I aim at. I'm sure that everybody will be surprised by the end of 1951."

Marion has played in four World Series and won the most valuable player award in 1944. He played in 106 games last year, which is the lowest number for one season in his career.

Marty has served as National League player representative on baseball's executive council since Dixie Walker left the major leagues last season.

Marion said today he would resign from that job and that a new representative would have to be elected by the players.

"I might appoint an alternate to succeed me and Ralph Kiner will be my first choice," Marion said.

Culmone Hikes Lead to Eight

By The Associated Press

Jockey Joe Culmone boosted his total winners for 1950 to 352 yesterday by winning with two of his six mounts at Bowie. That left him eight victories ahead of his nearest pursuer for National riding honors, Willie Shoemaker, who was out of the money at Hollywood Park in seven events. He has 344 winners to date.

Caps Blow 3-Point Lead In 3 Seconds

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

The Washington Caps blew a three-point lead in the last three seconds, and lost a 72-71 National Basketball Association game to Rochester last night at Uline Arena.

In a torrid finish that had 675 fans confused as to who had won, Arne Johnson and Jack Coleman flipped in successive Rochester baskets to beat the gun and the Caps.

With five seconds left, Washington was leading, 71-68. Washington's Chick Halbert, 6 feet, 8 inches tall, and Rochester's Bob Davies, 6-feet-1, had a jump ball.

Davies conceded the jump to Halbert who tapped it to one side. Davies scrambled over and batted the loose ball toward the Rochester basket. Johnson picked it up and dropped it through the basket and cut the Royals' deficit to 71-70, with three seconds left.

Halbert took the ball out of bounds, and tried to throw it to teammate Freddie Scolari. Rochester's Red Holzman intercepted, shot and missed. Coleman followed up and tapped it in as the gun went off.

Referee Jocko Collins immediately called the basket good. The Caps stormed onto the court protesting that the shot came after the gun. Collins stuck by his decision, the basket was good.

The defeat dropped Washington into the cellar of the Eastern Division with 5 victories against 12 losses.

League with five victories against 12 losses.

Bill Sharman, returning from the injured list after a week out with a badly sprained ankle, scored 20 points for Washington. Scolari was second with 14. Chick Halbert had 13.

Caps Sell Otten, Buy 2 Players

The Caps last night sold their 7-foot center, Don Otten, to the Baltimore Bullets, and bought two players, Ed Mikan from Rochester and Ed Bartels from Syracuse.

Otten, tallest player in the National Basketball Association, came to Washington from Tri-City last year in a trade for Jack Nichols.

Ed Mikan, 24, is the younger brother of Minneapolis' great George Mikan. Ed is 6 feet, 8 inches and 230 pounds. Bartels, 6 feet, 5 inches and 195 pounds, formerly played for North Carolina State.

Griffith Hits Waiver Rule

By The Associated Press

Clark Griffith, chagrined at losing Lou Boudreau to the Boston Red Sox, wants to amend the waiver rule at the major league winter meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Washington Nats' president contends the spirited bidding for Boudreau, former Cleveland manager, has disclosed a loophole in the waiver rule.

Here's the way the rule works now:

A club which doesn't want a player puts him on the waiver list. If any team in the league wants him, it can claim him. It must pay the owning club $10,000 and the player his full salary.

But there also is another special waiver list, designed exclusively for 10-year men in the majors. A player put on this list can be claimed for $1, but he has five days to think it over. If he doesn't like the offer, he is declared a free agent, and can make the best deal possible for himself.

"The rule was intended to aid ball players on their last legs,' Griffith said.

"The intent remains excellent, but the rule wasn't designed for players as valuable as Boudreau. I'll show you why.

"Let's say several clubs are in the thick of a pennant fight. One of those club owners goes to a second division club owner and says, 'I want your star pitcher. Make him a free agent, I'll get him and give him a big pay boost. Incidentally, I'll make it worth your while.'

"A club owner up against it financially might be tempted. I want to remove the possibility of that temptation."

Griffith said the way to do this is to place a free agent on the regular waiver list.

Post Contest Winner Gives Tickets

Korea Heroes to See Army-Navy

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

THANKS to the generosity of The Washington Post's final football contest winner, Sergt. First Class Roy Johnson and Pvt. James Burnett won Army-Navy tickets and trips yesterday at Walter Reed over a score of fellow Korean casualties.

Mrs. Marguerite Clement, 15 S. Stewart st., Winchester, Va., the contest winner, has to take in the Virginia-North Carolina game at Charlottesville Saturday with her husband, Dr. William J. Clement. Both are Virginia graduates.

Mrs. Clement suggested that her prize be turned over to a couple of Korean vets at Walter Reed.

The odds against Sergt. Johnson in the drawing held in the Red Cross recreation room, were considerably more than the apparent 10 to 1.

THE AUGUSTA, GA., boy wasn't only lucky to win—he's lucky indeed to be alive, much less one of 100,000 watching the classic in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium Saturday.

Certainly, Johnson never dreamed he'd be taking it in when he was on the Korean front last July. And on a particular day, July 19, he never thought he'd be taking in anything.

Johnson, a medic, had his harrowing experience when he was returning to the front in a jeep-ambulance to pick up more casualties.

He ran into a road-block and three Red tanks opened up with machine-gun fire. Johnson lost his left arm and was lying on the road, "playing dead," he put it.

One of the Red tankmen leaned over him and fired three pistol shots in his left side just to make sure. By that time, Johnson didn't have to "play" hard.

HOWEVER, he didn't lose consciousness and the Korean stayed around for what Johnson estimated "15 or 20 minutes." Finally, the pain in his arm got so bad that he began to worry about bleeding to death. With his torn sleeve, he made a makeshift tourniquet.

Meanwhile, a second jeep ran into the trap and its occupant, the driver, was cut down by a machine-gun blast. The Koreans then shifted their three tanks half a block down the street.

Johnson figured that was his chance. He said, "I gave myself a jab of morphine, crawled on to the second jeep and drove away from the tanks. Another GI got me to an aid station."

Johnson, 27, has been in the Army eight years. He picked up five battle stars in the ETO his last war.

Pvt. James Burnett, the other winner, is the son of Mrs. Lillian Burnett, Allisonia, Va. He fought in Korea from July 1 to September 15 and suffered a hand wound at Taejon.

Burnett, 21, was a bazooka man with the thirty-fourth Infantry Regiment.

Neither soldier ever has seen the Army-Navy classic. Both are looking forward to it eagerly. It beats Korea.

Don Kitkowski Hoya Captain

Fullback Don Kitkowski, one of nine juniors on the squad, yesterday was elected Georgetown's captain for 1951.

Kitkowski, 205-pound, 6-footer, is from West Allis, Wis. He played more as a soph than he did during the recently concluded season but was coming along rapidly at the end. A line-backer in 1949, he shared offensive duties with Gino Pagluica this year.

The 21-year-old was an All-State high school player in Wisconsin and won the State amateur tennis championship.

3-Day Season

Hunter's Tall Tales Scare Deer Away

By Ralph Murdock

THE EAGLE LODGE CLUB was literally bulging with deer hunters the day before the opening of deer season in Virginia.

Murdock

The topic of conversation was one single subject—deer.

Stories of former hunting trips filled the air. The Eagle Lodge Club is owned and operated by a pair of red-hot nimrods, L. G. Yeago of Washington and E. H. Dabney of Staunton, Va.

Here are some of the hunters who participated in the three-day hunt. (Incidentally, the season was for three days only.) Meet the gang: C. G. Alley, C. A. Gentzler, A. V. Holmes, Jack Hunt, T. T. Carter, Kelsa Adams and R. L. Lunsford, all of Washington; S. B. Ledford, Hyattsville; J. C. Deck, Riverdale, Md.; M. W. Klever, Arlington; O. W. Dabney and Bill Terry, Staunton, Va.

R. R. Lunsford was one of the lucky shooters and T. T. Carter the other. It was Lunsford's first deer hunt and the 140-pound buck made the first-time hunter the proud possessor of a 1.000 percent batting average in the deer league. Bill Terry escaped a shutout by bagging a wild turkey.

One of the worst storms to hit the Chesapeake Bay area not only killed the chances of all anglers over the weekend, but practically wrecked most of the newly brushed duck blinds on the western shore. High tides and powerful eastern winds of hurricane size did the job—and good.

Hocotia 2d; Joe Culmone Wins 2 More

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Nov. 29.—Bob Considine, a fast-closing colt, earned further consideration as a 1951 Kentucky Derby candidate today when he won the $7,500 added Bowie Breeders' Stake in much easier fashion than his official margin of three parts of a length suggests.

Fairly running from under Jockey Bobby Martin, the bay colt was a going-away winner over W. C. Ensor's Hocotia, ridden by Joe Culmone whose mount, Bold was disqualified when Bob Considine was awarded victory in the Endurance Handicap last week.

Martin Loses Stirrup

Bob Considine, which paid a $3.40 win mutuel, is a Washington area horse if there ever was one. He is owned and was bred by Joe Tucci, Washington plumbing contractor; named for the Capital City writer; trained by Claude Feltner of Berryville, Va.; sired by C. E. Nelson's Alaking on his farm just over the District line and raised on Alan Clarke's farm at Clarksville, Md.

After winning aboard Bob Considine, Martin said he nearly had an accident an eighth of a mile from the wire when he lost one stirrup. He regained the iron, however, in time to keep his mount running at top speed.

The victory was the third of the year in 14 starts for the winner who took down $5892 to bring his year's earnings to $19,617. Bob Considine's time was 1:49 3/5 for the mile and a sixteenth, but the track was still dull as the result of last weekend's ice and snow.

While Culmone had to be satisfied with second in the feature stake, he did ride two winners in six tries.

Culmone won the second race with Sir Ridgewell, owned by A. C. Paul, a Washingtonian, and took the sixth with the Victory Stable's Eternal City. The national jockey score was 352 to 344 with Shoemaker still to report.

Steadfast Choice Today

BOWIE, Nov. 29—Juveniles feature the second running here today of the Edgar G. Horn Purse.

Brookemeade Stable's Steadfast, who will be ridden by Joe Culmone, appears prohibitive favorite in the mile and a sixteenth race as he seeks his second straight win of the week.

R. P. Sherwin's Black Canasta may be the principal contender in the Horn Purse, the gelded son of Pilate having won over mediocre allowance runners in his most recent start

DEAR FOLKS: AT BOWIE

Bob Considine, the horse, isn't a druggist, but he certainly is mixing the right tonic for Joe Tucci, his owner. Tucci, who used to play Considine considerable end for the Stantons and other District sandlot elevens when Bob Considine, the man, was District tennis champion, is recuperating from illness and has been unable to watch his colt make it two stake victories in less than a week. Evidently, he's just about well now. Joe Culmone has been toying with the idea of going to California to repay Willie Shoemaker's visit. But it now looks like no go. Charles Town, opening on Monday for a three-week meeting, will have a 1 o'clock post time. See you on the rail. BILL

Pimlico Gets $717,488 for Improvements

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29 (AP).—The Maryland Jockey Club got back $717,488 from the Maryland state racing fund today after promising to use it for improvements at its Pimlico track—as soon as the government lets it.

The money had been collected from a share of the money bet at all three tracks formerly owned by the club—Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium.

More than half of the total amount, about $407,000, would have been forfeit to the state if the club had not committed it to improving the track by the end of the year.

Today and club said plans for the modernization had been completed and would be submitted to the state racing commission for approval. It has agreed to spend the $717,488.88 "within one year after the repeal of Federal prohibitions on the construction of any buildings or structure for or in connection with race tracks."

Armstrong Wins Crown

Armstrong Tech won the Negro Interhigh championship with a 26-12 victory over Dunbar yesterday at Brooks Stadium. Armstrong finished undefeated in three series games, and Dunbar had a 0-1-2 record.

Clint Freedman paced the winners, scoring two touchdowns on short line plunges and passing to Curtis Moore for another on a 15-yard play. Reggie Lee accounted for the other Armstrong score on a 70-yard return with an intercepted pass.

Dunbar	0	0	0	12	—12

Armstrong scoring: Touchdowns—Friedman (2), Moore, Lee. Conversions—Lee (2) (placements).
Dunbar scoring: Touchdowns—Green, Chase.

Collins 'Treason' Makes Sense In Eastern-St. John's Game

By Bill Gilbert

John Paul Collins, St. John's High class of '14, wishes to express his gratitude to his Alma Mater in an unusual manner Friday night.

Collins hopes the Cadets will be beaten by Eastern in the city championship game—the reason being that Collins is now principal at Eastern High.

Virginia Has Chance With Justice Gone

Special to The Washington Post

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 29.—As far as Virginia is concerned, Charley Justice is the late and unlamented North Carolina football star.

Justice

For four solid years, Justice almost singlehandedly murdered the Cavaliers. Choo-Choo is one of the big reasons the Tarheels take a five-game winning streak against Virginia in the fifty-fifth meeting between the great Southern rivals here Saturday.

Carolina topped Virginia, 27-19, in 1945 then really rolled in the Justice area, 49-14, 40-7 and 34-12. Last year, when Virginia finally rose and held Justice to 20-odd runs on the ground, it didn't help a bit. Charley chugged 13 yards for a touchdown and threw a pass to End Art Weiner for another long score that topped Art Guepe's men, 14-7.

One way or another, Justice moved the ball nearly 1000 yards during four sparkling games against Virginia and he personally outscored it. Charley tallied eight touchdowns himself and passed for three more.

No wonder Virginia feels it has a chance with Justice now wearing the familiar No. 22 for the Washington Redskins. The oddsmakers evidently feel the same way, Carolina opened a six-point favorite but dropped to three.

Virginia's praying for a dry day to open up Guepe's tricky split-T offense. Even with it, though, they'll be challenged strongly by North Carolina's good defense.

Although Carolina has a 3-4-2 record, its worst defeat was 16-0 to Tennessee. Only Notre Dame and Wake Forest also scored two touchdowns against it.

High-scoring Virginia was held to one touchdown by Penn and two by Wake Forest. Even with Tulane rolling, 42-18, the Cavaliers scored thrice.

Carolina's great linebacker, Irv Holdash, missed most of the Duke game and still is on the doubtful list. His loss would be serious for the Tarheels and give Virginia's Johnny Papit a better chance to pick up the 94 yards he needs to become the first collegiate player to gain more than 3000 yards on the ground in three years.

Ex-Cap Star Paces 72-57 Quantico Win

Special to The Washington Post

QUANTICO, Va., Nov. 29—Jack Nichols, former Washington Caps and Tri-City pro star, poured in 37 points tonight as the Quantico Marines defeated Maryland, 72-57, for their second straight victory.

It was the season's opener for the Terps who were making their debut under new coach Bud Millikan.

The Terps played good basketball and trailed by only nine points at half-time. They couldn't stop the 6-foot-7-inch Nichols, however, after intermission.

Wyoming Plays W & L In Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 29 (AP).—Wyoming today became the second of the Nation's four major perfect record football teams to book a January 1 bowl engagement.

The Wyoming Cowboys will meet Southern Conference champion Washington and Lee in the Gator Bowl. This announcement rounded out the schedule of the five major bowls for New Year's day.

Wyoming Coach Bowden Wyatt, a star end at Tennessee in 1937-38, took a cue on defense from his coach there, Gen. Bob Neyland, and has made Wyoming the top defensive team in the Nation.

On top of that Wyatt has produced a high-scoring combination off the Tennessee single wing formation. Key man is running, passing tailback Eddie Talboom. He scored 130 of Wyoming's 343 points in nine straight victories.

Washington and Lee, coached by George Barclay who was an All-America guard at North Carolina in 1934, operates in the Split T formation in the hands of Quarterback Gil Bogetti.

Including Wingate, Krouse

17 Terps End College Careers Against V. P. I. Here Saturday

Seventeen players will be making their final appearance with the Maryland football squad when the Terps tackle Virginia Tech in new Byrd Stadium at College Park Saturday.

Ends graduating include Elmer Wingate, one of the greatest ever to play for Maryland; Ted Betz, Stan Karnash and Pete Augsburger, the last named being the leading pass catcher of the team.

Tackles making their final appearance will be Ray Krouse, second team all-America in 1949 and co-captain; Bob Dean, regular on offense and point-after touchdown expert; Ed Pobiak, Chester Gierula and Marvin Kramer.

Four guards will go, Tom McHugh, John Troha, and Dave Cianelli, regulars on either offense or defense, and Rudy Gayzur, a reserve. Cianelly plays guard on offense, backs up the line on defense and has appeared at fullback on attack.

Only Co-captain Jake Rowden will be lost from the center post. Johnny Idzik, Jack Targarona, and Joe Kuchta are the only backs to be seeing their final service.

G. W. vs. Hoya Frosh Today

After taking thankless beatings all season in scrimmages with the varsity, Georgetown and GW Frosh get a chance to pick on each other at 2 p. m. today at Georgetown.

This was the game postponed last week because the Hoya yearlings had only "eight or nine healthy boys."

After being undefeated last year, Coach Ray Hanken's GW team has been having rougher sledding. The Colonials beat Potomac State but lost to Maryland, West Virginia and Bullis.

Bullis handed Coach Leo (Buzz) McGlynn's Hoyas their lone setback. Georgetown defeated William and Mary, Temple and Richmond Frosh, and Woodward Prep.

GW's key offensive player, Tech's Ray Fox is ready to go today as are Wingback Kenny Bellevue, Center Steve Korcheck, 60-minute man in every game, and Anacostia High's Guard Bill Neal and Tackle Bill James.

Cold Shoulder to Refrigerator Offer

Terps Give Bowl Reverse Twist

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

MARYLAND WAS FROZEN out of all bowl games except one—the Refrigerator Bowl at Evansville, Ind., but the Terps themselves turned a cold shoulder on that invitation . . . Ace Parker, backfield coach at Duke, has recommended Fullback Ed Mooney of N. C. State, to the Redskins. Parker calls the 200-pound senior "the finest blocker I've seen in years" . . . Unbeaten Clemson, which brought 14,000 South Carolinians with it to the Gator Bowl game against Missouri two years ago, practically had to guarantee that 10,000 fans would follow the team to Miami before the Tigers were invited to play in the Orange Bowl game . . . In addition to steering the Kentucky Wildcats into two major bowl games in two years, Coach Paul Bryant has also recruited younger players for his team. Kentucky's first touchdown under the tutelage of Bryant in 1946 was scored by 34-year-old Bill Portwood, who was six months older than his coach . . . The Daily Tar Heel, student paper at the University of North Carolina, claims Duke Coach Wallace Wade counts the games he won as head coach of a junior college and also as an assistant coach at Vanderbilt in his record of 201 football victories . . .

Paul Bryant

COACH BUD WILKINSON of Oklahoma, will be honored as coach of the year by the Touchdown Club at its annual January football dinner at the Statler . . . Halfback George Thomas, the Redskins' No. 1 draft choice and currently their No. 1 disappointment, says one of the reasons he can't get going as a pro is that, he's unaccustomed to running from an up position. In four years at Oklahoma, Thomas ran from a down, or three-point stance, post . . . Bill Dudley, who coached him this spring, thinks Virginia Fullback Johnny Papit would make a great pro halfback . . . The Philadelphia Eagles have Maryland's Elmer Wingate and Ray Krouse high on their draft list . . . Coach Red Auerbach, of the Boston Celtics, was fined $75 for "unsportsmanlike conduct" recently, but if the fans keep turning out to see his team play at home the way they've been supporting it Red won't worry about the money. He has an attendance bonus clause in his contract . . . Insiders say several prominent North Carolina alumni were ready to unseat Coach Carl Snavely until his Tar Heels held Maryland to a 7-7 draw . . . Maryland students, who can't afford to pay $4.80, are asking the Presidential Cup Committee to sell them student tickets for $2 for the Georgia-Texas A. & M. game. The students feel something is due them inasmuch as the American Legion sponsors aren't being charged for the use of their school's stadium for the December 9 game . . .

Cards Take 1st, 78-54

Joe Della Ratta scored 23 points and led Catholic University to a 78-54 victory over Towson (Md.) Teachers last night at C. U. gym in the opening Mason-Dixon Conference basketball game for both teams.

C. U. Athletic Director Eddie LaFond said it was the most points scored by Cardinal team in 10 years.

The Cards broke the game open in the third quarter by scoring 31 points to 14 for Towson and pulled out to a 63-39 lead. Della Ratta had plenty of help from teammates George Hughes and Herb Sondericker, who made 17 and 16 points.

RFC Will Cut Back 200 of Its Jobs Here, 700 in Field Offices

The reorganization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will knock out about 900 jobs, 200 here and about 700 in its field offices. Thirty-day notices already have been given out to most employes involved.

On October 30, RFC had 2353 employes in its 31 field offices, and 1152 people at headquarters here. The goal is to cut the field offices down to 1658 by the end of this year and the Washington staff to 950.

The new five-man board of directors hopes to save five million dollars in the RFC's administrative expenses: a million here and four million in the field.

Chairman W. E. Harber, said the agency's 31 loan offices throughout the country would be continued; in fact, 8 to 11 additional offices will be set up. The new offices will be regional ones, to supervise the work of the agency offices.

The chairman said the local managers will have the authority to approve loans up to $25,000 each, and loans up to $100,000 can be okayed by local and regional managers.

The loan review committees in each of the field offices have been ordered abolished. Only one advisory committee on loans will be continued, and that will be at headquarters here to consider loans of more than $100,000. The new and streamlined set-up means that only 6 percent of all loan requests will be taken up by the agency's board of directors, and it will result in a speedier handling of all loans.

STORY: The Oklahoma Turnpike Association had an application in for a 35-million-dollar RFC loan to build a dual highway between Oklahoma City and Tulsa. RFC sat on the loan for months. Chairman Harber, an Oklahoman, yesterday received this wire from the association:

"Do you need any money? We have plenty."

P.S.: The association had just completed a loan with New York banks at 3.6 percent interest compared with RFC's 5 percent.

Peter Connolly is the new general counsel of State's International Claims Commission. He's transferring from Postoffice where he was its assistant solicitor for legislation.

Donn N. Bent has been appointed secretary of the Tariff Commission. He was executive secretary of the National Labor Relations Board and before that he was with the Civil Service Commission. At Tariff, he'll have charge of its budget and general administration.

Representative Louis B. Heller (D., N. Y.) yesterday introduced a bill to give Federal employees whose salaries are under $11,000 a 20 percent boost in pay. His bill would benefit judicial and legislative as well as executive employes.

Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, has again urged the President to take postmaster appointments out of politics. And the President has again agreed. The plan is to give the Postmaster General the authority to make postmaster appointments along straight Civil Service lines and without Senate confirmation.

Mitchell is remaining in his post at the request of the President. And he will stay until the President is ready to appoint another person to his post.

CAPITOL HILL: Two employe bills, both noncontroversial, have been pulled out by the Senate Office & Civil Service Committee and action on them in the "lame-duck" session will be sought. They are:

1. A bill to give judicial employes who are laid off after more than four years of service a chance for Civil Service status, and,

2. A bill by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) to overhaul the pay system of Capitol Hill employes to simplify bookkeeping.

Legislative employes who are laid off after a minimum of four years of service are eligible for Civil Service status under a bill passed a year ago. The bill under consideration would extend this same benefit to judicial employes.

The basic pay system of Capitol Hill employes hasn't been changed in years. The three pay raises voted by Congress since 1945 are merely computed as "extras." An employe whose basic pay is $2000 may actually be paid $3000. The Flanders bill would include the three pay boosts as basic salaries for legislative employes.

Transit Co. Now Opposes Any Pepco Rate Increase

The Capital Transit Co. finally did it. Its latest revised figures seek to show that the Potomac Electric Power Co is not entitled to any rate increase at all.

From 10 to 13⅓c

Pentagon Fare Hike Now Asked

The Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. yesterday asked for immediate authority to boost bus cash fares between Washington and the Pentagon area from 10 to 15 cents and to establish a 13 1/3 cent token fare.

In making the request to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Virginia line urged a prompt ruling so that the rate hike could go into effect without waiting for settlement of a joint fare dispute which the firm has with the Capital Transit Co.

The ABW petition referred to a recommendation made October 6 by an ICC examiner for the nickel hike in cash fares and token rate of 13 1-3 cents or 3 for 40 cents. At present, there is only a straight cash fare of 10 cents.

This fare would apply for trips between Washington and such Virginia points as the Pentagon, Arlington Navy Annex, Air Force Annex, Army and Air Force buildings at Gravelly Point and National Airport.

The 15-cent rate was asked by ABW and the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. (Arnold Lines) in hearings before Examiner H. C. Lawton last July.

At that time, the two Virginia lines and Capital Transit asked the ICC to determine a reasonable division of the joint fare—if it were continued and the rate increased. Lawton recommended the joint fare be maintained and increased from 16 to 22 cents, but the division among the participating firms is still in dispute.

In its petition yesterday, ABW suggested the joint fare question be decided later and meanwhile the fare be raised to 24 cents and ABW should receive 13 1/3 cents of this.

Although the ICC has not yet acted on Lawton's recommendations, it recently authorized five-cent increases on other ABW routes.

Minnesota State Dance

The Minnesota State Society will honor Northern Minnesota at a dance party Friday, from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. at the Terrace Room of the National Airport.

In fact, a Capital Transit witness told the District Public Utilities Commission yesterday, Pepco under existing rates should earn $152,231 above its 5½ per cent basic return next year.

Pepco has asked for a 9.2 per cent increase in rates that would yield an estimated $3,379,000 next year in additional operating revenue—$557,000 of it at Capital Transit's expense.

The new figures were presented at yesterday's hearing by Robert E. Harvey, special assistant to the comptroller of CTC. He has now changed his figures twice in the last two weeks.

The rate case hearings, which had gone on through more than three months and 2000 pages of testimony, seemed near an end two weeks ago when Harvey suddenly broke out in a rash of figures.

First he told the PUC that Pepco needed only a $684,500 increase next year to make 5½ percent of its rate base. Last Monday he changed this to $147,604. Yesterday it became a minus figure.

Each time Harvey was cross-examined on his testimony, his questioners reminded him of something that produced new figures, which produced more cross-examination, etc. His explanation of the latest revision was that he had neglected to include electricity sales of the Braddock Light & Power Co.—a former subsidiary of Pepco that was merged with it last January 1.

Harvey said he had started with Pepco's figures. The difference of more than 3½ million dollars in their answers is partly accounted for by the facts that Pepco and Capital Transit differ by 5 million dollars in their definitions of Pepco's rate base and by 2 million dollars in their estimates of the amount of business Pepco will do next year.

Harvey did not recommend that Pepco's rates be reduced (though another witness has asked that Capital Transit's rates be reduced by $200,000 a year). Harvey stated only that present rates would yield more than 5½ percent next year. Pepco is not restricted to 5½ percent, but the PUC has ordered that half of all income in excess of ths amount should go into a cushioning fund against lean years.

The hearings will resume today at 10 a. m. for further cross-examination of Harvey.

Lano Fined $100, Pinball Games 'Out'

Arlington Court Orders Machines Destroyed, Cash To Be Confiscated

The Arlington County pinball operations of Sam Lano—former Prince Georges County slot machine king—received a setback yesterday in Arlington County Court.

Lano and his company, the Arlington Music Corp. of 2030 N. 16th st., each were fined $50 and costs for leasing illegal "free play" pinball machines in the county.

In addition, Judge Hugh Reid ruled that five of Lano's machines, confiscated in a police raid October 18, will be "destroyed" and the $16.55 in nickles they held confiscated. Lano's attorneys noted an appeal.

The court test marked a victory for Arlington Commonwealth's Attorney Denham T. Rucker in his fight against the "free play" pinballs.

To date, however, raids on October 18 and November 20, ordered by Rucker, have been directed only against Lano.

Lano's two-day trial, marked by incessant objections by his attorneys and the presence of five offending pinball machines in the courtroom, had some of the elements of "a three-ring circus," Judge Reid remarked.

According to the judge, "gambling has nothing to do with this case." The issue, he said, is whether the free-play machines "are slot machines under Virginia law" and hence illegal.

Defense Attorneys Alfred E. Trueax and William C. Nemeth brought in six witnesses, including Rucker, to try to prove their contention that "the element of skill predominates" in the pinball machines.

A prosecution "expert," Jack Q. Spitler, who operates pinball machines in Fairfax County, testified he had tested all five of the confiscated machines and found that four of them gave "free plays."

The fifth machine, which carried the inscription "Just 21," was carted from the courtroom yesterday to be tested in a separate room. "Experts" found a free play "adapter" in its mechanism was not attached.

When the judge announced his verdict, his attorney, Trueax, leaped to his feet and cried: "Mr. Lano is demanding the prosecution of every other pinball operator in Arlington County."

Said Judge Reid: "Mr. Lano isn't demanding anything in court today. If he has complaints, they should be addressed to the proper authorities."

A similar case against three other confiscated Lano machines will be heard in County Court at 9:30 a. m. Friday. Lano's company also is charged with operating without a State license.

Witness Tells Of Shots in Carnes Death

A Government witness testified yesterday that he heard one shot, a cry, and then two more shots, when Thomas G. Carnes, 43, was slain May 20.

On trial in District Court on a first-degree murder charge in the killing is Luther R. Weakley, 43, who was fired by Carnes just the day before the shooting. Carnes was supervisor of Blue Plate Foods, Inc., 316 F st. ne., and Weakley was a salesman.

John Carrigan, who runs a women's wear business above the food company, said that from his office he heard the first shot. Then, he said, he recognized Carnes pleading for help. Two more shots were fired in a few seconds, he said.

Also testifying to hearing the shots were Paul H. Willee and James B. Ward, salesman for the firm.

George W. Witmer, branch manager at the company, said Weakley was discharged after a $17 shortage was found in his accounts. He said Weakley denied the shortage but admitted the figures on which it was based were correct.

Ten Injured When Transit Bus, Streetcar Collide on Avenue

The Washington Post

IMPACT—Streetcar is knocked at right angle to its tracks (arrow) after collision with bus (extreme right) at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. last night

None Hurt Badly; Accident Follows When Both Vehicles Go on Green Light

Ten persons were injured slightly last night in a Capital Transit streetcar-bus accident at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave.

The accident occurred at 7:31 when a 54 car rammed the side of an L-4 bus, smashing in the bus rear door.

Three passengers on the streetcar, including the driver, William Everhart, 50, of 503 12th st. ne., were injured. Other injured streetcar passengers were Harry Hyman, 33, of 4317 First st. se., left hip bruises and Sadie Perkins, 62, of 2402 Shannon pl., se., head injury and possible fractured shoulder.

The injured bus passengers were Hattie Evans, 57, of 749 Howard rd. se., Fay Gross, 38, of 409 A st. se., Laura Smith, 58, of 483 K st. sw., Alice Davis, 33, of 318 9th st. sw., and Jean McArdle.

The bus driver, Joseph E. Bass, 33, of 213 N. Cleveland st., Arlington, Va., said he was traveling south across the intersection on 13th st. with the green light when the streetcar started up and struck the right side of the bus. The streetcar was about half-full at the time of the accident.

The impact derailed the streetcar and traffic on the avenue was held up about an hour.

Work on Driveway Is Begun at School

Work is expected to begin today on correcting the condition that contributed to the death of 6-year-old Nancy Jeanne Allen under the wheels of a backing bus at St. John's Parochial School, Silver Spring, Md.

The Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, pastor of the church, yesterday contacted the contractors, Corson & Gruman, of Washington, asking speed in completing plans for a driveway around the school.

The driveway, which will make is unnecessary for the children to cross the street to reach the buses, has been delayed because of inclement weather, which made it difficult to move the heavy road machinery into the yard of the school, Father Kennedy said.

Woodland rd., which adjoins the school yard, is a dead end street which stops at the end of the school grounds. In order for buses to turn, they must back into the playground a few feet and it was here the child was struck.

Father Kennedy said the school probably will be closed Friday, provided there is good weather, to permit use of the heavy road machinery without endangering the children. He expects the roadway to be completed in time for use Monday, again depending upon the weather.

In addition, a parking lot for 30 automobiles will be located near the entrance and parents coming for their children will not be permitted to drive on the school grounds.

Funeral services for Nancy Jeanne, daughter of a Kensington physician, Dr. Samuel Allen of 18 Fawcett st., will be held today at 11 a. m. at the Holy Redeemer Catholic Church in Kensington.

Burial will be in St. John's Cemetery, Forest Glen, Md.

Driver Exonerated In Death of Woman

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Jack P. Loesberg, 18, of 2505 K st. nw., in the death November 3 of a 74-year-old woman injured in a traffic accident October 14.

The jury found that the accident in which Mrs. Anna M. Henderson, 3546 T st. nw., was struck by a car operated by Loesberg in the 1700 block of Wisconsin ave. nw., was "due to the negligence of the decedent."

Mrs. Henderson, who was crossing the street in the middle of the block when the accident occurred, was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where she died with head injuries and a broken leg.

Space Tighter Than Ever in U. S. Agencies

Expansion Raises Acute Problems Pending Dispersal

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The space situation for expanding Federal agencies here is "tighter today than at any time in history," a top Government space utilization expert asserted last night.

L. A. Ziernicki, present head of space utilization for General Services Administration, said:

"We are feeling pressure for more space from almost every agency here. And until Congress directs dispersal and decentralization, we have no alternative but to try to find the space somewhere.

Another GSA official said the point has been reached where it is almost impossible to find ready-to-use space in privately-owned buildings.

Now almost all potentially available buildings are in such condition that a considerable amount would have to be spent for renovation before a Federal agency could move in.

The old Washington Post building at 1337 E st. nw., now housing only the paper's front subscription counter and the executive offices, is an example. The Post moved to its new home at 1515 L st. three weeks ago.

Ziernicki said the Post building definitely would be leased for a Federal agency. Which agency will occupy the historic, "steamboat" Gothic building is not settled yet.

Federal space officials have offered the former Post quarters to State Department's information division. But a spokesman for the latter group said it would not move to the building.

Other guesses had sections of the rapidly-growing National Production Authority or the Economic Stabilization Authority overflowing into the old Post building.

Why should the premium on space be higher today in a period of partial controls and mobilization than during World War II?

As explained by Ziernicki, there was considerable vacant commercial space here in the early 40s because the country went from a depression period almost directly into the war effort.

Now, in a period of high prosperity, nearly all privately-owned buildings were taxed to capacity before the Korean war.

Recently GSA Administrator Jess Larson said the Federal departments with defense assignments had given notice they expected to increase their Washington personnel by 17,300. Since less than one-third of this requirement can be filled by renting, he said, more and more conversion projects will be started.

Beltsville Children, Adults Still Use Fatal Crossing

By James B. Graham
Post Reporter

Beltsville children and their parents are still using the makeshift railroad crossing where 10-year-old Albert Furr was killed Sunday.

This was disclosed yesterday when a Washington Post reporter and photographer observed the area near the Baltimore & Ohio Beltsvile station.

A man and woman walked across the plankway, their arms loaded with bundles of groceries. A troop of school children crossed the open tracks in knots of two or three—or five.

Several motorists drove their automobiles to the east side of the tracks, parked and scrambled across the rails to the business section west of the railroad. Their business completed, they returned in the same manner.

None gave more than a cursory glance in either direction before starting across.

The community was not unaware of the danger of the crossing. A vehicular overpass was built 12 years ago to eliminate the hazardous grade crossing.

But to use this overpass a pedestrian must travel about a quarter mile extra to cover the distance of the width of the tracks.

Pedestrians simply scramble over the rails at various points near the station. Children with bicycles or wagons use the narrow plank walkway spanning the rails for the passage of baggage trucks.

Thomas J. Doyle, station agent for some 25 years, many times has warned residents not to use the walkway, which is railroad property and not a public thoroughfare.

"I warned the Furr boy only a few days before the accident to stay off the tracks," he said.

As recently as the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, pupils of the Beltsville Elementary School were given a safety lecture before departing for the school holiday.

Mrs. Mary E. Long, principal, said such talks are given periodically, and deal with safety along heavily traveled U. S. Route 1, parallel to the tracks, as well as the railroad.

William Hanna, a worker at the nearby Department of Agriculture Experimental Farm, recalled a petition for a pedestrian underpass to railroad officials some three or four years ago.

The railroad also recognizes the dangers, but feels construction of such an underpass is out of the question.

"Beltsville is just one of many communities with similar situations," W. C. Baker, vice president in charge of operations, said.

"Our experience is that pedestrians do not use underpasses, anyway," he said, "they still cross over the tracks."

The railroad plans to offer the services of one of its safety experts to show movies and give talks on safety in the local school, Baker said. This is a continuing service offered to communities along the B. & O.'s lines, he said.

Lawrence R. Hafstad, of the Atomic Energy Commission, will talk on the "Reactor Program of the Atomic Energy Commission" before the Philosophical Society of Washington in the Cosmos Club Auditorium at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

Georgia Chain Gang Fugitive Held in $60,000 in Rape Try

U. S. Commissioner Cyril Lawrence yesterday held a 50-year-old fugitive from a Georgia chain gang in $60,000 bond when he was arraigned on charges of robbing, attempting to rape and committing sodomy on a 42-year-old woman at McLean Gardens.

The suspect, listed as David Scrivens, alias David Scripp and Willie Reynolds, was arrested at his home, 1518 Swann st. nw., within an hour and a half of the crime Tuesday afternoon.

Lawrence fixed bond and continued a preliminary hearing until December 13 after Assistant U. S. Attorney Martin J. McNamara described the case as "one of the most vicious crimes I've ever heard of."

Despite Lawrence's advice to Scrivens that he "not say anything," the suspect agreed with McNamara's contention that he fled a Georgia chain gang in September and "committed this crime in order not to go back to Georgia."

"That's right," Scrivens told the commissioner. "I did it because I didn't want to go back to that Georgia chain gang. I don't care what you do to me; I don't care if you kill me. I don't want to go back there."

McNamara asked that bond be set at $75,000, but Lawrence thought that "a little bit too high" and set it at $20,000 on each of the three charges.

Police reported yesterday that Scrivens signed a confession at Police Headquarters after his capture Tuesday. He was confronted at the Women's Bureau by the victim, a Navy Department employe who had been released from Gallinger Hospital for transfer to a private hospital for rest and observation. She identified Scrivens as her assailant and heard him repeat his confession, police said.

Arlington Man Dies Four Days After Eviction

A weeping Arlington woman yesterday told how her 37-year-old husband died—his baby daughter in his arms—just four days after the family was evicted from their home.

The widow is Mrs. Kathleen F. Hill. Her husband, John, died at Arlington Hospital Tuesday night. Arlington County Coroner Dr. W. T. Welburn said death was due to a heart attack.

Hill, with his wife and two daughters, asked a neighbor, Mrs. Alice A. Gibson, 82, at 1315 North Nash st., for refuge. She agreed.

On Sunday, Mrs. Gibson said, Hill complained of "an awful hurting in his chest." But on Monday Hill went to his job as usual.

That night about 6:30 p. m., Mrs. Hill walked from their new home to nearby Rosslyn to meet her husband's bus as he returned from work.

"Usually we walk home together," she said, "but this time he just sat on the curb and said 'I can't make it home.'" They took a taxi.

That evening, about 8:15, Hill lay on a sofa and told his wife to put their 16-month-old Dianne up beside him. Then he collapsed. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Arlington Hospital shortly afterwards.

The Hills' former landlady, Mrs. Carrie King of Springfield, Va., was out of town and could not be reached.

However, her attorney, Miss Anna Hedrick of Arlington, said the Hills had owed rent for October when a judgment was obtained against them in Arlington County Court October 31. The judgment became final November 10, she said, and afterwards Hill paid off the October rent in two installments.

But the eviction judgment still stood, Miss Hedrick said. The Sheriff's office notified the Hills of the pending eviction on November 17. The house at 1310 N. Nash subsequently was rented to another family.

Services for Mr. Hill will be held Friday at 3 p. m. in his native Richmond, Va., at the Joseph W. Bliley Funeral Home.

Surviving, in addition to his wife and baby daughter, are a second daughter, Joan Marie, 15, and his mother, Mrs. Annie Hill of Richmond. Four brothers and two sisters, all of Richmond, also survive.

City's Business Leaders Honor Edward Shaw

The Washington Post

FOR A JOB WELL DONE—Edward D. Shaw (left), retiring executive secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, receives an inscribed silver bowl from Mark Lansburgh as Mrs. Shaw beams her approval at testimonial luncheon yesterday

One hundred and ninety-eight of the city's business leaders and merchants turned out yesterday to honor an old friend, "Mr. M. & M."

He pooh-poohs the title, but the boys in the trade say Edward D. Shaw, as executive secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, has been the driving force behind the organization. Ed Shaw would have rounded out 25 years with the M. & M. next spring.

He is resigning December 1 on doctor's orders, but assured his well-wishers at a Washington Hotel testimonial luncheon yesterday that "I'll always be ready to lend a hand after my Florida vacation."

Mark Lansburg, Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), Arthur Sundlun, ames M. Mead, Claude Woodward, William J. Press, Ringgold Hart, Frank Jelleff, Thornton Owen, George M. Quirk were just a few of Ed's friends in the dining room yesterday.

Shaw, who was secretary of the Kiwanis Club here from 1933 to 1943, was made an honorary member of that organization during after-luncheon ceremonies.

Henry G. Iler Dead at 45; Headed AFGE

Henry C. Iler, president of the American Federation of Government Employes and a Labor Department official, died yesterday in the Marine Hospital in Baltimore after an illness of several months.

Only 45, Mr. Iler realized an ambition of many years when he was elected president of the AFGE at its August convention in Omaha. He was stricken a few days after the convention closed and he had been in the hospital since that time.

A career civil servant, he entered the Federal service in 1933 as a $930-a-year clerk in the Crop Loan Agency. Mr. Iler interrupted his Federal service in 1936 to become chief organizer for the AFGE. Several years later he joined the National Youth Administration as labor adviser and he was the agency's acting administrator when it went out of existence.

A close friend of AFL President William Green, Mr. Iler was appointed an AFL representative on the old War Production Board and he was a labor adviser to the War Manpower Commission. He was later named the first chairman of the Employes Compensation Appeals Board, a post he held until his death. He also served as a special assistant to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

Mr. Iler was a native of Kentucky and a past president of the Kentucky State Society here. He also was a member of the national council of the Federal Bar Association, a member of the board of trustees of the United Community Services and an active member of the Optimist Club.

Major Prevots Succumbs to Heart Attack

Marcel Prevots, 48, died of a heart attack Monday at Walter Reed Hospital. He was an Army major in World War II and owned the Prevo Automotive Center, 701 N. Henry st., Alexandria.

Mr. Prevots, who lived at 1725 Fort Hunt rd., Alexandria, served for 36 months in Europe during the war. During that time he won five battle stars.

A native of France, he was captured by the Germans in World War I when he was 14. He was put in a work camp and managed to escape three times into Holland, but each time he was caught and returned to camp.

In 1920 he came to the United States and settled in Minnesota, moving to Detroit in 1921. In 1931 he came to Washington and since then has owned several automotive paint and repair shops.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Isabelle C. Prevots; a son, Marcel C. Prevots of the Fort Hunt rd. address; a daughter, Mrs. Adeline Will of Indianapolis, and two grandsons.

Funeral services will be at noon today in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alexandria. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

F.D.R. Urged Strong Aid for Soviet War Effort in 1941

(This is the eighteenth of 31 installments of the personal letters of Franklin D. Roosevelt, from the two-volume work, "F.D.R.: His Personal Letters." Elliott Roosevelt was editor of the books and provided the commentary with the letters.)

F. D. R. to Wendell L. Wilkie in New York

THE WHITE HOUSE
Aug. 25, 1941

Dear Wendell:

I have been meaning to write to you about a particular matter for some time. This is the dedication of the Mount Rushmore Memorial, near Rapid City, South Dakota. As you know, my old friend, the late Gutzon Borglum, spent many years of his life on this sculpture of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt. He died a few months ago. There are a few minor details which will probably be completed in the near future, but the Memorial itself is now ready for dedication.

I think, if you can see your way clear, you are the man to dedicate it. It seems to me an opportunity to give new and striking emphasis to the vital need for national unity which, I think, should be the theme of the dedication.

In any circumstances this is an impressive setting with its symbolical background of four of the Nation's great leaders. If the suggestion is agreeable to you, I would be willing to contribute a few words on national duty which you might incorporate in your remarks.

I would be ingenuous if I did not also mention that, geographically, this region is sadly in need of the kind of speeches you have been making.

I do hope you can see your way to doing this.

If you can, will you let me know as soon as possible and I will then have the National Park Service make the necessary arrangements. September 15th has been tentatively suggested as the day of dedication. Any later date is subject to the whim of bad weather in that part of the country.

Very sincerely yours,

Willkie asked to be excused from making this address at Mount Rushmore, stating that he had already made arrangements for two or three talks during the month of September.

F.D.R. miscellany

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Aug. 28, 1941

One of the most delightful episodes of the first World War occurred when I was in England in 1918.

The destroyer "Nubian" had the whole of her stern (the after two-thirds of the ship) blown off by a torpedo or mine. The balance of the ship was safely towed into port.

At about the same time, the destroyer "Zulu" had a collision in which the forward third of the ship was completely wrecked but the ship was safely brought into port.

What was left of the "Nubian" was built on to what was left of the "Zulu." Net result one new destroyer. The official name for her was the "Zubian."

F.D.R. to Henry L. Stimson

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Aug. 30, 1941

Memorandum for the Secretary of War:

As you know, I recently sent Mr. Harry Hopkins to Moscow, to inquire into Russian needs for munitions that might be obtained from American production, and to inform the U.S.S.R. that this Government is willing to help with such supplies to the extent of its ability.

As a result of that visit, and Mr. Hopkins' report to Mr. Churchill and myself, a suggestion was sent to the U.S.S.R. that a conference be held in Russia in the near future, to be attended by representatives of Russia, Great Britain and this country, to have as its objective the formulation of definite munitions aid programs, to assist Russia in its war efforts and which might be supplied by Great Britain and the United States.

Russia has accepted that suggestion, and the representatives of the various countries are to meet in Russia by October 1, 1941.

I deem it to be of paramount importance for the safety and security of America that all reasonable munitions help be provided for Russia, not only immediately but as long as she continues to fight the Axis powers effectively. I am convinced that substantial and comprehensive commitments of such character must be made to Russia by Great Britain and the United States at the proposed conference.

It is obvious that early help must be given primarily from production already provided for. I desire that your Department working in cooperation with the Navy Department, submit to me by September 10 next your recommendations of distribution of expected United States production of munitions of war, as between the United States, Great Britain, Russia and the other countries to be aided—by important items, quantity time schedules and approximate values, for the period from the present time until June 30, 1942.

I also desire your general conclusions as to the over-all production effort of important items needed for victory, on the general assumption that the reservoir of munitions power available to the United States and her friends is sufficiently superior to that available to the Axis powers, to insure defeat of the latter.

The distribution of production from existing production after June 30, 1942, and the distribution of the Victory Production Objective will obviously have to be decided at a later date, in the light of the then existing circumstances.

After the above reports and recommendations are submitted, I propose to arrange, with the Prime Minister of England for a conference of high military officials, for the purpose of discussing the above two recommendations, as well as the aid to be provided by England to Russia. In view of the date on which the conference is to be held in Russia, it is important that the recommendations resulting from this British conference reach me not later than September 20 next.

With the knowledge of these recommendations, and after further consultation with the Prime Minister of Great Britain, I will be able to instruct the mission going to Russia as to the aid which will be supplied by this country. Should adjustments to this program of assistance be necessary, they will be recommended to me by the mission to Russia, after due consultation with the Russians and the British on the spot.

F.D.R. to Joseph Stalin

THE WHITE HOUSE,
SEPT. 17, 1941

My dear Mr. Stalin:

This note will be presented to you by my friend Averell Harriman, whom I have asked to be head of our delegation to Moscow.

Mr. Harriman is well aware of the strategic importance of your front and will, I know, do everything that he can to bring the negotiations in Moscow to a successful conclusion.

Harry Hopkins has told me in great detail of his encouraging and satisfactory visits with you. I can't tell you how thrilled all of us are because of the gallant defense of the Soviet armies.

I am very sure that Hitler made a profound strategic mistake when he attacked your country. I am confident that ways will be found to provide the material and supplies necessary to fight him on all fronts, including your own.

I want particularly to take this occasion to express my great confidence that your armies will ultimately prevail over Hitler and to assure you of our great determination to be of every possible material assistance.

Yours very sincerely,

The conference described in this memorandum took place in Moscow at the end of September. The American mission was headed by Averell Harriman and the British by Lord Beaverbrook.

F.D.R. to George C. Marshall in Washington.

THE WHITE HOUSE,

Dear George:

I have not had a chance to send you a line in reply to your memorandum of September 6. In effect you say:

(a) The boys in camp are O.K.

(b) The parental influence hurts the morale of many of them.

(c) Please, Mr. President, do something about this weakness on the part of the civilian population.

Got any ideas?

Always sincerely,

General Marshall informed F.D.R. that while the morale of 90 percent of the troops had weathered the debates in Congress and the press, something had to be done to bring parents to an understanding of the national emergency and the need for a well-trained Army. He asked whether this could not be handled by the Office of Civilian Defense.

F.D.R. miscellany (Memorandum)

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Sept. 25, 1941.

When I visited the King at Buckingham Palace in July, 1918, he told me the following:

When he was visiting a hospital in Scotland containing several hundred sailors wounded in the Battle of Jutland he stopped for a moment at the cot of a burly Britisher who had a large tatooed portrait of the King on his bare chest.

"That ain't the 'alf of it, Your Majesty. You should see me behind. I 'ave two other portraits—I am a-sittin 'on the Kaiser and Von Hindenburg."

Memorandum for Mark Ethridge:

THE WHITE HOUSE
Sept. 26, 1941

I agree with you that it is not a good thing for the R.A.F. Ferry Command to turn down applications because they do not belong to the white race. Nevertheless, I think it would be not only discourteous but presumptuous for us to interfere with the war procedure of a different nation.

None of us are in a position to determine the problems of the British Empire. If the shoe were on the other foot I think that you and I would be the first to condemn any attempt by the British Empire to tell us how to handle our war, they being at peace. F.D.R.

Mark Ethridge, vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal, had accepted the chairmanship of a committee to investigate complaints of discrimination against Negroes seeking work in defense industries and the Government. This was the origin of the Fair Employment Practices Committee.

F.D.R. to Frederic A. Delano

Memorandum for F.A.D.:

I think you should tell Mr. Key-Smith that, in my judgment, we should let sleeping heroes lie. The District is pock-marked with generals, statesmen, foreigners, visiting firemen, etc., on horseback, standing and sitting—all without any particular reference to a plan.

Personally I want to see old man Jackson and the horse which is balanced on its tail, in front of the White House as long as I am here. How the General is able to wave without holding onto his pommel, I have never known. I am still fascinated—and I think almost everyone else is too.

From the practical point of view, we should spend no money these days in redistributing heroes round the parks and squares of Washington.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

500 ACRES—100 acres already sold for development. This acreage is located 4 squares over the District line in the zone of the new South Capitol St. Bridge. This bridge is now operating with a capacity of 50,000 automobiles a day. There is no reason why the property will not be as valuable here as the 3 bridges on the Virginia end where the bridges end in Virginia. Property there is worth from one to two million dollars an acre, and that is the future of these 500 acres. We have also a 5-acre cemetery to be made larger, and under the Maryland law you cannot get a permit for any more cemeteries; but if you have already got a cemetery you can go ahead and develop it. Cemeteries, when they are completed, are retailed at $100,000 an acre. Barnaby blvd. has just been widened and regraded by the State of Maryland, and a number of shopping centers are promising to open up. We would sell this Barnaby front at a special price, property not less than 50c a sq. ft. for a large portion of it. This should be the greatest shopping center around Washington. When I built the town of Chevy Chase, D. C., where the theater is located in Chevy Chase, that ground I sold for 32c a sq. ft. is now worth 2 million dollars an acre in the shopping center, and when I sold it for 32c, people said I was charging too much for it. I bought that ground from Mr. Charles C. Glover, the deceased president of the Riggs National Bank, and he bought it for $50 an acre before Conn. ave. was ever opened up. That will help you understand what this property in Southeast will be worth. Sears and Roebuck, one of the largest department stores in the world, has bought a large tract over here and are going to open a big department store there. Other department stores are moving out in Maryland and Virginia. Kann's, Woodward & Lothrop and the Hecht Co. are speculating to open branches out this way. You can reach me at my home, OL. 4408, FULTON R. GORDON, Owner, Brokers, attention.

Tragedy in the Far East

The failure of peace-loving nations to detect the manifold symptoms of war until it becomes an international contagion is one of history's supreme tragedies . . . Ironically, communities have learned to quarantine scarlet fever, but countries have neglected a far more disastrous epidemic called war. If the democracies had disinfected Nazism when it was merely a rash in Munich beer-halls, the lives of 40 million people might have been saved.

During the 1920s when every throw of the dice on Wall st. turned up seven; when Prohibition served as the theme of the Nation's leading controversy; when we thought the hip-flask was the most perilous threat to the Nation's youth—Communist Russia already succeeded in infiltrating China on the political, financial and intellectual fronts . . . The velvet-gloved aggression against China was under the direction of the Comintern. And this operation was masterminded by a Communist leader who was then almost unknown—Joseph Stalin . . . Some Americans, who were born during the 1920s, are soldiers today being killed by Chinese Communists.

Washington is now discovering what it should have known three decades ago. Never were so many fooled for so long . . . The Communist masterplan in Asia was based on involving the United States in a catastrophic struggle with China. This was made known with fiery clarity during Sept., 1920, when Grigor Zinoviev (chairman of the Third International) proclaimed: "The real revolution will blaze up only when 800 million people who live in Asia unite with us, when we see hundreds of millions of people in revolt. Now we must kindle a holy war against British, French and American capitalists.

Lenin dispatched agents to organize the Chinese Communist party over 30 years ago. While renouncing aggressive intentions and giving assurances of amity, the Comintern (in 1919) set up a school in Shanghai for the study of Communist strategy . . . Since Communists, like rodents, operate in the crevices, this school was the initial Red crevice which later split China wide open.

One of the agents who established the school attained influence within the Chinese government and managed to have a Chinese leader appointed as director of the government's vital propaganda committee . . . That chief is now the dictator of China—Mao Tse-tung.

The devilish candor of Chinese Communists and their Russian cohorts is as incredible as the gullibility of Washington . . . In Jan., 1923, China's Reds gathered in Canton and publicly announced: "The Communist Party of China under the guidance and with the aid of the Comintern succeeded in drafting a concrete political and tactical line" . . . The ideological allegiance of Chinese Communists never wavered. During 1944 a book written by Mao Tse-tung was published by the Communist Party in the United States. It included this: "The world now depends on Communism for its salvation and so does China." The Communists later withdrew this book from sale here.

But as late as 1946 the Truman Administration believed it could bring peace to China by effecting a conciliation between the Reds and Nationalists via a coalition gov't . . . Its vision of amity turned out to be just another mirage. That diplomatic blunder could be mildly described as naivete—and truthfully described as ignorance.

Despite the 30-year open alliance between China's Reds and the Soviet Union—proof of this alliance was still considered news in the United States on Nov. 21, 1948! . . . On that day the N. Y. Times offered reams of evidence in an effort to prove "the close and definite connection between Red China and Russia." The Times added: "The Chinese leaders make no attempt to conceal the identity of interests with the Soviet Union. The overwhelming evidence, therefore, is that the Chinese Communists are pursuing policies identical in aims with the policies of Moscow." That scoop must have raised guffaws in the Kremlin.

The streets of Canton were stained with blood in 1927 when Communist-inspired riots exploded. Yet the isolationist mentality in the United States was so rigid at that time most editors here either buried the news or ignored it

The evidence is mountainous that Red China is merely a Russian satellite. Furthermore, the State Dep't's secret files show that the department knew it as early as 1945 . . . But it plowed through its own intelligence warnings like a Long Island Rail Road engineer opening the throttle through a red light. The Wedemeyer report is still a state secret, but its contents are not. It foretold the Far East catastrophe to the opening rifle shot. The State Dept.'s White Paper on China will live in history—as the greatest outright fraud the State Dep't ever tried to perpetrate on the American public . . . But the Administration is about to reverse itself on that, too. The Nation is so close to war that even Acheson is considering calling on Chiang Kai-shek for aid in Korea.

It takes a split second to pull the trigger which signals the start of armed strife. But the first shot on the battlefield is always preceded by years of ignorance, hypocrisy and skulduggery in the diplomatic field . . . War itself is not inevitable. It is the impact of countless blunders during peacetime which produces a war's inevitability . . . The price of our past diplomatic mistakes is now being paid with the lives of Americans in Korea . . . Communism is on the march from Indonesia to Indo-China; from the Malay Archipelago to the Philippines. If Communism conquers Asia—it will have enslaved over half of the world's population.

Publisher M. Cowles (Look, Flair, Quick and newspapers in Des Moines and Minneapolis) at the Saints & Sinners event the other day spoke about newsmen who failed to recognize the Red menace: "Too many of us," he admitted, "were fooled. Too many were fools. Too many have realized too late. Only a few spoke out early!"

2 Out of 3 Doctors Fail Test In Death Quiz, But It's Okay

Two of every three District physicians participating and a visiting expert last night failed to identify the cause of death of a 39-year-old man here.

The showing, however, was described as satisfactory, in the absence of positive laboratory findings, by Dr. Harold Jeghers, of this city, who arranged the test.

The program, at the bi-weekly scientific session of the District Medical Society, was the first District-wide Clinical Pathological Conference. At such conferences, usually conducted at hospital staff scale, doctors are asked to identify death's cause from clinical findings, which are then checked against autopsy results.

Last night's visiting discussant, Dr. George Harrell, professor of medicine at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N. C., did what the participants described as a "masterful job" in tracing the course of fatal heart damage in the case.

He failed, however, to identify the organism reesponsible, admittedly "taking a chance" in his final conclusion that it was caused by a fungus.

Dr. Charles Geschickter, professor of pathology at Georgetown University School of Medicine, then presented the autopsy findings, which identified the disease as subacute bacterial endocarditis. The disease, an invasion of the heart by drug-resistant bacteria, poses particularly difficult diagnostic problems, the doctors said.

A scoreboard of District doctors' opinions in the case showed that 23 of 69 who chanced a verdict named the true cause. Only two of the local doctors attributed the death to the fungus invasion named by Dr. Harrell.

As evidence of the complexity the case presented, the local doctors participating named 26 different causes of death from the symptoms and laboratory test results given them in advance.

Dr. Jeghers, professor of medicine at Georgetown, explained the conferences are held to "sharpen physicians' wits and build up their diagnostic skills." The cases selected, he explained, are generally those which "pose the most difficulties (of diagnosis)."

The program attracted nearly 300 doctors and medical students.

Tenants Claim Hotel Boosted Rents Sharply

The hotel management announced previously that it had ordered increases of 10 to 15 percent, but agreed yesterday that 11 of 29 permanent tenants whose rents were raised are paying increases of more than 15 percent.

The charges of four of the tenants involved were supported by bills and letters indicating increases of 89, 87, 58, and 49 percent, respectively. One of the four has moved.

In its notices to occupants, the management contended that even at new rates it could absorb only half of the added overhead due to increased operating costs of the last 10 years.

Three Receive Degrees From Adventists

Three men received degrees from the Seventh-day Adventist Seminary, Takoma Park, Md., in commencement ceremonies last night. Dr. Denton Rebok, president of the seminary, conferred the degrees.

John D. Livingston, a teacher of Greek and Hebrew in the Washington Missionary College in Takoma Park, received his Bachelor of Divinity degree.

Norval F. Pease, of Loma Linda, Calif., also was graduated with a Bachelor of Divinity degree. He is an instructor in the College of Medical Evangelists in Loma Linda.

The third graduate was Benito Rivera, an Adventist pastor from Puerto Rico. He was awarded his Master of Arts in Religion.

Rear Admiral Boone To Retire Friday

By the United Press

Rear Admiral Joel T. Boone, physician to three Presidents and the most decorated medical man in naval history, will be retired from service Friday, the Navy announced yesterday.

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps commandant, will be Boone's host at a parade and review at the Marine Barracks here today. From 1919 to 1933, Boone served as physician to Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Israel Charges Jordan Troops Cut Negev Road

TEL AVIV, Israel, Nov. 29 (AP).—An armored force of Jordan's Arab Legion today blocked the main road between Beersheba and Elath in the Israeli Negev, cutting communications with the southern tip of the largely desert area, Israeli authorities said.

Israel called for an emergency meeting of the Israeli-Jordan mixed armistice committee, charging Jordan with a "flagrant breach of the armistice agreement." Jordan filed a complaint last week claiming that the highway cuts through a part of Jordan territory.

Court Denies Florist Divorce

Bertrand G. McGinniss, president of Flowers, Inc., yesterday was denied a divorce from Mrs. Blanche E. McGinniss of 3605 T st. nw.

Judge Charles F. McLaughlin of District Court ruled that McGinniss had failed to prove his case, based on charges of both constructive desertion and voluntary separation.

McGinniss, during the trial, said that he makes more than $15,000 a year and that his wife supports herself on $3800 annually from the Veterans' Administration.

The married in 1929 and have had no children. They first parted in 1939, McGinniss said. In 1940 he returned to the home but did not have relations with his wife, he said. The final parting was in 1946, he testified.

He said there was no possibility of reconciliation. His wife testified, however, that she was willing to go back to living with him.

McGinniss also said that his wife refused to have sexual relations with him or to bear him a child. She denied these charges flatly and said that he was in love with another woman.

Something About The Radio Contests

By John Crosby

Crosby

I AM EASILY the most passionate devotee of radio contests around, having been suckled on "The American Boy," which had half the youth of America writing the last line of limericks in an earnest attempt to win a pony.

Radio contests, though, have a sort of dreamy detachment from anything in my experience; many of them sound as if they'd been invented by someone on another planet, a person—if you could so label him—whose desires and attitudes differ pretty sharply from my own.

Take this one, for example, which I pass on direct from the contest form of Station WJZ.

Sponsor: Ayerow Christian Projects.
Product: Religion.
Brief Terms of Contest or Offer: If you would like to have a Billy Graham Evangelistic Rally, send a letter or postcard to Dr. Ayer, Box 403, New York 8, N. Y.

It drew, in case you're interested, several hundred letters, but not enough to lure Billy Graham to New York to dispense his product, religion.

THEN THE BREAKFAST CLUB is running—or was running, last I heard—a navy bean-growing contest. You just plant navy beans in a pot and write in once a week telling how high your plant has grown. The Breakfast Club, which was doing a little bean-growing of its own, measured its plant against yours and announced results from time to time. No, there weren't any prizes. Just the satisfaction of outdoing Don McNeill, if that sort of thing affords you any satisfaction.

More and more, the rewards for these contests are becoming moral rather than material victories. ABC, for instance, recently concluded a letter-writing contest in which youngsters were invited to tell what animal on the "Saturday at the Zoo" program they would like to have as a pet. The animal receiving the most votes didn't get a thing; the prize-winning letter writers got darn little (a copy of a book called "True Zoo Stories"); the real winner was the animal's trainer. He got a Westinghouse refrigerator.

One of the most earth-shaking of the recent competitions on the air lanes was a 177-city search for "Miss Mirthquake of 1950," or—to put it in English—the girl with the heartiest laugh. This little gem was conducted by Harold Peary, the former "Great Gildersleeve," to whip up a little interest in his new show. "Miss Mirthquake of 1950" was run to earth in Knoxville, Tenn., in the person of Mrs. Lena Duncan, age 49. Mrs. Duncan was shipped to Hollywood and put on the "Honest Harold" program where she emitted her mirthquaking laugh. Ears were split as far east as Denver.

A BRITISH DELEGATE to the United Nations elevated one eyebrow after several of Ed Murrow's recent news programs which were cast on a rather lofty plane. "I say," he murmured, "Murrow's taking on a rather high moral tone lately. I wonder—when are they going to frock him?"

A new record, released last week, has a song called "Sam, Don't Slam the Door" on one side. On the other: "When Your Lover Has Gone."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

'It's Better to Be Safe Than Sorry'

A McLean Gardens woman was assaulted and robbed Tuesday by a man who had knocked on her door and asked to use the phone. The assailant was later identified as an escapee from a Georgia chain gang.

Earlier Tuesday, a woman who works in a Congressman's office called to tell me about two strange men who had apeared at her door. They said they had come to read the gas meter; but neither could furnish proper identification.

"What should I have done?" she asked. "I hate to be rude to people who come to my door."

Of course. Especially in view of the fact that most such folks are reasonably honest. About the worst we encounter, as a rule, is the lady who is "taking a survey of the schoolchildren in the area," but later turns out to be selling books or magazines.

Unfortunately, however, there are also people at large who have no compunctions about bashing their neighbors over the head whenever such procedure strikes them as being appropriate. And, unless you're the type who likes to get bashed, it's a good idea to be careful.

I've checked most of our public utilities and several of our big stores and got the same statement wherever I went: "Every employe we send to a home or business house carries complete identification. For your own protection you should ask to see it unless our representative is already known to you."

If the stranger at your door alibis, "I lost my wallet and identification last night," ask his name and let him wait outside while you phone his employer. Chances are he'll quietly disappear.

If he doesn't, and it turns out he's okay, you can apologize for your rudeness.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Adorable male and female kittens." (Oliver 2325.)

"Pretty, housebroken 8-week-old kittens." (North 2942.)

"Beautiful, housebroken 1-year-old cat, mixture Persian and Maltese; we're moving to a hotel." (Emerson 5636.)

"Black Siamese kittens." (Oliver 7691, evenings.)

TRANSIT RADIO AGAIN

"I used to be in favor of radios in streetcars and buses," writes Bob Haas of 2963 McKinley st. nw. "Especially at the outset, when we were promised that all music would be instrumental, and classical or semi-classical in nature.

"Recently, however, this 'high-class' music has begun to lean toward be-bop and other such atrocities. And we're also getting some cheap vocal numbers. Why this reversal in policy?"

WWDC, which determines the program content for Transit Radio in Washington, is aghast at the suggestion that be-bop has found its way into streetcars and buses.

"We now schedule one program a day (10:30 to 11 a. m.) on which we include a couple of vocal numbers," says a station spokesman. "But be-bop? Impossible. We said we wouldn't play it, and we haven't."

MISCELLANY

Local gamblers, increasingly active since May, suddenly pulled in their horns last week. They're worried about the Kefauver Committee . . . Another happy coincidence: Eleanor Snyder of 1402 48th ave. se. is moving to Utica, and asked me whether I could put her piano to good use. At the same time, Mrs. A. Ringel of 308 Livingston ter. se. wrote that the Southern Hills Play Center had great need for a piano, but little money. It couldn't have worked out better . . . Fred C. Tramm, formerly of 1604 18th st. se., moved out to California without having a chance to pay his Washington Post carrier boy for part of a month's delivery. I have a dollar mailed in by District Liner Tramm for the boy—if he'll identify himself . . . Mrs. C. J. Lopes of 50 Nash pl., Kensington, Md., tells me that her Give-Away item drew quite a few calls. She writes: "If I had had 63 more puppies, I could have satisfied the demand" . . . A new LP record, "Voices of Freedom," to be released Monday will feature the voices of such historic figures as William Jennings Bryan, Will Rogers, Thomas A. Edison, FDR and "that other Roosevelt," Teddy. Also "that other Taft," William Howard. NBC's Robert McCormick did the narration. There's no orchestra; background music was done by a local group—the Chamber Chorus of the Washington Cathedral Choir, with Paul Callaway directing . . . Still more invalidated streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital, this time from W. E. Raleigh, 2635 S. Walter Reed dr., Arlington, Va.; Diana Foster; Max King Steinberg, 3019 Douglas st. ne. (war stamps); and Postal Inspector L. J. White . . . Blanche Berlin of 812 Randolph st. nw. reports that courtesy is not dead on Capital Transit vehicles, in spite of reports to the contrary. Blanche and a girl friend boarded a crowded bus at 13th and I sts. nw. the other day and "four Air Force officers rose as one to offer us their seats, which we gratefully accepted." Blanche thoughtfully adds the postscript: "No wisecracks, please. We didn't require all four seats."

HE'S USED TO IT

A lawyer friend of mine was invited to address a civic association meeting a few days ago. When the president of the group apologized for the poor turnout, the legal eagle smiled: "That's quite all right. I've made some of my finest speeches to audiences of 12."

False Alarm on Bombing Here

By Drew Pearson

It was all hushed up, but one day last week practically every top military man in Washington was anxiously scanning the sky in anticipation of an enemy air raid on the Nation's Capital.

PEARSON

Reason for their concern was a cable from India which read: "Alert all U. S. cities they are due to be bombed within the next 24 hours."

Astonished clerks at the message center immediately made a dozen copies—on message center forms—and shot them out to the key offices. The cryptic message, on official stationery, had all the appearances of being an official warning, and remembering how Washington was caught asleep during Pearl Harbor, word of the impending attack was flashed from the Pentagon to every key office throughout the city—including the White House.

Uniformed couriers sped the message to the National Security Council, a sergeant raced into Defense Secretary Marshall's office, the Central Intelligence Agency was alerted, Pentagon stenographers hearing the news made frantic phone calls to advise their friends and relatives. Tension was mounting to the breaking point.

Then the bubble burst amid a sea of very red faces.

A few calm officers decided to check the name signed to the cable from India. They discovered that the signer wasn't employed by the State Department, wasn't a CIA agent, wasn't in Army, Navy or Air Intelligence. In fact, he wasn't a United States Government employe of any kind.

He was, they learned, an American tourist stopping off in India. Examination of the original cable revealed it had been sent on November 23.

One officer glanced at a calendar. "November 23 was Thanksgiving Day," he said. Then he queried, "What are some Americans apt to do if they're in India on Thanksgiving Day?"

Soviet Weapons

American ordnance officers are popeyed at Soviet weapons, captured in Korea. They are so amazed that they are hastily revising their estimates of Russian military might and are convinced that the United States has been underestimating Russian strength by as much as 50 percent.

A preliminary survey indicates that Russia sent nearly two billion dollars worth of military aid to North Korea, which is more than the total American deliveries to all North Atlantic Pact countries combined. And this does not include planes and ships, which the Russians did not supply to North Korea in quantity.

Furthermore, markings on the equipment have been traced to Russian factories that United States intelligence thought were producing civilian goods. These captured weapons are now being tested and evaluated at the Aberdeen, Md., ordnance center.

The most effective weapons captured from the North Koreans are heavy mortars and burp guns, which laid down the most terrific firepower that the American Army has ever faced.

For example, the captured Russian 120-mm. trench mortar is heavier than the comparable 4.2-inch United States mortar; also fires 1600 yards farther. In addition, the North Koreans used a mortar even heavier than the 120-mm., which the Army has not yet evaluated.

The Russian burp gun has a drum-type magazine and fires at a terrifically rapid rate. Most of these were inscribed with 1950 manufacturing markings, thus refuting the Soviet claim that they had shipped no arms to North Korea since 1945.

Probably the most fascinating captured equipment is the Russian jeep. This is slightly larger and more comfortable than the United States model, is equipped with softer seats, double springs and better shock absorbers. However, its vital parts are still modeled after the outmoded A and B types, made by Ford.

Several BA-64 light-armored cars were also captured. However, they are distinctly inferior to the American M-8 in maneuverability, firepower and defense against small arms.

Most captured Soviet rifles are modeled after the United States Springfield 1903. They weigh 10 pounds, use five-round clips and fire at a slower rate than modern United States rifles.

However, a novel, hand-shoulder antitank gun was captured that is easy to maneuver and can pierce armor up to two and one-half inches. The Russian-made Goryunox machine gun can also be used against aircraft.

Lady Judges

India Edwards, the shrewd and dynamic women's Jim Farley, believes female judges will bring a needed dose of common sense to justice. That is back of her campaign to get more of her sex on the Federal judiciary.

Mrs. Edwards, woman's director of the Democratic National Committee, boldly told President Truman: "It's a disgrace there aren't more women on the bench. Why, women make wonderful judges. They are fair, interested in justice, and have lots more common sense than men."

Few people realize it, but Mrs. Edwards, with the help of Harry Truman, has smashed the men-only rule in Federal court appointments. Some of the top-flight women lawyers brought to the bench by India Edwards' drive are:

Judge Burnita Shelton Matthews, U. S. District Court, Washington, D. C.—Mrs. Matthews, a native of Mississippi and a distinguished woman jurist, is ex-president of the National Asscoiation of Women Lawyers and author of the 1927 law allowing women to serve on D. C. juries.

Judge Edith H. Cockrill, D. C. juvenile court—former OPA attorney and specialist in domestic relations.

Reds Surveyed U. S. Industrial Cities in 1947

By Fendall Yerxa and Ogden R. Reid
(Copyright by N. Y. Herald Tribune News Syndicate)

A complete sabotage survey of every major industrial center in the United States was made by the Communist Party in 1947 and reviewed by the party in every important city in the Nation in 1948.

The party's extensive work on the surveys is known to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The study was made by Communist Party sabotage squads or "cells," specially constituted for the job. Their personnel and the nature of their work were to be kept secret from rank-and-file party members, and even from minor "functionaries"—but some of them learned about them.

As a result of their surveys, the Nation's Communists possess a catalog of strategic installations earmarked for destruction or capture in a showdown fight with Russia. Large-scale sabotage on the basis of these studies, if timed to coincide with atomic or conventional attack on the United States by Soviet military forces, could seriously cripple the country's industrial power. Furthermore it might prevent the swift retaliation on which most of the Nation's defense plans hinge.

The 1947 sabotage survey included a detailed study of all major industrial centers, with the complete list of industries in each. A compilation was made of strategic points and potential targets. Party membership was charted so headquarters would have an accurate man-by-man count, would know the dispersal of members countrywide, and their concentration in key industries.

In New York City sabotage squads in the Communist Party waterfront section made a painstaking study of the port. They surveyed key piers and dockside warehouses. They gauged the depths of principal berths and anchorages. They studied loading facilities and the types and capabilities of cargo handling equipment to determine methods for crippling them.

Other squads amassed information on the city's water supplies, its reservoirs, aqueducts, filtration plants and the industrial importance of water. Still others examined the possibilities of cutting off or poisoning the city's food lifelines.

Similar surveys were made elsewhere. In Detroit, objectives included the big tank arsenals. Pittsburgh's steel furnaces were scrutinized. San Francisco and Los Angeles were focal points for studies of warplane production.

Shipyards and electric power facilities in Philadelphia; the naval base an San Diego; hydroelectric power developments in Oregon and Washington; atomic plants in Tennessee, New Mexico and at Hanford, Wash.—all these and many more were subjected to close scrutiny.

Elaborate Recheck in 1948

In 1948 the Communist conspiracy made an elaborate recheck of the previous year's survey. This time the analysis concentrated on the spotting of industries and facilities that hold the strategic keys to the Nation's defense effort. Communications and transportation centers were also emphasized.

Security considerations preclude the citation of specific details. But in general the review of the plan examined whether it would be best to sabotage a series of plants where a particular finished product is turned out, or whether it would be more effective to sidetrack all of them by crippling the single subordinate facility that furnishes those plants with vital materials or parts.

For example, there are numerous aluminum plants in the country, but only a few facilities that supply those plants with necessary abrasive materials. There are a few key plants, which, if knocked out, would cut off most of the Nation's aviation fuel supplies.

In the spring of 1946, 10 top Russian experts visited the United States, each one with a personal staff. They were the highest authorities in their particular fields, bearing such titles as: head engineer of the Heating Energy Management of Moscow; chief engineer of the Soviet Working Peoples Deputies; senior engineer of the Moscow Gas Works; and chief of dwelling construction of the Moscow Soviet of Working Peoples Deputies.

At the behest of the State Department, the 10 were taken by the Federal Works Administration on an extensive tour of the United States. They assembled all the documents and blueprints they could obtain. They photographed at will. They crawled over and under machinery, and evidenced far more interest in sho, practices and equipment than in administrative procedures.

Communist leaders are well satisfied that the planning stage for widespread sabotage is completed. The squads that have done the work in close cooperation with the two principal Soviet espionage agencies in this country—the M.G.B. of the Ministry of State Security, and the Red Army Intelligence—are held in readiness. They are under instructions merely to keep abreast of the situation, pending their final orders. The espionage networks of the Soviets keep the plan up to date by spying, and through information which can be gained from government and industrial sources.

When the tocsin rings for execution of whatever master plan may have been devised as a result of the survey, Communist forces in the United States have the far-flung organization at hand, and the knowledge to make the plan work. Their extensive manpower is tactically deployed and strategically located.

The full organization is at the present time on an alert basis. Orders went out to the entire party under the usual careful disguise last July 13, over the signature of Gus Hall, national secretary. They signified to every group captain, every section, branch and district organizer, every county, State and national leader, the necessity for maintenance of a constant state of readiness.

The location and activity of every member was to be known at all times, so that each could rapidly receive telephone or telegraph messages or be reached by courier. As a consequence, a force of many thousands can be mobilized in a part or all of the country in a matter of hours.

A courier system is already in operation, and can be used in emergency for communications. Each courier is known only to those from whom he receives material, and those to whom he passes it in turn. A secret mail drop is functioning, always behind some front such as a rooming house or a restaurant, sometimes operated by a person innocent of his purpose. Underground presses have long since been arranged on a standby basis.

54,000 Communists

The Communist party today has 54,000 members—although the party ceased issuing cards, and even stopped listing real names 18 months ago. They are organized in 30 continental and two territorial districts. For every bonafide Communist member, the Communists believe, there are 10 "non-members," militant travelers who are eager, willing and able to carry out orders.

Their concentrations, geographically and industrially, are significant. More than half of them have wormed their way into the basic industries that are most vital to the nation's defense. In the largest district, No. 2 in New York State, there are 26,000. Curiously enough, even though total party rolls have dropped slightly in the last nine months, the New York district has actually increased more than 1000. Most of the remainder are focused in the northeastern industrial quadrant of the nation and on the equally strategic West Coast.

A constant check is kept on the party's state of readiness. At a recent meeting of an "educational" group in an eastern city, the "instructor," whose course of study was subsequently made known to the FBI, declared that war between the United States and Russia is inevitable.

He expressed the belief that the outbreak of hostilities was merely awaiting an incident. Then he asked those assembled:

"In case Russia suddenly attacked the United States overnight, would you do sabotage work for the Communist party?"

One of the students demurred. The instructor lashed out at him, and told the class that he had serious doubts as to the "loyalty" of any part member who showed such indecision.

The threat inherent in such a vast Red network of sabotage and subversion has awakened a few officials in Government, industry, labor and the military services. They know on the basis of historical precedent, and what little can be read through the skillful Communist disguise, what will happen if and when a full-scale war comes, either on our own or foreign battlegrounds. They hope to be able to cope with the situation. Some of them claim they will. But others express grave doubts over the state of the defenses of America's internal fortress.

ECA Helps Ohio Firm Set Up British Branch

By the United Press

The Euclid Road Machinery Co., of Euclid, Ohio, was granted an $857,500 contract guarantee by the Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday to aid the firm in establishing a branch in Great Britain.

Under the plan, the company will spend $490,000 to set up the British plant for making specialized heavy earth-moving equipment. The ECA contract, which amounts to insurance on the investment, will enable the parent company to convert up to $857,000 of the British firm's earnings into American dollars. Americans now are prohibited from taking dollars out of Britain without special, hard-to-get authority.

FIRST LADY GOES CHRISTMAS SHOPPING—A blonde French poodle with a smart puppy clip is much admired by Mrs. Truman at the French Embassy bazaar given yesterday by Mme. Bonnet (right), wife of the Ambassador. The bazaar was for the benefit of camp and hospital facilities of the U. N. fighting forces in Korea and the American Red Cross

Crowds Flock to French Embassy Bazaar

First Lady Shops a la Francaise

By Elizabeth Maguire

MME. BONNET, wife of the French Ambassador, gave a bazaar yesterday at the embassy and everyone came but Santa. "It's just like Macy's," remarked a shopper. Perhaps the crowded floor space was like Macy's, but the shoving was a little gentler, the sales force was typically Washington, and the merchandise represented the cream of French manufacture, imported especially for the occasion.

Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, wife of the Vice President, sold scarves in the late afternoon, and Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife the Secretary of State, arrived at 11 a. m. to take her stand behind the perfume counter. Many other wives of top officials and diplomats assisted Mme. Bonnet in her enterprise, which was held for the benefit of the camp and hospital facilities of the U. N. fighting forces in Korea and the American Red Cross.

From 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. the first floor of the embassy was jammed. The shoppers were mostly women, and there was a feminine crush of furs and tweeds around every counter. Those who had patience made their way through and were able to purchase indescribably pretty things.

WHEN MRS. TRUMAN arrived at 11 a. m., she was followed about by a small crowd of admirers. "What are you doing here, Mrs. Truman?" asked one of the sales force. "She's buying French dressing," answered Mme. Bonnet. "Yes," said Mrs. Truman, "Margaret said if I came home without French dressing, she'd scold me."

The wife of the French Ambassador escorted the First Lady on her brief shopping tour. Their first visit was to the baby counter, where Mrs. Truman posed for pictures, but made no purchases. At the second counter, the doll shop, Mrs. Truman bought a Spanish dancing girl dressed in red satin and black lace. Other purchases were a small bottle of Chanel No. 5 from the perfumery, and a silk scarf.

F. Lammot Belin arrived when the doors opened and shortly afterward was seen leaving with a crate of champagne. In the drawing room, which is like an art gallery, hung with paintings by Bonnard, Matisse, Maillol and Roualt, the crowds were waited on by Mrs. Clifton Bledsoe Cates, Countess de Boisgelin, Mrs. Philip Graham, Mme. Benard and others.

ASSISTANTS IN the library included Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, Mrs. George Worthington, Countess de Rougemont, Mme. Cabanier and Mme. Sirouy. A junior staff consisted of the Misses Nancy Anderson, Jane Lingo, Gerry Clifford, Carolyn Brown, Nancy Collins, Ann Cates, Nancy Kear and Mrs. George Horkan.

The bazaar offered a good start for Christmas shoppers. For some it was probably the end as well, for the selection included fabulous silks and objet d'arts, wines, cognac, the fanciest of groceries, pearl-trimmed sweaters, jewelry and enchanting toys for tots.

In previous years, American Aid to France has held highly successful bazaars at the French Embassy, but yesterday's was the first to be brought off by Mme. Bonnet. Its success was assured the minute the doors opened. By 10:15 a. m. the Ambassadress and her pretty niece, Miss Sophie Mayer, were directing a heavy flow of traffic. And it was a steady flow, which didn't thin throughout the day.

HOLIDAY BUYERS—In the library of the French Embassy, hand-sewn babies' clothes drew bassinet shoppers. Dresses, booties, bonnets and blankets in traditional pink and blue were destined to bring happy coos from the most fastidious infants. While Cabinet wives and countesses rang up change behind the counter, a select group of customers closely inspected rare laces

Yugoslav Embassy Waives Buffet at Reception

By Marie McNair

AWARE OF the near-famine conditions in their own country, the Yugoslav Ambassador and Mme. Popovic kept arrangements for their reception yesterday afternoon to the simplest form.

At this fete, celebrating the anniversary of the Federative Peoples Republic, there was no lavish buffet table, and the quota of caterer's assistants usually called in to serve at Washington parties of large proportions was replaced by sons and daughters of members of the embassy staff. They were assisting in the check room, and fresh-cheeked girls with trays of pastries, sandwiches and cakes, all made in the house, moved through the drawing room.

Throngs of guests arrived on the dot of 6 p. m.; at 7 and later the line waiting to get in extended half way down the street. Receiving with the Ambassador and Mme. Popovic were the Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Filipovic, and Col. Mirko Bulovic in the khaki uniform of Military Attache.

Mme. Popovic wore a gown of black nylon net with full skirt and low cut neckline which had been made in Yugoslavia, and over her shoulders fell a rare white lace scarf. Mme. Filipovic's street-length suit frock was of gray dotted silk with black velvet trim.

THE INDONESIAN Ambassador and Mme. Sastroamidjojo were among the first to arrive and other-saried ladies were Mrs. Corea, wife of the Ambassador of Ceylon, in red and gold, and Mme. Ispahani, wife of the Pakistan Ambassador, in green silk figured in gold. Both were accompanied by their husbands.

A pale blue fitted tunic was worn by Suria Senya from Ceylon, who was accompanied by his wife. The couple form a charming musical team who have sung and played folk songs of their country to Washington both at the Ceylonese Embassy and the Library of Congress.

Deputy Undersecretary of State Carlisle Humelsine was there, and I saw Mrs. Omar Bradley, wife of the General, through a sea of faces.

THE MINISTER of Luxembourg escorted Mme. LaGallais, wearing the "conversation piece hat"—that same model which Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, our Minister to Luxembourg own. It's black, close fitting and has as its only trimming a cluster of black cedar fronds tipped with pearl tear-drops.

Secretary of the Senate Leslie Biffle was there, and Mrs. Biffle's friends were admiring the pale blue satin collar sewn with pearls on her black gown. Col. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle came without Mrs. Biddle; the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina were there, as well as the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Herbruger, who topped her dark costume with a coral-colored hat.

Mme. Vladimir Rybar, whose late husband was Yugoslav Counselor of Embassy, was talking to Col. Claire Hardy and Lyle Brookover. Mrs. Bernard Gallagher came just for a few minutes from her home around the corner, and others there were Mrs. Walter Wilds, whose husband had been called unexpectedly to New York; the Air Attache of the New Zea-

If You Employ Domestics:

'24-50 Test' the Key To New Security Tax

By Flora Gill

ONE OF WOMANKIND'S favorite tea time—or anytime—topics, the domestic problem, is about to present a new, wide and even controversial field for discussion. Beginning January 1, most households that employ a domestic at least two days a week will have to pay Social Security as well as wages. Who must pay, and how, was explained yesterday in a special press conference which revealed some of the headaches, as well as the benefits, to be produced by the new law.

The conference, held jointly by George J. Schoenman, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Arthur J. Altmeyer, Commissioner of Social Security, released details of simplified procedures devised under the new law which extends Social Security benefits to approximately a million household workers.

A phrase which will literally become a household word is the "24-50 test" which determines eligibility of individual domestics for tax coverage. The phrase refers to the minimum of $50 which a domestic will have to earn, and to the 24 days she will have to work, in each three-month period to be eligible for the plan and its benefits.

ACCORDING TO this test the law does not cover the innumerable day workers, employed one day per week, at perhaps $5 per day, who more than meet the $50 requirement but not the 24-day regulation.

Asked by a reporter if this might not work hardship on employers of one-day workers, who may be reluctant to lose benefits by working for five different employers a week, Commissioner Schoenman replied that it was hoped that employers could work that out, perhaps by employing a servant for two half-days per week which would fulfill the 24-day requirement. He added that benefits for one-day-a-week workers might be added later.

To comply with the law, a householder employing servants need do only two things now:

(1) Send name and address to the Collector of Internal Revenue in his district. (2) Wait for the arrival, early next year, of a form to be filled in.

A little booklet entitled "Do You Have a Maid," now available at local offices of the Collectors of Internal Revenue, the Social Security Administration and in many post offices, includes a postcard that simply filled in and mailed, takes care of the first requirement.

GENERALLY speaking, the new law includes maids, laundresses, housekeepers, cooks, nursemaids, gardeners, furnace men, handymen, valets, footmen, grooms, chauffeurs (of privately owned cars) and practical nurses. People who do household work on a farm are protected under a different provision of the new law.

Starting January 1, if the domestic you employ is covered, you are expected to deduct 1½ percent from his or her cash wages and match it with a 1½ percent contribution of your own. At the end of each 3-month period you send the tax, with a report of wages paid, to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Residents in the District and Maryland will address "Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore." Virginia residents will address the collector in Richmond.

If more than one person works in your home, you list each separately. Room and board are not counted as wages. Only cash wages are included, including carfare if paid in cash. (Tokens are not counted as cash.) Even though your maid may work in other homes, you count only the work she does for you.

OF INTEREST to husbands or wives who already file form 941 on employees in a business or professional practice is the fact that they may add their household workers to these reports.

Form 942, which will become as familiar a sight in every maid-employing household as the knocker on the door, is the form to be used in all other families employing domestics. It is printed on the back of a return envelope for convenience in mailing by employers.

IN ADDITION to getting her name on the official list, the employer's obligation extends to seeing that her employe applies at the local Social Security office for a Social Security number. In the event employees are reluctant to take this necessary step to qualify, employers are asked to explain the benefits involved.

Even a domestic earning the minimum of $50 a quarter is entitled to $20 a month upon reaching retirement age. In case of death, the domestic's dependents, if any, are entitled to survivors' benefits.

Although employers may be fined $10,000 or spend five years in prison for willfully ignoring the law, the Commissioners said that they did not anticipate any problems of the sort.

The Sheath—With Variations

By Evelyn Hayes

THE BRIGHTEST LIGHT on the fashion horizon is the sheath silhouette—sheath meaning as straight and narrow as the figure allows.

The fashion importance of this slim unadorned line can be the inspiration of many a gift idea. There are literally dozens of ways of straying from the straight and narrow with accessories that make not only good fashion and good sense (via expanding a girl's wardrobe) but good Christmas presents as well.

Hollywood stars who have played this fashion to the hilt, offer many a hint on this score. Joan Bennett, for example, adds a voluminous-sleeved guimpe of white chiffon to a green velvet sheath jumper while Irene Dunne adds to a gray crepe sheath a cutaway jacket of white silk ottoman, the jacket cut bolero-brief in front, swinging full in back.

Actually the sheath dress can be the basis of a wardrobe as shown in the surrounding photographs from Woodward & Lothrop. A stole makes a wonderful gift and a smart accessory. Jelleff's has chiffon stoles in a rainbow of colors from pastel to bright. One tiny-waisted customer made a skirt out of one of these—but we suspect the average woman would need at least two to make a good skirt. They're 2 yards long and 1 yard wide—and at $3.95 each, even two add up to a modest-priced gift and a most welcome one.

ONE OF THESE plus a blending bunch of posies would make a fine fashion offering, too—i.e. mauve or lilac with violets. We've also gift-starred an imported lace stole at Jelleff's—chantilly type lace in black, white, pink or toast, cut just long enough to drape over the shoulders, making a very enchanting fichu which, with a strategically placed rose or two, would add after-five glamour to almost any well-cut sheath.

1. THE SHEATH GOES TO WORK, to a meeting—worn with a long-sleeved broadcloth shirt with rows of red stitching

2 THE SHEATH GOES TO LUNCH—dressed up with an adjustable white collar and a lush large velvet rose

3. THE SHEATH GOES TO COCKTAILS—wearing a metallic-striped white knit stole, belted with velvet and a rose

4. THE SHEATH GOES DANCING—overskirted with peekaboo white cotton lace glamorized with glitter pin and earrings

In the four pictures on this page, a sheath goes round the clock via accessories. The sheath—two pieces—a ribbed knit jumper, top and matching slim skirt. At Woodward & Lothrop

Experiment Ruth:

Is It Beauty or Is It An Optical Illusion?

By Ann Lawrence

(Seventh day of Ruth's beauty program.)

IF YOU UNDERSTAND the art of optical illusion, you'll know why magicians are sometimes called "illusionists." There really is magic in illusion and it can be most effectively used to create the illusion of a perfectly-balanced face.

Many a girl who seems good-looking has merely mastered the art of optical illusion to create the effect of good proportions which nature never gave her.

The first step in make-over magic is to know what shape face you really have. To judge your own, do as Ruth did: Cover your hair down to the hairline with something like a stocking cap and study your face straight on in the mirror.

The perfectly proportioned face is oval, divided into these proportions: The eyes are halfway between the top of the head and the chin, the nose halfway between the eyes and the bottom of the chin, the mouth is one-third from the underside of the nose and two-thirds from the bottom of the chin.

RUTH FOUND that her chin was too pointed for a perfect oval shape and the distance between nose and chin too long. Thus, she knew that hers is a triangular face.

Working for the illusion of an oval face, you have two things to consider. First, the hair about your face and second, the shapes within your face—your brows, your hairline and your mouth.

Ruth's hair, as she was wearing it when we met her, was brushed up and off the temples and forehead, back, up and behind the ears. Such a hair style served only to accent the triangular shape. Squaring the triangle with hair shaped and brushed and set horizontally, creates an oval illusion.

IN HER NEW hair-do, the crown is kept smooth, with a soft, halfway bang for flattery. Incidentally, bangs can be used to lower or raise a forehead, but in Ruth's case, they were used simply for a softer, more feminine effect.

The hair is brushed back from the temples, but instead of waving up and behind the ears, it is drawn forward into gentle curls. Width over the ears and behind them broadens the narrower part of her face, makes her chin less pointed and in better harmony with her eyes and nose.

Pin curls for this hair-do are turned away from the face, but when the set is combed out, the hair is brushed away from the face, then combed towards it.

RUTH'S NEW HAIR-DO SHAPES HER FACE

Your Figure, Madame

Landlord Won't Know That You're Exercising

By Ida Jean Kain

A CAREER GIRL WHO WANTS to slim down 20 pounds, shearing 19½ of those excess pounds right off the hips and thighs, requests exercises that can be taken in crowded quarters. She explains that an efficiency apartment is not designed for exercising, unless shin-bumping would be considered a form of calisthenics. That touch clearly shows how crowded her quarters really are.

But here's a streamlining set that reaches the hip muscle sextet and requires no extra space. They are silent exercises, guaranteed not to break the lease. No girl need sit this routine out.

Every apartment, no matter how small, contains a bed and a straight-back chair, and there is sure to be space between the bed and the chair to swing into action.

Position: Place the back of the chair near the side of the bed, with just enough space between for you and your hips. Hold on to chair back for support.

Movement: Swing right leg up in front . . . then swing the leg back and up, tightening the hip muscles to swing against resistance. Swing leg forward again and back, knee straight, continuing a dozen times. Change sides and swing with the other leg. Later double the count.

After that you may feel like relaxing, so drop down on the bed. Then lie face down on bed, head resting on folded arms, legs straight down. The exercise is merely to raise alternate legs in air, keeping knees straight, and hold. The holding does the toning. Hold for a few seconds, lower then raise and hold with the other leg.

TO REACH THE MUSCLES that bound the sides of the hipline, and to act on the inner thigh muscles as well, circle into action. This too can be taken on the bed. It is preferable to take exercises on a hard surface since the back gives with a soft surface . . . but none of this set is taken from a lying-on-the-back position.

Movement: Raise the top leg a few inches, then circle—moving the leg back and around, up and back again, circling continuously. Change sides and circle with the other leg.

These exercises stir up circulation in hips and thighs and make the fat padding that part of the figure available for use. It will be called into use . . . if you diet.

Affairs of State

THE STATE Department, busy with the international situation published last January, is now thinking about a war novel.

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark and Mrs. Russell Bishop, practically next-door neighbors of the hostess, were at the party. Others were Mrs. Lesley McNair, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. James Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Hollister Sturges, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. James Parks, Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg.

Mrs. Edward Treglown and Rose Saul came together from the French Embassy bazaar. Rose Saul had a frankly fake but handsome rhinestone and emerald pin, which she had purchased there, pinned to her mink coat.

Then there were Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt, Mrs. Wayne Kittelle, Mrs. Fletcher Plumley, and Mrs. James J. Hughes.

THE ERIC JOHNSTONS came early and left early, Mrs. Johnston to attend a meeting of the AAUW board which began in the morning and was interrupted only for meals.

Then there were Maj. Gen. C. C. J. Forsley, Military Attache of the Danish Embassy; Mrs. Henry Flood, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Whittemore (he's vice president and treasurer of the Export-Import Bank), Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. Alexander Kirke, Mrs. Edward Treglown, the Robert Freers, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Rowe Saltsman, Nicolas deJelon, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, Mrs. Edward S. Bartelt, Mrs. Gardiner Luce, Mrs. Julian Gillespie, Mrs. Blake Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Saugstad, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Holdrege, and Dr. and Mrs. George Trible.

FROM THE YUGOSLAV EMBASSY to the Sulgrave Club, to Mrs. Juliet Kelley Ansberry's cocktail party to meet the charming Oliver Sterlings, her guests from New York. Mr. Sterling is the nephew of Frederick Sterling of Georgetown, one-time United States Minister to Sweden.

In a quick glance through the rooms I saw: Admiral and Mrs. James H. Foskett, Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, the new Costa Rican Ambassador, Rafael Oreamuno and his pretty Senora; Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves, the Arthur Middleton Hills and Representative Eugene Keogh of New York, but not his bride.

Met Mrs. Thomas Felder of New York and her brother "Bud" Rice, who's one of the editors of Town and County; Ogden Nash, also down from New York for the party, and another New Yorker who used to visit here—Oren Lehman.

Dr. and Mrs. Breckinridge were there, and Mrs. Bayne's nephew by marriage, Comdr. Frederick Spence, just back from Korea. Mrs. Spence is on her way east by train.

PARTY PARADE:

Guests at Mrs. Bernard Gallagher's luncheon yesterday were shown by Mrs. Parker West how to counteract that creamed turkey and ice cream and cake fare they had eaten with such evident pleasure. Mrs. West, athletic instructor to the group, demonstrated a few simple exercises to the 20 or more ladies grouped about her after the luncheon.

Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the justice, was ranking guest at the fete, which honored Phyllis Gallagher's long-time friend, Mrs. Justin Miller, who now divides her time between Washington and her home in California. Mrs. Miller, author of several books and "Mother Lode," her first poem, Undersecretary of State James E. Webb was host at luncheon for Nelson Rockefeller, chairman of the new International Development Advisory Board and members of the board. And Assistant Secretary of State Edwin G. Miller gave a luncheon for the new Haitian Ambassador, Gustav Laraque.

Still a Group Collecting Used Clothes for Overseas; Volunteers Needed to Sew

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me where I can send some used clothes in good condition? Is there still need for them overseas? I should like to send them there if I knew how to do so.

W. P. L., Washington

One group collecting clothes for overseas shipment now is the Quaker Church. Things may be brought to the Friends' Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw. (entrance on Decatur pl.) Volunteers are needed, too, to help with mending these things. The telephone number is Columbia 9799.

DEAR ANNE:

Is it necessary to invite the minister's wife to an informal wedding and reception when invitations are not being mailed out?

J. W., Annapolis, Md.

I believe it would be in better taste to do so. If she is a busy person and her husband performs many wedding services, it's likely that she will not come but the gesture of an invitation is a gracious one.

Woman Dearly Loves Her Husband But Feels Beaten By His Unfounded Hothead Jealousy of Her; Seems To Think Any Wife Cheats When the Coast Is Clear

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband, I'll call him Edgar, is very handsome and I love him dearly. We have two lovely children and he has given me a beautiful home and everything else a woman could want or need, except one thing, namely, confidence in my character.

He is extremely jealous and hotheaded and in our six years of marriage he has continually tormented me with accusations, suspicions and threats, until I sometimes I think I will go out of my mind. I've never given him any cause to distrust me and I think he knows deep down that his accusations are just as unfounded as I know them to be.

He seems to have a mental quirk regarding women and sex, as if he thought that a woman, any woman, immediately sets out to cheat on her husband the moment his back is turned. He isn't always that way; in fact, he seems to realize this train of thought just isn't right; but still he can't help feeling that way at times, it seems.

I know Edgar loves me after his fashion and he adores our sons. But I am afraid that his jealous distrust is going to spoil our marriage and our sons' lives, too, if it isn't brought under control. I would like to suggest psychiatric treatment for him but there again I am afraid—lest he accuse me of thinking, or trying to make him think, he isn't "quite right" in the head. Moreover, we couldn't affort expensive psychiatry even if he were willing to try it, which I very much doubt that he would be.

I've done my best to help him, but without success; and now I've almost reached the end of my rope. So I am writing to you in desperation to ask if you know what the trouble is and how can we master it. Is there anything you can suggest that I haven't already done? E. T.

DEAR E. T.: Very likely you've been making the mistake with Edgar of trying to deal with his jealous fears on his ground—in the sense of trying to dissolve them with defensive arguments and positive proof of good behavior designed to clear yourself of "guilt" in his thinking. This is what the average loving wife would do, with the best of intentions, and in the spirit of tender hopeful forebearance, when faced with the problem Edgar poses.

However, as you've learned the hard way, the net result of this soft sentimental proceeding is to leave the ugly problem unsolved and indeed untouched—still obscurely entrenched in the originating soil of his neurotic unconscious anxieties, about which he knows nothing, consciously. Not knowing the self-starting cause of his mental quirk about women and sex, he has no way of controlling it really. And this ignorance of the roots of the trouble keeps him a victim of fear of betrayal, rejection, etc., in relation to you—even though his sanity tells him that his compulsive distrust of your faithful character "just isn't right" and doesn't make sense when tested against the plain facts of your intense loyalty to him.

The most therapeutic help that a devoted wife could offer Edgar would be consistent firmness of mind in assuring him that his jealousy was a serious problem to her and himself besides, and that her behavior didn't enter into it at all. You should be steadfastly self respecting in attitude, unshaken by his accusations and vigorously outspoken, in a maternally positive tone of voice, in urging him to get medical diagnosis of the anxieties that torture him primarily—and you indirectly—because of his complaints and your concern for him.

If Edgar were obscurely ill with tuberculosis, let's say, a wifely policy of coddling his symptoms without getting a doctor's guidance would be dangerous practice, as you can imagine. The patient would be drifting from bad to worse for lack of intelligent treatment. Meanwhile morbid infection would be spreading to others in the family, due to neglect of hygienic measures. All of which is equally true in case of emotional illness; and I use the analogy to drive home to you and Edgar the urgency of his need of specialist help and the error of your "fraidy-cat" diplomacy.

Obviously Edgar is neurotic from away back, his sensibilities warped by intolerable anxieties in early life; and while this doesn't mean he is crazy—yet!—it is a condition that calls for specialist therapy, as a safeguard. Pursuant to a discussion of advanced paranoiac jealousy a few years ago, I had letters from several wives who wrote, tragically, that their respective husbands had waited too long before seeking medical help for "jealousy." Now they are in custodial hospitals. One wife said the specialist's verdict to her was, "If I'd seen your husband two years ago, there would have been hope; but not now." She had coddled and cloaked his sick suspicions for 20 years, until both were middle aged, before panic drove her to a doctor. So my advice to you and Edgar is: Beware delay, in making use of the good psychiatric clinics in your city.
